Elderly Tax Relief An Overtime Worry

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tax relief for the elderly has not yet turned into a political football between Missouri's executive and legislative branches. But it has had mathematicians working overtime.

Although figures vary according to what bill is used, nearly 300,000 persons over 65 would be eligible for tax relief and it will cost the state from $16 million to $22 million a year in income tax revenue.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, the Senate and the House all favor some type of tax relief for the elderly.

The House and Senate are in a tug-of-war over how to implement tax relief, approved last fall by voters. The two houses have slowly worked toward a compromise. Bills were introduced in both houses in December, and committee hearings have been held constantly since January.

The House, in March, passed a bill applying to persons over 65 who earn less than $10,000 a year.

The Senate passed a bill with a $6,500 limit. A Senate Committee rewrote the House bill and the House committee rewrote the Senate bill, both coming up with a $7,500 limit. But the Houses still differ on the formula to be used.

The Senate versions would allow a person earning $7,500, with a $400 property tax bills, to knock $100 off his state income tax. The House substitute for the Senate bill would knock off $40 with the same income, whereas the original House bill would have given a credit of $60.

The Senate prefers a formula whereby the credit would be the difference between a property tax bill and 4 per cent of the household income. For renters, 15 per cent of the year's total rent would be used as the property tax. The figure was 12 per cent under the original Senate bill. Both House versions use 25 per cent.

The original House passed bill, a substitute for six House bills, has a scale extending from 90 per cent of the property tax bill for those with incomes under $500 to 5 per cent of the property tax bill to be knocked off the income tax for those with incomes of $9,000 to $10,000 a year.

The House committee substitute for the Senate bill runs the scale from 95 per cent for incomes under $500 to 10 per cent for incomes between $7000 and $7,500.

Complicated Formula

Only property taxes up to $400 would be allowed to figure in the formula in both bills.

Here are comparisons of the House and Senate versions, using a property tax of $400 and an annual income of $6,000:

Senate — Four per cent of $6,000 is $240, and subtracting that from $400 would leave $160 to be knocked off the income tax.

Latest House version — A credit of 20 per cent of the property tax is allowed. Twenty per cent of $400 is $80, which could be reducted from the income tax.

For a household with $1,500 annual income and a property tax of $200:

Senate versions — Four per cent of $1,500 is $60, and the difference between $200 and $60 is $140 which would be knocked off the state income tax.

Original House bill — A 75 per cent scale is applied to $200, resulting in $150 off the state income tax.

House substitute for Senate bill — The scale calls for 70 per cent of $200, or $140 to be knocked off the income tax.

The House bill would cost more in helping persons at the bottom of the income scale and its renter provisions would cost more to the state than the Senate bill.

In the latest House bill, the income tax rebate for a household paying $100 a month in rent and having an annual income of $6,000 would be $60.

In the newest Senate version, the income tax credit for the same household income and rent would be zero because 4 per cent of the income, or $240, is greater than the amount of rent, $180, allowed to figure in the formula.

The original House bill would cost about $20 million a year.

The House substitute for the Senate bill has an estimated cost of $18.2 million for a full year, $2 million more than the original Senate bill with a $6,500 on income.

The original Senate bill had a clause saying no more than $22 million a year could be spent on tax relief.

Those estimates are based on a 30-40 per cent participation rate, which would be less than 140,000 of those eligible.

The House wants the bill to take effect next October. The Senate wants the effective date July 1, 1974.

Opposition Noted

During debate on the House bill, backed by Democratic leaders, Republican floor leader Robert O. Snyder of Kirkwood led a solid Republican minority against the proposal for the $10,000 ceiling because the goveror favors a lower figure of $16 million in total cost.

Snyder and the Republicans lost, and later Snyder charged the Democrats with trying to "embarrass the governor" by passing an "irresponsible bill" with a higher price tag.

"I don't think the circuit breaker (the common name attached to the tax relief formulas) is a purely political issue," said House majority leader Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton. "I'm sure we'll reach some agreement with the senate."

"We'll get some kind of tax relief bill though," says the Senate Ways and Means chairman, Robert A. Young, D-St. ann. "I feel most of the differences can be resolved."

"The important thing is starting the program and seeing how much participation we have," says Charles Valier, the governor's legislative assistant.

"The most important thing is our bill changes the effective date of tax relief to this fiscal year, so the elderly can get aid immediately," Rothman said.

Strange Hijacking Odyssey Ends With $50,000 Payoff

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Two masked gunmen who set hijacking records mysteriously ended their three-day odyssey by sneaking off the commandeered airliner and disappearing Saturday with $50,000.

The young air pirates picked up the ransom money from the Colombian airline on a Caribbean stopover, then ordered the plane on a nation-hopping run through western South America.

When the airliner reached Buenos Aires, the hijackers were gone, the more than 80 original passengers had been released or had escaped since the ordeal began Wednesday.

The pilot said both hijackers got away at Resistencia, in a remote and thinly populated area of northern Argentina near the Brazilian and Paraguayan borders.

Police patrols began a search there.

But a police official in Buenos Aires said after authorities questioned the plane's crew of six that he believed one of the hijackers got off at Resistencia and the other on the next stop at Asuncion, Paraguay.

Wherever they were, the two were assumed to be seeking rest after three sleepless days of forcing the airliner to fly 15,000 miles.

Authorities said that was a record distance for a hijacked plane. The three days of travel at gunpoint, with stops every five or six hours to refuel from Central America to Buenos Aires, was a hijack endurance record.

The four-engined Lockheed Electra finally landed early Saturday at Ezeiza International Airport. Waiting newsmen thought the two hijackers were aboard, ready to surrender.

But they weren't. Police refused to say where they might be, and the SAM airline of Colombia, owner of the Lockheed, did not clarify the mystery.

Capt. Hugo Molina, the aircraft's exhausted pilot, told newsmen the hijackers had left the plane in Resistencia, Argentina, and made their getaway in a pickup truck left by authorities near the runway.

Molina said the hijackers had threatened to kill a stewardess held as hostage if the truck was not provided. But this failed to explain why police did not chase the hijackers after they fled in the pickup, without hostages.

The afternoon newspaper Cronica said the hijackers claimed to be left-wing guerrillas and threatened that fellow guerrillas back home would kill relatives of the airliner's crew if the hijackers were not permitted to make a getaway.

Watergate Said Tied To Economy

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar plunged to record lows during May and the price of gold soared to unbelievable heights with no apparent end in sight.

Many European dealers blamed the Watergate scandal. Other causes also agitated the markets. But dealers said almost unanimously that disclosures of questionable dealings in high places had, in European eyes, undermined the stability and credibility of the Nixon administration, particularly its ability to handle economic policy.

The gloom of May was brightened only by the announcement of a U.S. trade surplus for April, the first American foreign trade surplus in 18 months. That brought a brief respite to exchanges and bullion markets.

Otherwise, the price of gold soared $24 an ounce during the month. As it did, the dollar dropped eight cents in relation to the British pound, fell 14 West German pfennigs, 16 French centimes, 15 Swiss centimes, almost two Belgian francs and 13 Dutch cents. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 27¼ points as the dollar declined and gold rose.

The dollar slump and the related gold climb began May 7, the day President Nixon denied all knowledge of the Watergate affair. A week later, gold soared past the $100 psychological barrier.

One of London's five main gold dealers predicted Thursday that the price would soon reach $150 an ounce. He said there was no longer any upper limit.

Gold was hovering around $90 an ounce when May began, and had been for weeks. The British pound was worth less than $2.49. The dollar was worth more than 2.83 German marks, nearly 4.57 French francs, 3.24 Swiss francs, 2.96 Dutch guilders and 40.315 Belgian francs.

At the close of business Thursday, a religious holiday on the European continent, gold was worth $114.75 an ounce and the pound 2.5665 dollars.

The fall of the dollar and the surge of gold, although trading volume remained below the level of past monetary crises, underscored ebbing confidence in the dollar as an investment and trading vehicle. Dealers said holders of dollars such as international corporations were selling them for gold, which they regarded as a safer way to store their wealth.

The apparent lack of progress on monetary problems in Nixon's talks with President Georges Pompidou of France in Iceland was held partly responsible for Friday's heavy wave of dollar selling and gold buying.

Request Fair Funds

State Fair Secretary Ron Jones and Commissioner of Agriculture James Boillot appeared Friday before the Senate appropriations committee to request support for the 1973-74 Missouri State Fair capital improvements budget.

The budget of $226,400 would enable the Fair to make several major additions and repairs to existing facilities. Of highest priority is improvement of the grandstand roof. Jones said the present roof is made of lightweight material that cannot withstand excessive high winds and is hazardous to spectators.

The budget also calls for a new underpass to replace the current one at the northwest side of the race track. Foundation and flooring work is needed in some buildings, Jones said, and one or two restrooms need to be added. Remodeling is needed to better equip facilities for handicapped persons, the secretary said.

The original budget request was made last fall by former secretary W. C. Askew and called for more than $5 million in improvements, it was learned. Gov. Bond reduced the recommended budget to $226,400 in January, Jones said. The House then further reduced it by slicing $100,000 from the recommendation.

Jones said he felt the Senate committee would support the $226,400 request. If it does, he explained, the House and Senate committees will then try to work out a compromise figure. Jones said a final decision should be reached by June 20.

Regardless of the outcome, work will not be completed in time for this year's Fair, Jones said. The work could be finished late this fall or early next spring, he estimated.

Seeking Maximum Watergate Affair Mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and federal Watergate investigators are negotiating a way to bring suspects in the scandal to trial while still permitting the widest public exposure of the facts.

The search for compromise between the conflicting aims of Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the Senate Watergate investigating committee comes after a week of serious conflicts of another sort.

These included sharp differences in stories told by two of President Nixon's former aides and senior officials of the Central Intelligence Agency about alleged attempts to involve the CIA in domestic spying and to help cover up White House involvement in Watergate.

There was controversy also over whether a 1970 White House Plan—allegedly calling for the formation of a virtual secret police capability—was ever put into effect.

And there was a flat statement from the White House that President Nixon will not subject himself to questioning by either Senate investigators — whose hearings reopen Tuesday after a week's pause — or the Watergate grand jury.

Those are only two of the investigations under way into the dozens of mysteries that now bear the collective name of Watergate.

Late last week a federal prosecutor in Los Angeles said permission had been granted for three convicted Watergate conspirators, including former CIA agent E. Howard Hunt, to be released from the federal prison in Danbury, Conn., to testify before a Los Angeles grand jury. The jurors are investigating the burglary of the psychiatrist who treated Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

Four separate congressional committees are investigating the technical aid Hunt got from his former CIA superiors. And that is where some of the conflicting testimony comes in.

On Thursday, Marine Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr. said his testimony that CIA was asked to help Hunt by White House aide John D. Ehrlichman is supported by records of an Ehrlichman telephone call to him.

The day before, Ehrlichman said he hadn't the "faintest recollection" of such a call and that the first he knew of CIA assistance to Hunt was when Cushman called him on Aug. 27, 1971, and asked permission to stop it.

There was another conflict in sworn statements over the possibility the White House sought to involve the CIA in the coverup of the Watergate affair itself.

Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, who was the CIA's deputy director at the time of the break-in at Democratic headquarters last June 17, has said he was asked by Ehrlichman and other top White House aides several days later to suggest that the FBI call off an investigation into Nixon campaign funds allegedly channeled covertly through banks in Mexico.

Some of that money has been linked to the Watergate affair and it has been alleged that the White House request was an attempt to involve the CIA and the FBI in a coverup.

That interpretation specifically was denied by Ehrlichman and former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman.

Ehrlichman said he wouldn't have suggested the FBI's investigation be restricted had Walters assured him flatly there was no chance that covert CIA activities could be compromised.

Instead, he said Walters gave an "equivocal" response.

Haldeman said Thursday he was "at no time nor in any way" involved in covering up Watergate.

Trade Pact Is Approved By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has given its approval to an $8 billion trade agreement that is the largest in history between the Soviet Union and a Western firm.

Under the agreement, Occidental Petroleum Corp. and the USSR will exchange $200 million worth of chemical products annually for 20 years.

The agreement was negotiated by Armand Hammer, Occidental president, last September.

Occidental agreed to supply badly needed superphosphoric chemical fertilizer to the Soviets.

In return, the Soviet Union will:

—build plants in the city of Kuinbyshev, about 550 miles southeast of Moscow, to manufacture ammonia and urea, a natural gas derivative.

—repay Occidental in ammonia and urea for its plant investment and fertilizer and grand worldwide marketing rights for the two products to Occidental.

Hold Party

Approximately 280 people attended the 1973 Senior Party at Convention Hall Thursday night following commencement exercises for Smith-Cotton High School. The event was sponsored by parents of the senior class and featured the theme "Down Under" in recognition of exchange student Jenny James, who is from Australia. Music was provided by the rock group Overflow. Local merchants donated food for the event.

North Korea Labels Graham As a Fanatic

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The North Koreans say that evangelist Billy Graham's 5-day crusade in South Korea is a "fanatic exercise of superstition," according to two Seoul newspapers.

The Chosun Ilbo and Hankook Ilbo also quoted Radio Pyongyang as charging that the Seoul government is "forcibly mobilizing large crowds to stage a superstitious play in concert of American missionaries."

Graham, whose crusade began on Wednesday and will end Sunday, denied that there has been any government pressure to assemble large crowds and said that the Communist attempt to discredit the crusades "is nothing new." He said he was deeply interested in North Korea and had been praying for its people.

The American evangelist has attracted huge crowds during the South Korean tour, including 516,000 on the opening day

Child Care Service Needed

By PETER WEAVER

The child-care business can encompass everything from the traditional baby sitter on up to an elaborate home-care operation for 10 children.

There's an enormous need for qualified child-care services. The federal government has cut day-care funding to the bone and the states are now actively encouraging private citizens to help pick up the load with their own in-home, child-care businesses.

In starting any kind of child-care business — baby-sitting or home care — there are certain precautions you should take. Some pointers:

✔ Check your homeowner's or tenant's insurance policy to see if there are any exceptions to your coverage. Usually, it's not considered an active business when a daughter or son baby-sits, and you're adequately covered for liability by your owner's or tenant's insurance.

You may need added liability protection. If your child drops a customer's infant, for example, and causes injury, you could be sued. Make sure you have enough coverage to cover such a suit. You should have a minimum of $100,000 liability coverage which only costs a few extra dollars a year.

✔ Make sure your child always tells the parents where he or she will be sitting, to get in touch with you, especially if you don't know them. Explain that you are covered by insurance and iron out the hours and transportation details.

Moving up from baby-sitting, you can set up a home-care operation for 5 to 10 children depending on your state's laws. When you get into this category, you will probably need a license and extra insurance.

Dr. Carol Seefeldt, University of Maryland Early Childhood Development Center, offers these suggestions:

✔ Check with your local government social services or welfare department to see what kind of license is needed and whether zoning rules prohibit a home-care business in your neighborhood. While checking with your local government, ask if any home-care training is available.

✔ Check your insurance. Most Insurers require a special policy to cover "business pursuits." If your insurer doesn't offer this coverage, you'll have to get another company to insure you and your home.

✔ Make a checklist of toys, books, extra furniture and other items you'll be needing. Make a budget including start-up costs and continuing costs. For example, it costs an average of $1,500 a year to offer comprehensive care for one child. This comes to around $30 a week (considering vacations).

Remember, having your own business at home can provide many tax-deductible items. You might need a lawyer to help with this as well as sort out licensing and liability problems.

As a starter, you should get "Handbook for Home Care of Children." It was prepared by Wayne State University Child Development Training Program and is distributed by Day Care and Child Development Council of America (1401 K St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 2005). It costs $1.25.

Although written for Michigan residents, the handbook fits most home-care operations. It lists the kind of play and education equipment you'll need and goes into such things as safety tips, how to handle discipline (children behave better when they have plenty to do), toilet training, feeding, aiding the learning process (listing all kinds of free or inexpensive teaching tools) plus tips on how to handle behavior problems and emergencies.

For a bibliography on further reading, you can get an excellent free pamphlet, "Day Care References," from: Association for Childhood Education International, 3615 Wisconsin Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016.

Farm Pond Excitement and Challenge Often Overlooked

By ROY M. CLARK
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Missourians often brag about the many things to do in this state thanks to nature. But man has created a place in every county where an outdoor enthusiast can enjoy himself.

If that individual happens to be a fisherman, then the place is a farm pond.

With the owner's permission and a little luck, any fisherman can be treated to some entertaining angling. The small farm pond can and often does offer some pleasant surprises. Many so-called fishermen have overlooked local ponds and driven dozens of miles to large lakes only to come home with an empty stringer.

The farm pond offers the angler many advantages. In addition to the usual relaxing benefits of fishing, a local pond can save the fisherman time and money spent traveling to those distant locations.

A knowledgeable angler can often visit a pond that he knows has been stocked with a particular species of fish. For example, if channel cat are sought for the dinner table, and there is an available pond which specializes in that delicious fish, the fisherman has a good chance of satisfying his appetite.

Variety Available

Most ponds are home for several species including largemouth bass, channel catfish, and a variety of sunfish, a popular line-up with anglers. These fish are susceptible to a number of baits.

Bass are often tempted by slowly-worked topwater lures which make some noise. However, plastic worms are also effective if retrieved very slowly with an occasional jerk of the rod. Purple is a popular color for a plastic worm with pinks and reds successful at times.

Channel catfish will take several baits including earthworms, crayfish, liver and minnows. Occasionally, they will even hit an artificial lure.

A smaller, more delicate touch is usually needed for sunfish. An earthworm suspended beneath a bobber can be quite entertaining as most members of the sunfish group hit hard and are fighters for their size. Small popping bugs are also handy tackle box equipment.

A bit of precaution should be taken by the pond angler. Fish in clear ponds can be spooked easily and it is often necessary to crawl on all fours to get in position. Most fish prefer some sort of cover and weedbeds provide good places to cast.

There are other hazards to watch for, such as ticks and mosquitoes. It is generally wise to take along some type of repellent. It also pays to watch where one walks, since ponds are favored by water moccasins.

Another Problem

Sometimes getting from the car to the pond can be a problem. Most farmers have some cattle nearby and Mr. Black Angus might prove to be more moody than the fish. When the fish are moody nothing happens; when the bull gets his dander up, angler's legs must be in good running condition. The best advice is to chart a safe path to and from the pond.

A courteous angler will assure himself a place to fish by keeping the pond's owner in a good mood. The way to do this is to always ask permission before going to the pond, keep the pond as litter-free as possible, and to thank the owner when leaving. Sometimes thanks can best be said by offering the owner part of the catch.

Despite a farmer's good intentions, many farm ponds are ruined each year. A pond is an ecosystem possessing a very delicate balance. Any of several factors can upset this balance and cause poor fishing.

The amount of plant life in the pond is a key to maintaining proper balance between the predator (bass) and his prey (bluegill). The amount of this cover can work for the good or bad of the system.

There are two basic types of plant life found in a pond, a filament-type algae, commonly called moss, and pond weeds which have leaves, sterns and roots. This plant life provides cover for fish, a place to rest and a place of safety. It also harbors food in the form of insects.

Growth Stops

Plants need sunlight or nutrients to grow. Excessive clear water or runoff from fertilized fields or feed lots can spur growth. This causes imbalance because the bluegill have more places to hide from bass. The bass population will not necessarily dwindle as a result. Larry Belusz, fisheries biologist for the Missouri Conservation Commission, said the fish will survive but will not grow.

Erosion from surrounding fields adds to the problems by filling ponds. The effect is a more shallow pond which gives plants easy access to sunlight.

Belusz said proper balance is hard to measure, but for an average well-balanced pond, there should be 50 pounds of bass and 500 to 1,000 pounds of bluegill per acre.

Belusz explained the greatest threat a pond faces is overfishing for bass. "People don't realize a half-acre pond has only so many bass," he said. With the 10 fish limit set by the state, two anglers in one day can nearly wipe out the bass population in a half-acre pond. The farmer should be aware of this fact and take proper action if he wishes to maintain a stable bass population.

The farmer can also help by not allowing his stock direct access to the pond. Cattle stir up mud which makes it difficult for bass to see their prey. Again the result is a bass population which doesn't grow.

Belusz said the Conservation Commission will not stock a pond smaller than five acres unless it is fenced off so that domestic animals cannot get to the pond.

It may take some efrort to stock a pond but none is needed to get plant life started. Spores and seeds are carried by wind or running water into the pond and begin growing. Belusz said even a small piece of some dried plants on fishing gear is sufficient to start plants.

Belusz said this spring's erratic temperatures and continually changing water levels will likely have ill effects on bass populations in many ponds. This year's conditions will give a poor hatch of bass eggs meaning there will be no young replacements for bass taken from the pond. Belusz said the effect could be felt for five years.

A farm pond can be a fisherman's delight, yet without careful management it can quickly become an exasperating situation for the angler who remembers how good it once was.

This Is Nice

John Chancellor, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ellis, 1710 South Brown, takes it easy and waits for the fish to bite at a farm pond south of Sedalia. Ponds are home for a wide variety of fish, but are often overlooked by fishermen who consider these areas as not productive. However, there are those, like John, who know better.

Freak Accident Is Fatal for One Man

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP) — Bernard B. Caruse, 56, was killed here Friday as he was preparing to move out of his house to a farm he recently purchased near Scrento, Ill.

Police said Caruse was cutting the ends from 55-gallon drums with a cutting torch when one of the drums exploded, throwing him backward and causing him to strike his head on a steel work bench.

Police said Caruse had planned to use the drums for packing for his move to the farm.

'Empty' Gun Kills A Missouri Man

GLASGOW VILLAGE, Mo. (AP) — David Fricker, 23, placed what he believed to be an empty gun at his head, pulled the trigger and killed himself here Friday.

Police said Fricker was playing with the .38-caliber derringer in the front seat of his car and had unloaded it. Witnesses told police Fricker jokingly placed the gun to his head and pulled the trigger. The gun went off, killing Fricker instantly, police said.

Local Juveniles Are Captured After Escape

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS — Two Sedalia juveniles temporarily escaped the Watkins Mills Park Camp for boys four miles north of here Friday morning.

The two were among three boys who attempted to escape the camp about 9:30 a.m. Friday. One youth was caught by staff members before getting away. The Highway Patrol found the other two and returned them only an hour and a half after they escaped.

The camp is in Watkins Mills State Park and is under the direction of the Missouri State Board of Training Schools. Eighteen boys between the ages of 14 and 17 currently reside at the camp, and are there due to minor deliquencies.

Gary Weimholt, the park camp manager, told The Democrat-Capital the youths had been working in a group therapy situation whereby they had been allowed to move about the camp in groups as small as three without accompaniment. He said this peer group culture program has proven to be relatively effective in keeping youths from running away from the camp.

"It's a credit to the group that they've stopped them," Weimholt said in reference to earlier urges on the part of the Sedalia youths to run from the camp. They had been there just over one month, he said.

'Cyclist Is Hurt

Police investigated a car-motorcycle accident at 10:27 a.m. Saturday at Seventh and Osage. According to reports, a 1951 Triumph motorcycle driven south on Osage by James Joseph Wold, 126 South Park, collided with a 1973 Chevrolet driven by John K. Barber, Windsor.

The accident apparently occurred as Barber, northbound on Osage, attempted a left turn onto Seventh. The report said Wolf saw what was happening in time to jump off the motorcycle before the collision. Wolf suffered several bruises to his right leg.

Walking High

United Penecostal Church, 17th and Lamine, had its March for Missions Walk-a-thon Saturday. About 35 walkers were in the twelth mile of their 20-mile goal when this picture was taken. They started about 6:30 a.m. and hoped to finish by sunset. Goal for the activity was $1,200. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Weekend Accidents Are Fatal

A Climax Springs man and an elderly Independence resident were victims of traffic accidents in central Missouri Friday and Saturday.

According to the Missouri Highway Patrol, Gordon Lee Arnold, 65, Independence, died in a near head-on collision at 12:20 p.m. Saturday on Route AA, 3.7 miles east of Route B north of Tipton.

The Patrol said Arnold was driving east in his 1965 Chevrolet when he collided with a 1970 Dodge pickup truck driven west by Kenneth Shehorn, 18, Tipton. The Patrol reported both cars, which were demolished, were apparently over the center line of the roadway when the accident occurred.

Injured in the mishap were Arnold's wife, who was taken to Still Hospital, Jefferson City, with disabling injuries, the Patrol said. Shehorn reportedly suffered minor injuries in the accident, it was learned.

No citations were issued in connection with the collision.

Arnold's body was taken to the Conn Funeral Home, Tipton.

A Climax Springs man, Royal Keith Husong, 49, drowned in a creek near Camdenton after the car he was driving ran off the roadway and plunged into a creek, the Patrol said.

The accident reportedly occurred about 9:20 p.m. Friday on Lake Road 713 not quite two miles north of Highway 7. Husong's 1963 Chevrolet was heading north when it left the right side of the road and plunged into the creek. Husong was pronounced dead at the scene by the Camden County Coroner who listed the official cause of death as drowning.

The Patrol reported Husong's car was damaged on the right side and undercarriage. The car reportedly came to rest on its right side. Two other persons, apparently passengers in the car, escaped uninjured, according to the Patrol.

Husong's body was taken to the Reed Funeral Home, Camdenton.

Mr. Arnold was born August 19, 1907, in Cooper County, the son of the late Jake and Edna Shrout.

He is survived by his wife; two sisters, Mrs. J.A. Carber, Sedalia; and Mrs. Gladys Parkhurst, Nevada, Mo.; one brother, Norman Arnold, Sedalia; one step-son Howard Hodges of Clarksburg.

Mr. Arnold was a member of the Oakland Baptist Church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the church with the Rev. Frank Cevers officiating.

Music will be by Mrs. Orville Courtney, accompanied by Mrs. Stanley Palmer.

Mr. Arnold's nephews will be the pallbearers.

Burial will be in Hickman Cemetery in Clarksburg.

Hypodermic Needles Taken in Break-in

Sedalia police reported a break-in at the Doctors Building, 500 West 16th, which occurred sometime early Saturday morning.

The extent of property taken was unknown at presstime but police did report that 100 hypodermic needles were taken from the office of Dr. J.W. Boger.

Police said entry was apparently gained by prying open the front door. All three doctors' offices were ransacked and all medicine in the refrigerators had been moved, it was reported.

Wanda Randall, 220 West Saline, reported to police Friday evening the theft of a garden tiller from a garage at her home. It was valued at $125.

Slightly Injured In Two-Car Crash

Police reported a two car collision occurred at 4:22 p.m. Saturday at Ninth and Hancock when a 1970 Volkswagon heading east on Ninth and driven by Phillis Ann Petree, 24, Route 1, collided with a 1968 Ford driven North on Hancock by Patrick Edward Wagner Jr., 17, 644 East 10th.

According to police reports the two drivers apparently did not see each other coming until it was too late.

Passengers in the Petree vehicle were Connie Crank, 23, 715 East Ninth, and her 18-month-old son Faron, and Sabrina Shelley, 14, 1815 South Kentucky.

All passengers in the Petree car were treated and released from Bothwell Hospital.

Motorist Not Thanked For Efforts

A Holden resident received little thanks for his Good Samaritan efforts Saturday.

According to the Highway Patrol, Daniel Keating had just gotten off work at the Leed's assembly plant in Kansas City and was driving to his western Johnson County home when he stopped to offer assistance to a woman whose car was stalled.

Keating told the Patrol he offered to drive the woman and three children with her to a service station, but just before reaching the station the woman pulled what appeared to be a small pistol and ordered him to keep driving.

So Keating drove, first east on Highway 50 to the intersection of Broadway and Limit in Sedalia, then south on Highway 65 before turning off on a gravel road near Fristoe south of Warsaw. At that point, Keating related, he was told by the woman to get out of the car which she drove south with her three children.

The Patrol reported Saturday night that Keating's car was found abandoned at the Springfield Municipal Airport, but that no passenger matching the woman's description had apparently boarded a flight there.

The Patrol said the car abandoned by the woman in Johnson County was registered to a Lee's Summit woman, whose picture Keating identified as the woman who had taken his car.

The Patrol and Greene County law enforcement officers were continuing their search for the woman and her three children Saturday night.

Watergate Is Decried

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP)–The Watergate scandal is "a sad culmination of events" which began with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 and "things have been going downhill since then," Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., told fellow Democrats here Saturday.

Speaking at a morning brunch, the junior senator said the mail he has received reflects "a distinct loss of confidence by the people in the quality of government they are getting."

Eagleton's speech came at the beginning of the second annual Democrat Days celebration, a two-day party rally featuring parades and speeches.

Prior to the senator's remarks, David Donnelly, state party chairman, announced the appointment of Will W. Davis, 55, news secretary to former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, as the new executive director of the Missouri State Democratic Committee.

"He was the first and unanimous choice of the executive committee," Donnelly told reporters. Davis will direct the state committee staff in "new directions based on traditional strengths of the Missouri Democratic party," Donnelly added.

Deadline Nearing For Special Class

Dick Battles, Sedalia-Pettis County counselor on problem drinking, said Saturday that Monday is the last day to enroll in a new course at State Fair Community College that deals with alcohol and alcoholism. Battles earlier emphasized that the course is geared for teachers, laymen, ministers and others, and not for alcoholics.

He said the first class will begin at 6:30 p.m. and prospective students may enroll up to that time. At least eight students must be enrolled in order for the course to be held. I'd like to see 15 attend the class so that I could give them personal attention," he said. Battles will teach the class.

AS DIRECTED

Sometimes you will see this on the label of your prescription in place of specific instructions for taking the medicine. It is there because your physician has already told you how he wants you to use the prescription. With some medicines we will double check with you to be sure you have the directions correct.

It is also important to remember that "as directed" today may not be the same two months from now and you should be careful to check with your physician before requesting a prescription be refilled after much time has elapsed.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine and we will gladly deliver it without charge. If you prefer you may pick it up at our drive up window. We keep accurate records for tax and insurance purposes. We carefully fill welfare prescriptions and deliver or mail free of charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. —BELTONE HEARING AID SERVICE

Our reputation is on the line

We sincerely want to provide the best possible service to the hearing handicapped of this area. We ask, therefore, that you get in touch with us if you have a problem with a hearing aid — Beltone or any other make.

If you feel you are not getting full benefit from your aid, please bring it in to our offices and let us clean it and make any minor adjustments that may be needed. Often, that's all it takes to get a quality hearing aid back into good operating condition, and we're happy to do it without charge.

If you'd rather just sit down and talk about your hearing problem and some of the ways hearing problems can be helped today, we'll take the time to do it. And again, we'll do it without any charge whatsoever.

Every one of us at the Beltone Hearing Aid Service feels that every unsolved hearing problem and every unresolved complaint could affect our reputation. We also feel our first responsibility is to provide better hearing to everyone with a hearing problem. If you are not getting full benefit from your hearing aid or the full range of service you need, call or stop in at our Belton office. We'll make every effort to show you the better way to better hearing.

Question

Arranging pall bearers for my father's funeral will be difficult because most of his friends have passed away. Will you be able ot help us with this problem?

Answer

Serving as pall bearer at the funeral of a friend is one of the most solemn and respectful things we do as adults in our human relations with each other. When friends are available to serve as bearers, we contact them from a list furnished to us by the family. We advise the bearers of the time and place of the funeral service and furnish their transportation to the cemetery and return. There is never a charge for these services at our chapel.

An Era Comes to a Close When New City Hall Opens

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

On June 21, city officials are scheduled to make their final climb up the splintered red steps leading to offices on the second floor.

However, they won't be staging a walk-out. Rather, that gabled brick building at Second and Osage, which has housed nearly a century of city commercial and governmental operations, will shut down.

For the past year, the structure, which has been "city hall" to at least four generations of Sedalians, has been standing in the construction shadow of its $750,000 successor. Soon, the weathered landmark will fall prey to that razing-and-rubble syndrome that has been the fate of other older buildings across the country.

But while the building will be destroyed in a matter of days, the memories associated with it will die a much harder death.

Richard Battles, Sedalia-Pettis County counselor on problem drinking, will be moving with other officials to the new, air-conditioned, carpeted surroundings. However, his memories of the old building go far beyond the past five years he has shared second-floor office space with other city employes.

The Old. . .

City Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison (left) joins his assistant Nelson Lee in observing the peeling plaster and wallpaper on the wall of the city hall building that he condemned five years ago.

Used as a Market

"They called this place the 'market place' years ago," he recalled. "I remember they had merchandise of all sorts on sale here on the ground floor in the open market tradition. I remember once I bought a flock of pigeons, so you know they had a variety of things for sale."

W.A. McVey, 1011 South Murray, remembered that "they also had beef hanging outside and one time they even had bear meat for sale there."

Governmentally speaking, Battles recalled another incident which he observed as a young reporter for The Sedalia Capital.

"I remember one incident they had years ago, but I don't recall what the situation was. I do know, though, that the council chamber was packed, the hallway leading to it was packed and the people were lined up clear around the corner outside. That time, I saw the staircase sink at least 18 inches under the weight of the crowd. It nearly scared me to death because I was right in the middle of them."

Although he's not sure, Glen Kell Sr., 307 East Jackson, a city councilman for six years in the early 1920's, believes the incident referred to by Battles was probably a circuit court murder case which was transferred to the City Council chambers following the burning of the Pettis County courthouse in 1920.

"It was a very controversial case because a youth was accused of murdering a prominent citizen," Kell said. "Claude Wilkerson was the defense lawyer and was one of the best in Sedalia at that time. The trial lasted a couple of days and it got to where people weren't allowed in the city hall because of the crowded conditions."

When Kell assumed office in 1921, the bottom floor of the building was still serving as a merchandising center with the offices of the city clerk and collector occupying the space now used by City Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison and City Engineer Robert Cunningham.

No Mayor's Office

As for the Mayor's headquarters?

"It was wherever he could find a chair," Kell laughed. "He moved around a lot in those days."

Fourth Ward Councilman George Dugan Jr. will view the demolition drama from a uniquely personal perspective ... his great-grandfather, George Ernest Dugan, supervised construction of the structure's west wing, which was added in 1898.

However, another member of the Dugan family indicated, he really didn't have that much to say about his accomplishment.

"I remember they had his name over the door for a number of years, but that's been a while ago," recalled Councilman Dugan's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Ripley, 1002 South Ohio. "I really don't recall his mentioning it at all."

Reflecting the city's growth over the past years, various offices have changed location and several new positions, each demanding space in the building, have been added. To recount each such move or addition would be both tedious and prone to error.

However, a few changes have occurred at the building that have had a particularly emphatic or memorable impact on the lives (or, in one case, the feet) of many Sedalians.

Sedalians who can think back at least 12 years, for example, probably remember having to walk upstairs to pay their city taxes or buy their car stickers. On their way downstairs, they could stop in at the police station, located where the offices of the city clerk and collector are now situated.

If these same readers could take an even longer jog down memory lane, they may recall spending an evening at city hall in the 1950's to meet their friends at "Teen Town," located where the police storage room is now.

And, if they lived through Depression, they'll probably recall working in or perhaps visiting the Works Progress Administration (WPA) canning plant located in the first floor city hall offices.

So much for the memories. In fact, City License Inspector Bob Brown has a hard time getting the least bit nostalgic about the impending doom of the building that has been condemned by Garrison as "unfit for human habitation" since 1968.

"I'll just be glad to get into our new offices," he said while eyeing a hole in the false ceiling of his office. "I think this old building's about served her time."

And the New

Standing in the center of what will soon be the new City Council chambers and municipal court room, Police Chief William Miller, Industrial Development Director Bill Hall and Mayor Jerry Jones cast an approving eye at their new surroundings which they hope to move into this month.

Last Payment Is Made To Area Schools

The last in a series of four State Department of Education payments to county schools was received Friday by the Pettis County treasurer's office.

County Treasurer Virgil Houchens said the payments for the fourth quarter are as follows:

Blackwater R-1: $3,253; Hughesville R-5: $28,075; LaMonte R-4: $33,912; Smithton R-6: $53,143; Green Ridge R-8: $36,052; Dresden R-12: $2,730; Sedalia No. 200: $403,335.

The total amount of money each school received from the state for the 1972-73 school year under this payment program is as follows:

Blackwater R-1: $13,779; Hughesville R-5: $118,838; LaMonte R-4: $143,331; Smithton R-6: $224,862; Green Ridge R-8; $13,779; Hughesville R-5: $118,838; LaMonte R-4: $143,331; Smithton R-6: $224,862; Green Ridge R-8: $152,536; Dresden R-12: $11,576; Sedalia No. 200: $1,671,438. Houchens said the total amount received by all county schools is $2,336,360.

WHITEMAN AFB — Several hundred spectators turned out at Friday's open house here to see Col. Charles W. Parker accept command of the 351st Strategic Missile Wing from Col. William J. Grossmiller III, who is retiring.

Included in the change-of-command ceremony was a static display of Air Force aircraft ranging from sleek top-of-the-line fighter aircraft to older, bulkier troop transports; a 65-foot minuteman Missile, army helicopters and firefighting equipment. Also included was a judo exhibition and a show demonstrating the efficiency of the security police military dogs.

Highlight of the ceremony was a parade featuring the 36-piece Second Air Force Band from Barksdale AFB, La., and several hundred airmen who passed-in-review in honor of their former commander and their new one.

Col. Parker was previously vice-commander of the wing, deputy commander for maintenance and the Missile Maintenance Squadron commander.

Commissioned in November, 1944, and trained on B-29's, Col. Parker served with the 20th Air Force until his release from active duty in 1946.

After being recalled in 1951, he was assigned to various operational positions with Strategic Air Command (SAC) bomber wings until 1961.

Following service as a missile plans officer for SAC until 1966, he was assigned to Headquarters USAFE (Europe) where he developed a new concept in command control that is now standard Air Force policy for all bases.

An active worker in youth programs and the boy scouts, Col. Parker and his wife Ruth have two sons, Ronald and Donald, both now serving in the Air Force.

Determined to View Summit Meeting as One of Success

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is making a determined effort to dispel notions that President Nixon's summit talks with French President Georges Pompidou were anything less than a total success.

As President Nixon flew here Friday from two days of talks with Pompidou in Iceland, his assistant Henry A. Kissinger told reporters aboard the plane, "We achieved what we set out to do."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, chatting separately with reporters, was similarly confident, saying: "It went very well. It lived up to our expectations."

Kissinger, who has rarely voiced serious criticism of the news media, contended "the press had the wrong image" about the Reykjavik talks. Some newsmen who covered the summit, on the other hand, came away with the impression that French officials had done a more zealous job of providing information about the discussions.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler said the summit was never designed to produce agreements on such knotty problems as trade, monetary reform, the wisdom of a super summit of the Atlantic community or adoption of a "new Atlantic charter."

Kissinger said Nixon had achieved a goal of setting up procedures for negotiations aimed at reshaping and modernizing the alliance, including a deputy foreign ministers conference that could be held as early as July "to pull all these things together."

As Nixon left Iceland, one French spokesman was telling reporters the meeting of deputy foreign ministers would involve only France and the United States.

Kissinger said, however, he was "absolutely certain" that when the French "study the records" of the Rejkjavik summit they will see that their spokesman was not well informed.

Kissinger also talked to newsmen aboard the plane about the June 18 26 visit of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, predicting it will produce new steps toward disarmament and a speed-up of commercial contacts between the two super powers. While in the United States, Brezhnev plans to make a nationally televised address, probably a half hour in length. Nixon made a similar live TV talk to audiences in the Soviet Union and the United States when he visited Moscow a year ago.

Kissinger said the general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, who will be accompanied by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, will travel to Nixon's California home following talks here.

In discussing the meetings with Pompidou, Rogers said he had noted that past exchanges between the United States and France have been marked by "little edges." At Reykjavik, he said, "there was less controversy ... less sharpness in comment than in any meeting with France before ... and I've had a lot of them." He described the atmosphere between the two presidents as "very good."

People in the News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Nebraska Gov. Norbert R. Tiemann has taken office as federal highway administrator, in charge of overseeing federal aid to the states for highway planning and construction.

Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar administered the oath of office Friday.

Tiemann succeeds Francis C. Turner, who retired last June 30 as head of the Federal Highway Administration.

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Princess Anne is in West Germany, but apparently not to see her army-officer fiance, who is stationed in the northern part of the country.

The Princess was met Friday at Stuttgart airport by her cousin, Kraft Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg, a nephew of Princess Anne's father, Prince Philip. The prince's wife said from the family's castle near Crailsheim that "nothing special" was planned for the weekend.

In London, Buckingham Palace said the Princess was not going to see Lt. Mark Phillips, who is competing this weekend in an equestrian event in West Berlin, according to tournament sponsors.

The engagement of the Princess and Phillips was announced this week.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Former POW Hubert Clifford Walker and his wife Jana have been granted a divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

Mrs. Walker filed divorce proceedings before Walker, an Air Force captain, was released after five years in a North Vietnamese prison camp. He filed a countersuit.

Mrs. Walker won custody of their two daughters, with Walker to pay $100 a month support for each child until they reach 18.

Drive-In Theater Rejected By Church

WAYNESBORO, Pa. (AP) — Members of the Christ United Methodist Church are looking for a new site for early-morning Sunday services.

The church board said it will no longer conduct services at the Red Run Drive-In theater because it shows X-rated movies.

The Franklin County church held the early service at the theater as a convenience for Sunday golfers and others. Regular services are conducted in the church.

Better Opportunities Lured Manager to Sedalia

New Manager

James Abbas, the new manager of Sedalia Airport, sits at the controls of his Cessna 310 after arriving in Sedalia Friday morning. Abbas, a veteran flier with close to 4,500 flying hours, will fill the vacancy created by the death of Dale Lane, former manager of the airport.

By DAVID HAMBY
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The new manager of the Sedalia Airport, James Leroy Abbas, 42, arrived in Sedalia Friday morning.

Abbas, who formerly lived in Raymore, Mo., operated Abbas Aviation, Inc., in Independence, offering rental, charter and flight instruction as well as aircraft sales and maintenance.

Abbas told The Democrat-Capital Friday that he had heard some time ago that there might be an opening for a manager at the Sedalia airport and discussed the matter briefly with Bill Burkholder, chairman of the airport board.

After hearing of the death of airport manager Dale Lane, Abbas again contacted Burkholder, presented a resume and met with four members of the airport board. Based upon this interview, according to Abbas, he was accepted as manager.

When asked why he decided to take the job here, Abbas explained that he was not satisfied with the conditions of the airport where he had been located since 1969. He said that the grounds, including the runway, were all gravel and there is a severe drainage problem at the Independence airport. He added that he had been looking for a more suitable location for about two years.

Likes Local Facility

Abbas said that he was very satisfied with the facilities at Sedalia Airport and "it looks like it is going to be one of the best in the area after the improvements are completed. I feel that there is a great growth potential in this area," he added.

The new manager has no present plans for making any major changes in facilities or policy at the airport.

"I haven't given a lot of thought to changes," he stated, "Coming in cold like this, it would be premature to change policies. Of course if I find something that I consider unsafe, I'll certainly approach the board and get the problem corrected."

Abbas' qualifications for the job are quite impressive with a background in aviation dating back to 1947.

"As a child, I was always fascinated by aircraft," said Abbas. "I had a job working in the hayfields for 35 cents an hour. I'd save the money and on weekends I would take flying lessons at Ong Airport in Raytown."

Began at Early Age

After he soloed in 1948 at age 17, Abbas put in some college time at Warrensburg and then joined the service, in armor, oddly enough. He didn't become active again in flying until 1955 when he attended the Spartan School of Aeronautics in Tulsa, Okla.

From 1958 to 1961 he worked with Northwest-Orient Airlines in Seattle, Washington as a line mechanic. The years 1961 through 1962 saw him with Boeing as a structural test engineer for the 727 plane series. He turned down a recall by Northwest-Orient in 1962 and moved to Raymore.

From 1963 to 1969 he put in reserve time with the 442nd Troop Carrier Wing out of Richards-Gebauer AFB, Kansas City, with the rank of master sergeant. Working as a loadmaster, Abbas made frequent cargo flights to Southeast Asia during the Vietnam buildup.

After being relieved from active duty in 1969, he opened his own flying service in Independence.

Abbas said that he will have the same services in Sedalia that he offered in Independence, but he will also include air-ambulance services. Abbas Aviation, which has four aircraft, will also provide flight training, with Abbas as the chief instructor.

Abbas and his wife, Barbara, and their children Pamela, 15, and Craig, 13, will reside at Heritage Village Mobile Home Park.

The Great Bedtime Story

By WILL STANTON

I've always liked the story about the miller who had a fine house with broad fields and fat cattle. His mill was overrun with rats so he got a cat to kill the rats. When he died, the eldest son inherited the house and fields. The second son inherited the mill and the youngest son got the cat. This son was me.

I took the cat and went out to seek my fortune. I didn't find it. My wife, Cindy, says forget the fortune and look for a job. She has a negative personality because of her childhood. Her stepmother and her stepsisters made her do all the work and sleep in the ashes. If I've heard the story once I've heard it a thousand times. I wouldn't mind, except she keeps calling them the good old days.

Our daughter Goldie has this real long blond hair. That's about it. The other girl, Beauty, spends all her time spinning straw. Cindy says look at all we save on clothes. Maybe so, I told her, but I've about had it with straw underwear. It rustles.

One day our son Jack traded our cow for a handful of beans. "Jack," I said, "just what was your thinking on this deal?" He mumbled something I couldn't understand. "You're not a cow trader," I told him, "you're a giant killer. Stick to what you know best." He said he would.

That evening he planted his beans in a flowerpot and the next morning the beanstalks had gone right through the roof. I chopped them down, but they left a hole an eagle could fly through. "Jack," I said, "next time before you do anything, check with me." He said he would.

The fact is all three kids are underachievers. I went down in the cellar the other day and found Beauty spinning away and there wasn't anything coming off the wheel. I asked what she thought she was doing. Making a suit for the emperor she told me. The generation gap may be bigger than we think.

Then there was the time Goldie washed her hair and hung it out the window to dry and some fellow climbed up it. She claimed that was how he came to be in her bedroom.

"Goldie," I said, "I'm your father, you don't have to lie to me."

"It's the truth," she said. She showed me a place on her hair that had grease and tar on it from his shoes. "And right after I'd washed it too," she said.

Beauty almost got married once to a beast she met at a Stanley party, but Cindy broke up the match.

I told her she should keep out of it. "Maybe he won't win any prizes for looks and he knocks things over with his tail, but he's loaded. Got a big palace with rose gardens and all."

"No daughter of mine is going to marry a beast," she said, "and that's final."

"I don't know where she's going to do any better."

Cindy had that stubborn look. "She's not going to make the same mistake I did," she said.

Well, I could go on but I hate to sound like a complainer. I mean when you're raising a couple of daughters you expect little ups and downs from time to time. I just wanted to show that every family has its problems, but they can be solved if you have faith, and look for the bright side. Then if everybody does his share, we can all work together for a happier tomorrow. I think if our family can do it, anybody can.

I lost the battle, but I think I won the war.

Price Rigging Claim Is Scheduled for Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department investigation into alleged price rigging during last summer's grain sales to Russia has been turned over to the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution.

A Justice spokesman Friday confirmed that the department's criminal fraud division had been given the results of the investigation conducted by the Commodity Exchange Authority.

The CEA, a branch of the Agriculture Department, oversees the nation's commodity markets. For the past nine months it has been checking reports that grain-futures traders might have rigged prices on the Kansas City commodity market last July so they could qualify for larger government export subsidies.

There was no immediate indication what, if anything, the CEA probe had disclosed. Dr. Alexander Swantz, associate administrator of CEA, said only that the findings had been forwarded "for further investigation.

The CEA probe is the second investigation into allegations of price manipulation concerning the grain deal. The Kansas City Board of Trade, which runs the market, conducted its own investigation but found no wrongdoing.

The investigation centered on the possibility that traders may have raised the closing price of wheat by placing large purchase orders just before the market closed each day. Since the government figured its export subsidies on the basis of the previous day's closing prices, a higher closing price meant a bigger subsidy the following day.

In a two month period—from July 3 to Aug. 31—the price of wheat at Kansas City jumped 44 cents per bushel. The export subsidy rose 42 cents.

The Agriculture Department originally estimated it would pay out $67 million in export subsidies last summer. Instead it paid out $300 million.

The subsidies, designed to make American grain competitive on the world market, are no longer in effect. The Agriculture Department discontinued them last September after deciding to let the world price of wheat find its own level.

Two Youths Killed By a Pickup Truck

LEBANON, Mo. (AP) — Two Lebanon youths were killed by a pickup truck Friday night as they ran from a driveway onto a county road nine miles southeast of Lebanon.

The highway patrol said they were David Deselms, 17, and Michell Randolph, 18.

Pedestrian Rights

By ROBERT BRAULT

In city driving, half the battle is to know your pedestrian. The other half is not to let what you know get to you.

Let's look at the average pedestrian at the crossing signal. When the signal says WALK, the pedestrian crosses. When the signal says WAIT or DON'T WALK, the pedestrian crosses. When the signal says WA T or D NT ALK, the pedestrian becomes so confused that he immediately crosses.

At a regular traffic light, the pedestrian crosses on the green. He also crosses on the yellow. When the light is red, the pedestrian crosses. At an intersection where there is no light, the pedestrian crosses if he arrives first. If the motorist arrives first, the pedestrian crosses.

If a pedestrian takes one step into the street and the light changes against him, he continues to cross — only more slowly.

To be honest, not all pedestrians cross against the light at intersections. Some pedestrians cross between intersections. You can tell a jaywalker by the bump he makes as your front wheels go over him. Years ago, pedestrians used to jaywalk indiscriminately. Today, thanks to pedestrian education programs and NO JAYWALKING laws, pedestrians only jaywalk when they want to cross the street.

There are two ways to avoid hitting jaywalkers. One way is to drive only at intersections. The other way is to drive on the sidewalk. As long as pedestrians are allowed to walk in the street, there is no reason why motorists cannot drive on the sidewalk. I told that to the judge, too.

Officials Regard Fuel Pinch Close To Hopeless In Regard To Farming

By RICHARD J. OLJVE
Associated Press Writer

Federal officials close to farming in the Midwest regard the fuel pinch with the optimism of Muddville that day when Mighty Casey came to bat.

"I feel confident that regardless of who does it, someone's going to make sure there's enough fuel for agriculture," said Frank Mosier, director of the Agricultural, Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) at Manhattan, Kan.

But June for agriculture is the opening of the ninth inning. Fuel crises are beginning to show in widespread areas of Mid-America and frantic suppliers still don't know what to tell more frantic farmers.

The comparative calm displayed by ASCS agents stems primarily from the first tentative step of the Nixon administration's voluntary allocation program. It placed agriculture and food production in general on the highest priority. Each state ASCS office is charged with keeping Washington atop fuel problems as they arise. The indication has been that if the voluntary measures prove ineffective, mandatory provisions are inevitable.

But as close as ASCS offices are to this new beast, the fuel crisis, it is in such a state of flux that it defies projection. As a spokesman at the ASCS office in Des Moines said, "When weather clears and everybody gets back into the fields these things can develop overnight. All we can do is get the reports in and get them to Washington."

The weather has demonstrated all along it can change the complexion of the situation in short time. It reared the crisis last fall with an early freeze and subsequent wet conditions, placing heavy demands on natural gas and diesel fuel in Iowa and Nebraska for heating living quarters and drying grains.

The weather, a bane to many farmers everywhere this spring, was kind enough to provide some immediate short-term relief to Nebraskans last weekend, particularly in the Sand Hills where fuel reserves might otherwise be now exhausted. The rain made it unnecessary to operate the extensive network of irrigation pumps.

But over the long haul the pumps brought in to help Nebraska farmers reap bumper crops are bringing the state to a crisis that appears more serious than some of its neighbors.

Much of Nebraska's soil is sandy, requiring considerable irrigation because of its inability to maintain moisture. Paul Sindt, ASCS director at Lincoln, said many counties have as many as 100 new irrigation systems operating this year. However, as elsewhere, suppliers are limited to 1972 levels on fuel.

"We estimate the state will need 25 per cent more fuel than last year (for the irrigation system)," Sindt said.

Fuel was reported particularly short in Brown, Rock, Holt and Keya Paha counties in north-central Nebraska; depleted supplies appeared even more imminent for more than 200 farmers in the Scottsbluff area in the western part of the state.

In Kansas, problems were being referred to the ASCS office at Manhattan. There is evidence of some fuel hoarding and farmers in at least one county, anxious to build up some surplus with June 1 allocations, were unable to find storage tanks for sale.

The shortage appeared less pressing in Iowa and Missouri — the latter helped by a special 800,000-gallon allocation from Gulf Oil Co. —and least serious in Oklahoma.

The comparatively favorable picture across Oklahoma, however, is of little consolation to an estimated 50 farm customers in Texas County. They've been combing the countryside for fuel to accomplish work demanded by their wheat and milo fields. The closing last year of a Phillips 66 dealer at Adams left a Champlin outlet as the only local supplier. Eldo Schroeder, one of the operators, said the demands of regular customers and the former Phillips' clientele depleted the station's May allotment "about three weeks ago."

For Texas County farmers and others throughout Mid-America, the arrival of June promised at least temporary relief with deliveries of the month's allocations. But the heavy workload of the month presages special fuel problems in Missouri, Iowa and Oklahoma, where planting was far behind schedule. Many eastern counties in Kansas are even further behind because of excessive rainfall.

Then there are the overlapping demands on fuel reserves by late planting and early harvesting. A spokesman at Far-Mar-Co, the Hutchinson, Kan.-based co-operative, calls this "the sleeper."

At Scottsbluff, Neb., there is the prospect of no June allocation for Flaster Oil Co., which has 235 farm accounts.

Early in May, Farmland Industries Inc. advised the company its allocation was being cut off completely on June 3, Roger Flaster, president, said. Throughout May Flaster sought other supplies to no avail and carried his plea to Washington. Last Thursday he quoted Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., as reporting the senator had written to Farmland requesting a voluntary allocation for Flaster.

For the first time in its history, Farmland had cut off supplies to customers not associated with the 2,000-some local co-operatives in 15 states that make up the membership. Ken Neilson, executive vice president, said non-members accounted for approximately 20 per cent of the 450 million gallons of gasoline sold in the fiscal year that ended last August.

Farmland says it has been unable to acquire enough crude oil to keep its three refineries running at capacity.

The tight allocation schedule at local co-operatives throughout the Wheat Belt has caused added concern because of word custom combine crews won't stop at farms that don't guarantee enough fuel for the work.

In Kansas, where this year's wheat crop is expected to be 344 million bushels—nearly 30 million more than last year's record—Gov. Robert Docking's staff is making inquiries on the matter. Jack Hines, acting ASCS director in Oklahoma, said similar reports had filtered into the Sooner State and "local dealers are telling farmers that if they supply the combine crews, (the dealers) will charge it against sales they would have made to the farmers."

Here is the status of fuel supplies for agriculture in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri and Oklahoma as reported by ASCS offices in each state:

Nebraska — Some areas are critically short of fuel. It would seem the supply from regular sources will get many through the next couple of weeks, but no alternate supplies are known for the rest of the summer. The true test comes at the end of June when harvesting begins in southeast Nebraska and progresses across the state during July and the middle of August.

Kansas — Crisis spots have shown throughout the state. Many dealers have sold a high portion of their June allocation, making some areas especially susceptible to depletion in the latter part of June and July.

Iowa — There have been no confirmations of any farmer being held up for lack of fuel although some suppliers were cut short on expected May allocations.

Missouri — One area may be out of gasoline and another short of diesel fuel. But there have been no reports of farmers forced to shut down operations for an extended period.

Oklahoma — There have been some isolated cases of fuel problems affecting farmers. Last week there were indications the supply of diesel fuel is improving. Because of stockpiling by some farmers, there should be little problem completing the harvest.

In the United States during 1972, there were an estimated 56,300 motor-vehicle deaths.

Tours Of Alcatraz Planned

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "And that was Al Capone's cell, up there at the end, on the second tier."

The tour director was pointing to a steel cubicle where the late Chicago crime czar spent his years on Alcatraz, island home for 1,576 federal convicts for 29 years. It was closed in 1962.

The National Park Service, current overseers of the abandoned prison, plans to start public tours Nov. 1 after receiving thousands of requests from people curious to see the notorious penitentiary.

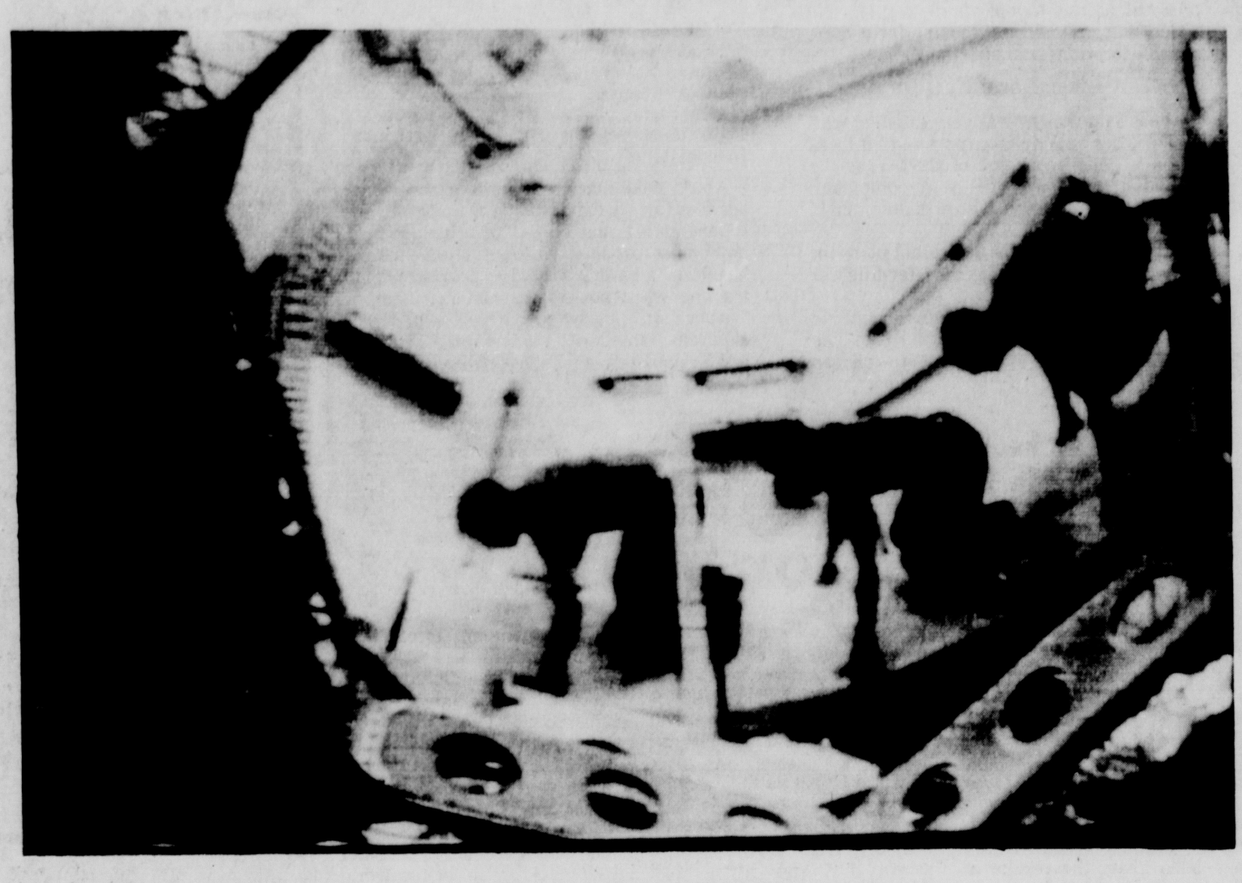
Behind the bars, locks, steel doors and gun walks once strode the elite of American crime. Besides Capone, there was Basil "The Owl" Banghart, Terrible Roger Touhy's triggerman; and Creepy Karpis, gunman, kidnaper and graduate of Ma Barker's Midwestern gang of the 1930s.

Reporters given a preview tour Thursday approached "The Rock" in San Francisco Bay from the west side, 2½ miles from the Golden Gate Bridge. Swift currents swirl around the rocky island, generating powerful surges on the shore that were a deterrent to escape.

The island is nearly choked with the wild growths of flowers, shrubs, grasses and trees planted over the years by the Army and later the families of guards who watched over the Alcatraz convicts. A glass greenhouse sits on a cliff nearly overgrown with weeds and has a million-dollar view of the San Francisco skyline.

Each cubicle in the cell areas measures 9-by-5 feet and is 7-feet high. Inside, inmates had a folding table and chair.

From this prison at least 25 prisoners tried to escape. Five were shot to death and at least 12 were recaptured before they made it into the water. In 1962, John Paul Scott, a Kentucky robber, made it all the way to shore — the first ever to have done it. He was recaptured.



Space Experience

Skylab 1 astronauts Paul J. Weitz, Charles "Pete" Conrad and Joseph P. Kerwin line up on the side of the space station to begin the "Skylab 500" for earth television viewers Friday. Locking their toes in the cracks between a ring of water tank lockers, they slowly push themselves into an upright position and virtually run around the inside wall of the orbiting laboratory. (UPI)

Agreement Ends Chance For Walkout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A nationwide strike by 6,000 Teamsters workers appears to have been averted when a tentative agreement was reached with Anheuser-Busch, Inc., here Friday.

An Anheuser-Busch spokesman said the tentative contract agreement was reached with the National Brewery Conference of the Teamsters Union, but that negotiations will resume on individual items at each of the company's eight plants in the country.

Contracts at all the plants expired at varying times this year.

Teamsters struck the brewery's Columbus, Ohio, plant when their contract expired at midnight Thursday. Police were called to the plant Friday morning when car windows were smashed and employes drove through picket lines.

Memorable Teaching Career Ends

Often, on the last day of school, it's hard to tell which group is happier ... the students or the teachers.

However, after talking this week with Sister Marcia, a teacher at Sacred Heart Elementary School, the difference was a little easier to discern. When she waved good-by to her last jubilant student, it was a gesture tinged with mixed emotions.

Continuing her full-time teaching career of just more than 50 years, at an age when many women are taking advantage of monthly pension payments, Sister Marcia is leaving Sacred Heart after 29 years of teaching there to become a tutor at a Catholic mission home in Dayton, Ohio.

"I feel both ways about my new duties," she said. "I've immensely enjoyed my years of teaching in Sedalia, but I'm also looking forward to my new duties."

Although she has taught a total of 29 years in Sedalia, Sister Marcia's local career has not been continuous. She first came to Sacred Heart in 1935 and, during the next 14 years, taught all six elementary grades. Later, she instructed five years at the old St. Joseph's school, a former all-Negro Catholic elementary school here. Following this, she resumed teaching at Sacred Heart for another five years.

Then, following a nine-year stint in Cincinnatti, she returned to Sedalia in 1968 and has taught for the past five years.

Although she has conducted an intermittent teaching career in Sedalia, she has managed to celebrate locally both her silver and golden jubilees as a nun and her 50th year of teaching.

Many Changes Noted

And, over the course of the past five decades, she has seen sweeping modernizations in both fields.

If she were beginning her career today, she explained, she would have a great deal more to say regarding her teaching assignments. Also, traveling rules themselves are more flexible than when she graduated as a noviatiate.

Admitting herself that she was "never one to automatically discourage change or improvement," Sister Marcia indicated that, on the whole, she believes the changes to be for the better.

"I believe the degree of freedom nuns have today is good so far as it helps them communicate more effectively and bring others closer to God," she said. "I think it's nice we can witness to other people in these ways."

But, in addition to new ideas regarding conduct, there's also, among other things, the new math, which Sister Marcia has learned to master.

Keeping Up to Date

"We, of course, maintain our traditional Christian teachings, but we also get approved new textbooks and keep up to date on new teaching methods," she said. "It's all part of our responsibility."

Asked to comment on her favorite or more memorable experiences while teaching in Sedalia, she replied, "I have so many beautiful memories and have met so many wonderful people, that I couldn't begin to mention them all."

Which is precisely why she declined to reveal even one incident.

"I wouldn't want to hurt anyone for the world and some people might feel this way if they were left out," she said. "I wouldn't want to mention one without discussing them all."

It was this sense of kindness and thoughtfulness, carried over to her relationship with her students, that no doubt prompted the following neatly-penciled note perched on her desk on the last day of school.

"Dear Sister Marcia," the note read. "I hope you have a nice time. I hope you will remember us. Have fun in Ohio and please send me some letters." Signed, Julie B.

Chances are, Julie will get them.

Former Suspect Is New Director

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Capt. Jack Patty, a St. Louis County police officer who was suspended on charges of collaborating with criminals in 1971, has been named head of the department's intelligence unit.

Police superintendent Gilbert H. Kleinknecht announced Patty's appointment Friday, saying that Capt. Patty will succeed Lt. Robert A. Crews as head of the Bureau of Investigation on Monday. Crews will remain as Patty's assistant, Kleinknecht said.

Patty was suspended by former Supt. Robert J. di Grazia for allegedly collaborating with criminals. He was cleared of all charges in circuit court and the suspension was lifted in February, 1972. The department paid Patty about $10,000 in back salary at that time.

Boy's Death Is Blamed on Drowning

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Norvell Taylor, 15, of St. Louis, died in a hospital Friday night about six hours after he was pulled from the city swimming pool. Death was attributed to drowning.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Taylor of 4208 West Lexington, St. Louis.

He had been staying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of Lawrence.

FDA Begins Follow-Up On Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting in the wake of reported medical problems, the Food and Drug Administration has begun investigating the manufacture and sale of IUDs—intrauterine contraceptive devices.

FDA officials, in their second day of testimony before a House inter-governmental relations subcommittee, said Friday 9,000 IUDs had been seized because of reports of difficult removals, bleeding, uterus perforations, pain and pregnancy. The products were Majzlin Springs IUDs manufactured by Anka Research Ltd., Jamaica, N.Y.

The FDA estimates that more than three million American women use about 30 types of IUDs marketed in this country.

The FDA said it needed additional authority to document fully reports of dissatisfaction and failure of the devices, which are inserted into the uterus.

Peter B. Hutt, FDA general counsel, said there had been great confusion within the agency between 1968 and 1972 over whether to regulate IUDs as drugs or medical devices.

He said classifying them as drugs—which was not done—would have required a lengthy testing period before they could be marketed.

Says Uproar Over Breakin Is a Threat

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst says the uproar of Watergate may be threatening to drown out the judicial system's historic concern for the protection of individual rights.

The televised Senate Watergate investigation hearings and news leaks from government attorneys and the FBI have created an atmosphere in which it would be hard to "imagine that any one of those persons could get a fair trial," Kleindienst told newsmen Friday.

Kleindienst said some persons are being asked to appear before TV cameras to discuss matters that ultimately may involve them in criminal proceedings.

Secret Contact Man Is Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Chinese diplomat who opened a liaison office this week in Washington served as a secret contact during a crucial period before President Nixon's trip to China.

Henry A. Kissinger said Friday that Huang Chen served as his go-between in July and August 1971 after Kissinger had secretly visited China to begin arrangements for the trip the President made in February 1972.

At that time, Huang Chen was posted in Paris and Kissinger, the President's foreign policy adviser, was making regular — although secret — trips to the French capital for Vietnam negotiations.

Supply Shortages Not Evident Here

Despite reported fertilizer shortages in some areas of the Midwest, local dealers say available supplies should not exceed the demand by area farmers this spring.

Some fertilizer retailers told The Democrat-Capital they have experienced temporary shortages of some types of fertilizer. But none indicated he has been unable to supply the product to users.

Dick Dalton, county executive director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, said his office has received no reports of farmers being unable to obtain fertilizer.

"We received a couple of reports from farmers who were unable to get the fertilizer from one dealer, but they were able to get it from another dealer the same day," Dalton said. "There have been no long-term delays reported."

Gaylon Alfrey, co-manager of Swift's Farm Center, 20th and Carr, said, "The longest time we've been out of fertilizer has been for a half day. This happened on two different occasions." Other shipments replenished his supplies.

Alfrey said his store has been out of certain types of sack fertilizer on occasion, but "we've always been able to substitute."

Norman Trautman, general manager of AG Co-op Services, Inc., Main and Washington, said his supply availability has "run nip and tuck." He added, "We're in fairly good shape, though."

Trautman and other dealers said their available supplies depend on how frequently the product is transported to the store.

"It has taken us seven to 10 days to get some shipments in where before it used to only take some three days," said Sam Young, manager of MFA Exchange, 2200 Clinton Road. "I don't think there's a scarcity of the product ... everybody has simply been wanting it at the same time."

A rainy season that extended from last fall to only a few weeks ago prevented farmers from utilizing fertilizer until recent spring planting.

"A lot of farmers put on fertilizer in fall but it's been too wet to do anything until recently," Dalton said. "Since they all had to put on the fertilizer in spring, everybody hit the dealers at once."

Young said that since most of the Midwest has been deluged with rain, the entire region "demanded fertilizer at the same time."

"Everything has combined to hurt the situation," Dalton said. "Storage, availability and transportation."

Young said that since the spring planting season is "three-fourths complete now," the demand for fertilizer probably will decrease in about three weeks.

"We've had some shortages but it's not reached a situation where the dealers are saying, 'I don't have any and won't for six weeks.'" Dalton said.

Impact on weather from air pollution

People who think that just because they don't live in the big cities they have escaped air pollution and its effects, are in for a surprise, a federal study underway in St. Louis indicates.

The study, under the direction of the National Science Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency, is to determine the effects of air pollution on weather patterns. After two years of the projected five-year study, data already collected indicates that:

✓ Less rain falls in places affected by air pollution during periods of drought or general dryness.

✓ More rain falls in such areas during period of general precipitation.

✓ Places affected by air pollution can expect to experience more hail, lightning and tornadoes during stormy conditions.

Especially significant in the St. Louis study is the fact that the urban area's "pollution plume" extends 50 to 90 miles downwind, thus affecting the weather in zones far-removed from St. Louis itself.

Scientists have known that air pollution cuts the amount of sunlight hitting the earth. But the St. Louis study apparantly is the first to scientifically analyze weather effects, especially from the precipitation angle.

Obviously all of this has an impact on agriculture, among many other things, which is yet to be fully understood. Could it be that the heavy rains that put Pettis County farmers in such a bind were related to air pollution in the Kansas City area?

It looks like there's a lot more involved in dirty air than red eyes and irritated throats.

Treasure report it given cold shoulder

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A desert stash of old Mexican gold ingots worth tens of millions has been reported to skeptical authorities who fear it may be a hoax.

The king's ransom in ancient bullion and Aztec-era artifacts was described to lawyer F. Lee Bailey by a mysterious middleman three months ago. He told Bailey the gold had been carted north perhaps hundreds of years ago and hidden in a cave on what is now the White Sands proving grounds in New Mexico.

Now the gold has been rediscovered, claimed the middleman. He was authorized by a consortium, he said, to try through Bailey to gain legal possession to the treasure.

The middleman, a business executive, said the consortium would deliver the gold to the government. The consortium promised to pay taxes on the tons of gold, which might come to 50 per cent of its value, and sell the rest for their own profit.

If this "treasure of the Sierra Madre" turned out to be stolen and the rightful owners established a valid claim, then the consortium would agree to give up the entire trove.

Skeptical, Bailey flew secretly in his Lear Jet to El Paso, Tex., supposedly near where the cache is located. But once he met with his new clients, they thwarted his efforts to visit the treasure cave.

They feared Bailey's entry to the White Sands government reservation might be an illegal act which, because he was their lawyer, would jeopardize their case.

Bailey took his story to Tod Hullin, a White House aide, who wanted some proof of the tale. Obligingly, Bailey's clients sent him a gleaming gold-colored bar about 3½ inches long, and promised him hundreds more to prove to the government their offer was no hoax. With this in hand, Bailey was referred to the Treasury Department.

Treasury experts assayed the bar at 60 per cent pure, much less than is possible with modern refining. But some ancient ingots had this low gold content. The bar, at least, was no hoax.

But the talks have bogged down. Treasury officials reasoned that if there were gold on White Sands, then it already belonged to the government. Under present international agreements, the gold could not be used in world trade or sold by the Treasury for hard cash.

As one official told us, "there was all this secrecy and tedium about the deal. Besides, it's an unbelievable story." On May 17, the Treasury Department returned the ingot and told Bailey in a brusque private letter that "the Treasury has no interest in proceeding further with this matter."

Bailey has had no more success with the Army, which controls entry to White Sands. Army Installations Deputy George Brazier told us that missile research is going on which "cannot be interrupted everytime somebody comes to us with a gold gleam in his eye." Numerous similar stories are brought to the Army and so far no one has produced gold, he said.

Bailey, meanwhile, argues that the government has nothing to lose by making a deal. And, he points out, the only way to find out whether the gold treasure is a hoax is for someone to snip through the red tape.

GLORIFYING WEINBERGER: The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is hiring new hands to glorify Secretary Caspar Weinberger even as he slices deeply into the services for the poor and sick. In recent months, HEW has hired Scott Peters, a former public affairs man from the Committee to Re-elect the President, plus other publicity consultants at $138, $120 and $100 a day. The hirings came even as Weinberger fired or transferred several public affairs officers who were not certified Republicans.

INDIAN TIMBER: We recently described how the Agriculture Department is trying to chop down 11.8 billion board feet of our national forests without taking proper fire precautions. Now, we can report from Interior Department documents that millions of board feet will also be slashed from forests under its control. Not surprisingly, Interior would like to increase cutting on Indian lands by 105 million board feet a year. One internal document points out the Indians' timber should not be cut without "intensifying fire protection capabilities." While the various tribes own the timber lands, negotiations are generally handled by the Bureau of Indian Affairs which usually favors the timber barons over the Indians.

NAVY SHUFFLE: The Navy tried to transfer two highly-trained petty officers out of the country in the middle of their federal suit against the Navy. The petty officers, Nicholas Larionoff and Paul Boudreau, sued the Navy, claiming they were bilked of promised re-enlistment bonuses totaling between $2,800 and $3,400. The Navy contested the case but, meanwhile, ordered Larionoff to Iceland and Boudreau to Puerto Rico where their suit would be difficult to press. After our query to the Navy, both transfers were postponed.

Sensible legal services compromise

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The legal services bill just reported in the House is a product of compromise, which in politics is no bad thing. The bill contains more safeguards than the liberals really wanted, but it is not quite as restricted as some of us on the conservative side had wished. With a little common sense all around, it should do the job that needs to be done.

Kilpatrick

That job is immensely important. No concept in our political system ranks higher than the concept of equal justice under law. It is tied directly to another great principle, that ours is a government of law, not men. In actual practice, these precepts contain more myth than reality, but we have a responsibility, nonetheless, to strive in these directions.

The present program of Neighborhood Legal Services, providing advice and counsel to more than a million poor persons every year, expires at the end of this month. The House bill would keep the program going under a new and independent Legal Services Corporation.

In its original form, the bill authorized services for individuals or families whose income did not exceed 200 per cent of the officially established poverty level. This would have extended eligibility to persons with an income of $8,400, which struck some of us as unreasonably high. The provision has been dropped. It now is proposed to leave eligibility to guidelines that would be fixed by the corporation's governing board. These guidelines, as I understand it, would be intended to limit free services to the "poorest of the poor," but they would take into account a client's assets, debts, medical expenses, and other considerations. The approach seems workable, and not especially susceptible to abuse.

The original bill authorized the board to establish "a schedule of fees which will require the client, if able, to pay at least a portion of the cost of legal assistance." Under the strenuous opposition of the American Bar Association, this provision also has been dropped. The ABA enthusiastically supports the concept of legal services for the indigent, but it saw in the partial payment plan the specter of a socialized legal profession.

Most of the criticism that has been hurled at the Neighborhood Legal Services in recent years has resulted from overzealousness, ranging into radicalism, on the part of high-flying young lawyers. The bill contains several provisions intended to clip their wings.

Participating attorneys thus would be prohibited from engaging in "any political activity," including activity in voter registration. They could be barred from participating in, or encouraging others to participate in, "rioting, civil disturbance, picketing, boycott, or strike." In every state, an advisory council, appointed by the governor, would maintain a watchful eye for violations. Still another safeguard, written into the bill at the request of Kentucky's Carl D. Perkins, would hold down the number of Harvard red-hots by requiring that the corporation first seek local attorneys, familiar with community problems.

These provisions, if they are faithfully observed, should eliminate much of the hostility engendered in California and other states by eager beavers out to serve a cause. Doubtless there still will be abuses, or what seem to be abuses, but activist lawyers who refuse to abide by these rules can be weeded out as time goes on. The possibility of abuse is a poor excuse for killing the bill.

Some of my brother conservatives, notably those of Human Events, are deeply opposed to the whole program. I respect their opinions, but I think in this case they are wrong. One of the great foundation stones of our philosophy is the rule of law. Take this away, and a civil society turns into a mob. But the "rule of law" becomes meaningless if it cannot be applied evenhandedly to rich and poor alike. This bill would not perfectly balance the scales of justice, but it would help; and in this imperfect world, that seems enough to ask.

On 'gay' life: sin still sin

I have just read the letters under Editor's Mail... It seems odd that an admitted homosexual is so concerned about PEOPLE not accepting their behavior. What should concern them is that GOD does not accept such behavior. All they need to do is turn in their Bibles for proof... But I don't suppose such a person believes in God or the Bible or they would realize they are asking people to approve and accept sin as a normal way of life.

I feel sorry for people who are so determined to live the way they want to that they bring unhappiness on all who love them, misery for themselves and eventual punishment.

Graduation

Look to the east, young graduates,
With eyes on the rising sun,
To you we are giving a mixed up world
And there is much work to be done.
There is no war now to shatter your dreams,
Today your lives you may plan,
Whatever work that you may choose,
Give it the best you can,
Never follow the boisterous crowd
That tries to mold your soul,
You have a clear young mind of your own,
You have your own life's role,
Let no one lead you through muddy roads
Where your feet bog down heavy and deep,
No artificial way of life
Equals that which brings gentle sleep;
It isn't the fear of punishment
That keeps the conscious clear,
It is the joy of a wholesome life
That can live without that fear,
It is the easy road to choose
When one turns away from temptation
To follow not our fellowmen
But seek their cooperation
For every life is a life alone,
In the balance it must be weighed,
A life that is happy, a life that is full,
Not one bedraggled or frayed;
Wisdom is found in humility
And changing the world is an art,
The love of people in a generous way,
Understanding that is in one's heart;
Sweep from your minds the dirt of today
That the past generation is giving
And lay the foundation for tomorrows ahead
With a new kind, a great kind of living,
There are always the bad mixed with the good
As down through the years man has tread
But always are those who stood on their own,
Shoulders back and eyes straight ahead,
There have been those who have toiled with hands,
And those who have worked through their minds
But it takes sincere work of both of these
The talents and skills of both kinds;
Don't throw away the worthwhile things
That years of experience has taught,
Don't feel too important,
Life's most wonderful things can't be bought,
Ah, yes, you are young and ambitious
But sift through the sands of time
Loyalty, honesty, production
Are the things that will help you climb
Don't just stay on a job you do not like
For opportunity or for pay,
Change till you find the one you like,
You give better service that way,
Turn your eyes to the rising sun
And move with it on the west
Living a life that is good and clean
And giving the world your best.

June busts out in the federal city

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — "June is bustin' out all over!" After the gloom which overshadowed the nation with the Watergate hearings and the torrential rains over the Memorial Day weekend, it is good to see the sun again and have a few days' respite from what grows more and more engulfing in the scandals surrounding our government. It will, however, be a rare day in June if the news is neglected.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., a member of the Ervin Senate Investigating Committee, wants to call the leading White House staff involved to testify as soon as possible in order to save time and reach conclusions. Others say it is not in order for the Ervin Committee. Its job is to frame new legislation that would prevent abuses during future election campaigns. It is the job of the Justice Department to indict and convict those who have abused existing laws. The necessary witnesses will be called in due time.

The investigation process was slowed up by the delay in the Senate's confirmation of Elliot Richardson as attorney general and the naming of Archibald Cox as special prosecutor. The grand jury is now in recess. Cox has asked the three prosecutors who have handled the Washington investigation so far to stay on. He will in the mean time assemble his own staff, which process will continue to slow up the investigations.

The Watergate is no mere incident in history no matter how deep the "cover-ups" go. There are investigations going on in New York City, Houston, Orlando, Fla., Los Angeles, and in the Senate subcommittees involving the CIA, the FBI, the Armed Services and Foreign Relations. In the House with its Armed Services Committee and Appropriations, the meetings are all tinged with Watergate. Many have to do with election campaigns.

It is rather sad to walk past that stately mansion on Pennsylvania Avenue these days. It is so dazzlingly white against the verdure of the cropped lawns and majestic trees, and the radiant flowers around the spurting geyser. It is like the house Joyce Kilmer, the wartime poet, wrote of — "The House with Nobody in It," except that the former is the White House, which the President avoids as much as possible, and the other is a deserted tumbledown shack.

Maybelle Timm controls the mineral rights to this historic claim. (UPI)

Vui Abides in Saigon Slum And Gets a Little Poorer

SAIGON (AP) — According to the Paris agreements, Tran Thanh Vui should be home now, gathering jungle leaves for a new roof and watching his paddy fields fill with spring rain. But peace didn't come, so Vui abides in his Saigon slum and gets a little poorer every day.

The "cease-fire" is four months old. Vui has given up on it. He had hopes for a cease-fire once before, in 1954, and spent the next 19 years trying to coexist with war.

"I don't see any chance for a settlement now," says Vui. "The two sides are too different. I myself can't find a way to reconcile with the other side. How can the government do it?"

Vui, 51, is a snack vendor and part-time carpenter. He lives with his wife and five children in a one-room shack which sits on stilts over a black canal of sewage. He moved to Saigon, like hundreds of thousands of others, on the premise that a miserable life is better than none at all.

For more than six years he had clung to the dream of returning to Dong Yen, the riverside village near the Gulf of Siam where he was born, fought for the Viet Minh against the French and later served as an anti-Communist village chief.

When peace came, he said, he would take his family back to Dong Yen and be prosperous again, as his parents were.

But now Vui's family's rice fields are in Viet Cong territory, and raids and counter-raids go on around the fringes of the U Minh, the mangrove "Forest of Darkness."

"If I went to my village, the people would welcome me, because I served them well when I was village chief," Vui says. "But I am afraid that people from the other side would learn I was there and would come in the night to beat me or kill me."

Since the cease-fire Vui has found only seven days' work as a carpenter, at $2.50 a day. He and his family net less than $1.50 a day on the food stand they operate on a busy corner every evening — 20 to 30 per cent less than they used to make last year, says Vui, because prices are up and trade is down.

The shanty Vui bought for $250 two years ago is still only half paid off, and now Vui can barely afford to keep paying the $25 a month interest and has had to stop paying off the principal.

Vui's two youngest children keep breaking out in sores on their heads and arms, and Vui, unable to afford a doctor, has to keep sinking money into antibiotic powder that seems to make the sores go away for a while.

Meanwhile Vui is getting used to the heavy knowledge in the back of the mind that he will never return to the country. He spends his mornings doing nothing or looking for work, his afternoons helping fix sauce for the snacks at his food stand and his evenings selling them.

How long can he go on like this?

"I cannot change the situation," he says. "I will accept living this way as long as I must, as well as I can."

Soybeans Leading Gainer As Farm Prices Increase

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by soybeans, farm prices jumped four per cent last month and averaged 33 per cent more than in May last year, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The Crop Reporting Board said prices for the month ended May 15 also included increases for cattle, cotton, corn, and potatoes.

Soybeans registered the sharpest increase, rising to a national average of $8.27 per bushel, a boost of $2.13 from April. Since last fall, soybeans have increased $5.01 per bushel, the department said. In May last year, they brought $3.35 per bushel.

The increase represented a sharp recovery from April, when the farm price index dipped 1.5 per cent. That was the first decline in prices farmers receive in a year.

Otherwise, according to USDA, farm prices have risen consistently in 1973. Those increases include: January, 5 per cent; February, 3; March 7.

Prices for all beef cattle averaged $43.50 per hundred weight in the May report, up $1.10 from April and only 10 cents below the record set in March, the report said.

Cotton prices went up 12 per cent from April, including a boost of 3.2 cents for upland cotton, which averaged 30.25 cents per pound. That was still below the May 1972 price of 31.7 cents per pound, however.

Corn, at $1.61 per bushel was the highest in more than 20 years, the report said. Corn brought $1.42 in April and $1.15 per bushel in May last year.

Potato prices averaged $4.66 per hundred weight, compared with $3.96 in April and $1.99 in May 1972.

Prices that farmers pay out to meet expenses rose two per cent during the month and averaged 14 per cent more than a year ago, the report said.

The May parity ratio was 85 per cent, compared with 83 in April, 86 in March and 73 a year earlier. According to the formula, farm prices and expense are in balance at 100 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of conservation projects in the path of urban sprawl and how to protect natural environment features will be among topics at the 20th National Watershed Congress to be held June 3-6 in Wichita, Kan.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., will be keynote speaker. Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Robert W. Long, who oversees Agriculture Department conservation functions, also will address the meeting.

A central theme of the meeting will be land-use implications for more than 1,000 upstream watershed programs now under way in the country, the National Watershed Congress said in a statement issued here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will have to pay larger fees to have price support loans processed at county offices, beginning with 1973 crops, the Agriculture Department announced Thursday.

Cotton producers, who pay a fee for each loan application plus a charge based on the number of bales involved, will have their rates raised to $1 plus 10 cents per bale for documents that can be processed with electronic scanners. The fee currently is $1 plus five cents per bale.

Documents for cotton loans which cannot be scanned will cost $1.50 per loan plus 25 cents per bale. The rate now is $1 plus 15 cents.

Grain farmers will pay a flat charge of $10 per loan for quantities up to 2,000 bushels or 2,000 hundredweight of commodities sorted on farms. The rate now is $8 per loan.

Farm-stored grain exceeding the 2,000 bushel or hundredweight limit will carry a charge of $10 per loan plus one-half cent per bushel or one cent per hundredweight over the limit.

Fees for loans on warehouse-sorted grain will be increased from $4 per loan currently to $6 per loan for a single warehouse receipt. Each additional receipt will bear a $1 service charge, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said.

Little Backing for City Payment

Only 43 per cent of those readers responding to last week's Democrat-Capital survey said they thought Sedalia should pay a part of the cost of reassessing Pettis County.

The question was: "With a tax reassessment of Pettis County imminent, do you think that the city of Sedalia should pay a share of the cost for such a venture?"

One unsigned response said, "I think the tax reassessment is not the best move to be made ... Most people have struggled along to own some property and have paid taxes and more taxes. And yet we can't call the property ours. If you think it is bad now with delinquent taxes, think what it will be after the reassessment. People will lose their homes." The letter was also critical of an outside firm doing the reappraisal work. "What does a firm from some other place know about situations in Pettis County? Why not keep the money in our own county, city and state?" the letter said.

Mr. and Mrs. R.F. Quigg, 711 West Fifth, support the idea. They wrote, "The time is long overdue when the city and county should cease to compete and begin to cooperate. Recent signs pointing in this direction are most heartening and we certainly encourage cooperation in the tax reassessment project."

Mrs. John Ellison, 2236 West Third, wrote: "Reassessment will make taxes more equitable for both Sedalia and county residents and will be beneficial to both governments. More and more the interdependence of city and county makes cooperation between the city and county governments essential. Some recent indications of accelerated cooperation are encouraging to the many persons who are constantly concerned about this matter."

A woman who asked not to be identified wrote, "I think they should have left this tax assessment alone and, as Mr. Trotter (Pettis County Assessor Jerry Trotter) said, let it come up when the county becomes second class. Then let the county take care of it as it should have been taken care of ..."

Another opponent who did not sign his name said, "The county judges, the representatives of all the citizens of Pettis County, have ordered this reassessment of all property in our county. The judges prepare a budget of expenditures for the year and levy the necessary taxes to cover it. This is a county expenditure, not a city expenditure, and the City Council of Sedalia or any other of the incorporated towns or villages in the county should not be asked to levy a tax for this purpose."

A rural resident wrote, "I definitely feel the city of Sedalia should pay a share in the cost of reassessment. When the extra sales tax was voted in 'by city residents only,' one city official stated that the out-of-town people would pay for the improvements of Sedalia. Also, there is all the revenue sharing money that the city fathers have been asking suggestions on how to spend it. This is not a gift from 'big brother,' but tax money from all of us and there is no question that the city can and should pay their part."

And finally, John Bluhm Jr., judge of the western district of the Pettis County Court, who favors the city paying a share, wrote, "The county contributes a lot to city finances through the 1 per cent sales tax. Also, the city would benefit more in proportion from added revenue than would the balance of the county."

Work to Fend Off Problems for POWs

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A five-year medical watch program for returned Indochina POWs has been drafted by the Pentagon in hopes of avoiding the high rate of violent deaths experienced by U.S. POWs of World War II and Korea.

Dr. Richard S. Wilbur, the Pentagon's top health officer, said Friday that all 566 returned U.S. POWs suffered what doctors call "stress reaction" after coming home. He said, however, these manifestations of depression, fright and euphoria "will not last with them."

U.S. servicemen "did badly in the first three years" after leaving Japanese prison camps in World War II and Korean camps in the Korean war, Wilbur said.

A high rate of trauma during that period resulted in suicides, murders and accidental deaths, Wilbur told newsmen.

Military doctors earlier this year reported that the death rate of World War II POWs who returned from Japanese prisons averaged 50 per cent higher than the American population. The post-Korean rate was reported comparable.

"We will counsel the men and all their families" to avoid a post-Vietnam repetition, Wilbur said.

He said the Vietnam war POW "needs a lot of help fitting back into the family." Many a POW finds that his family has been "getting along pretty well without him," he said.

The POW asks to see the checkbook and takes over the family car and "the wife feels she's been put back in the home," Wilbur said. As a result, he said, the returned POW "feels himself kind of extra."

Wilbur also said that nearly one-third of the POWs, principally Air Force and Navy pilots, had suffered major fractures, including back injuries, after ejecting from stricken aircraft.

In a report on injuries and diseases found among the POWs, Wilbur said that some "probably will not ever be able to go back to active duty, but the vast majority will."

Miss Charlene Marcella Jackson

Miss Judith Lane Teegarden

Area Couples' Engagements Are Announced Today

The engagement of Miss Beth Ann Holden to Barry C. Cole is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Holden, 662 East 10th.

A student at State Fair Community College, the bride-elect plans to continue her education at the University of Missouri, Columbia, in the fall.

Her fiance, son of Dr. and Mrs. William R. Cole, Smithton, is a 1973 graduate of SFCC who will study animal husbandry at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

The couple will be married July 30.

STOVER — Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jackson, announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlene Marcella, to PFC Roger Lorry Eby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Eby, 43 Huntington, Sedalia.

Miss Jackson is a student at Morgan County RI School where she will be a senior in the fall.

Her fiance is serving in the U.S. Army where he is stationed with the 25th Infantry Division at Hawaii.

Wedding plans are incomplete.

WHITTIER, Calif. — Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Teegarden announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Lane, to Douglas W. Brandow, son of Mrs. Clara G. Brandow and the late William H. Brandow, Storm Lake, Iowa.

Miss Teegarden, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. E.R. Keller, LaMonte, holds a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Arizona State University and a master's degree in art from San Diego State University.

The groom-elect has a bachelor's degree in science and finance from San Diego University.

LaMonte First To Sign For OATS Program

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LA MONTE — The Golden Agers Club here is the first Pettis County organization to sign for the Older Adult Transportation Service, according to information received by Mrs. W.C. Jones, Community Betterment Chairman.

Rick Westphal, Warrensburg, regional director of the Council on Aging, gave detailed information on the OATS program for the LaMonte community at a meeting Wednesday, noting that the transportation service would be available by mid-July for anyone over 55 years of age. A total of 14 passenger vans will provide door-to-door service and group excursion trips.

Dale Clingan, a Springfield hearing sales and service specialist, spoke to the group of 60 persons on hearing problems.

The club sent a congratulatory card to Col. Charles W. Parker for his assignment as commander of the Strategic Missile Wing of Whiteman AFB.

Area Reunions Are Planned

The Swope and Benscoter Family Reunion will be held June 10 at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

The annual reunion of the descendents of Amos G. Richardson will be held June 10 at noon at the Morgan County Fairgrounds in Versailles.

Descendents of Amos Green, who settled in Morgan County in 1828, will hold their annual reunion at the Versailles Fairgrounds June 10 with a noon basket dinner.

AND SEW FORTH

By Althea Bailey

A classic that will be with us forever, and always attractive, is a tailored shirt — so right with pants, skirts, shorts. Here is an idea to "pretty" up a shirt, whether ready-made, or one you have made yourself.

The classic tailored shirt is usually designed to be worn buttoned to the neck, as a man's shirt is. But how often do you unbutton the first few buttons in the interest of comfort? Especially if it's worn for active sports. Or for that matter, almost anytime, because we do like comfort in our clothes.

Buy half a yard or so of a pretty ribbon or braid, and hand sew it down the inside of the shirt front. If the garment is washable, be sure the trim is also washable. A good idea is to shrink it before you sew it in. When you wear the shirt casually unbuttoned, you will have that extra touch of femininity!

I wish to thank all of our patrons who made our Memorial Day Sale such a huge success. Everyone was so nice, patiently waiting their turn for us to serve them. We appreciate this and it made our day just a little better.

As you probably know, polyester fabrics resist hard tailoring, and it is difficult to press a sharp crease into a garment. If you want a sharp crease in your polyester pants, try hand-stitching down the edge of the crease line. Use a very small stitch, and sew on the very edge of the crease line.

Two Have Spent 67 Years Together

LEETON — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sullivan will celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary on Tuesday.

All of their married life has been spent in the Leeton area where Sullivan was employed by the Rock Island railroad for 32 years.

They are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Elbert (Eunice) Knecht, Windsor; and Mrs. Bruce (Mildred) Field, Calhoun; two sons, Edsel Sullivan, Kansas City; Emil Sullivan, Bakersfield, Calif.; and have 11 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren and nine great-great-grandchildren.

Wedding Bells Are Ringing for Area Brides and Grooms

Jackson-Fischer

Sacred Heart Catholic Church formed the setting Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Judith Kay Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fischer, 1901 South Prospect, and Stephen Allen Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jackson, 1511 East Fifth.

The Rev. Vincent Hoying officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with pink, blue, yellow and white spring flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of Ivory organza and Venice lace. Satin ribbons made their way through Venice lace forming the high neckline and widely cuffing the bishop sleeves scattered with appliques. A panel of lace made its way down the bodice and flared skirt to be caught up in an apron effect. A deep flared flounce encircled the hemline to rise to a softly dropped bustle effect at the sweep train. Her Juliet cap of Venice lace and ribbon secured a mantilla illusion and she carried a bouquet of pink, yellow, and white sweetheart roses with baby's breath and ivory satin ribbon trim.

Miss Pam Koetting was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of blue flocked voile that featured a ruffled scoop neckline, long bishop sleeves and a full skirt with ruffled hem. She carried a nosegay of pink, blue, yellow and lilac tinted daisies with baby's breath and satin ribbon trim.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Arnold, Miss Jackie Fischer and Miss Shelly Fischer, all sisters of the bride. They were attired in gowns identical to the maid of honor in pink, lilac and yellow respectively. Each carried a nosegay of pink, blue, yellow, and lilac tinted daisies with baby's breath and stain ribbon trim.

Mike Riley served as best man and groomsmen were Sam Jackson and Joe Jackson, brothers of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony where the bridal table, covered with a white lace tablecloth, held a three tiered cake decorated with blue flowers and smilax. Silver candelabra accented with blue and white bouquets completed the setting.

Serving at the bride's table were Miss Debbie Felten, Miss Patti George and Mrs. Dean Vannoy.

Miss Rita Fischer, cousin of the bride, presided at the guestbook and gifts were attended by Miss Val Weber.

For traveling on a honeymoon to New Orleans, the bride choise a turquoise and white halter jumpsuit with white accessories.

The couple will reside at 501 East Walnut. Both are students at Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg.

Crowson-Wells

Sacred Heart Catholic Church formed the setting May 26 for the wedding of Miss Sally Elizabeth Crowson, daughter of Mrs. Rex Real, 2412 South Stewart, and Donald Crowson, Kansas City, and Stephen Andrew Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wells, 1619 West 14th.

The Rev. Vincent Hoying performed the double ring ceremony before altar bouquets of white gladioli and lavender statice.

Mrs. Steve Phillips was organist and she was assisted by Miss Regina Sipes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white Alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured long sleeves with ruffled cuffs and a ruffled collar. Her full skirt featured fern scalloped tiers and a sweep train. Her tiara cap of Venice lace trimmed with petals and pearls secured the three tier elbow length veil of illusion. The bride carried a starlight bouquet of white pixie carnations, lavender stephanotis, white glamellias and baby's breath backed with maiden hair fern and long white streamers.

Serving her sister as maid of honor was Miss Susan Crowson. She wore a floor length gown of lavender organza over satin with long bell sleeves. The gown was accented at the neckline and empire waistline with bands of white Venice lace threaded with lavender ribbon. She carried a nosegay of lavender and white pixie carnations with long lavender streamers.

John Wells served as his brother's best man. Performing ushering duties were Chris Sherer, Steve Phillips, Bill Walje and Edwin O'Conner, cousin of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Real held a reception following the ceremony at the Ramada Inn. The bride's table was decorated with white net over white and lavender nosegays and silver candelabra holding lavender tapers and a lavender and white bouquet.

The three tiered wedding cake was served by Miss Denise Wells and Miss Diana Wells, sisters of the groom; Mrs. Garrett Summers, cousin of the bride, and Miss Tamra Pendell.

For traveling on a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks the bride wore blue palazzo pants with a white ruffled blouse. Her corsage was of white pixie carnations and stephanotis with blue ribbon.

The couple will reside at 211 Waterbury Ridge. The groom is a student at State Fair Community College and the bride is employed at the Sedalia Collection Bureau.

Twenter-Buckallew

The Rev. Mark Miller officiated at the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Judith Ann Twenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Twenter, 1907 South Quincy, and Michael Ray Buckallew son of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Buckallew, Brookfield, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Altar bouquets of gladioli and carnations tinted the shades of bridesmaids gowns decorated the church where the Newman Singers from Jefferson City provided music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire A line wedding gown of chalk white Belgian lace and silk organza. The bodice was styled with long full sleeves and a high neck. A lace overlay trimmed the bodice and fitted cuffs then formed a wide ruffled hem. A matching full length veil of silk illusion was held by a small circlet, curving and lengthening to form an aisle wide chapel train and the bride carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Maid of honor for her sister's wedding was Miss Janet Twenter who wore a pink floor length long sleeved gown of frosted flowered dotted Swiss. She carried carnations tinted to match her gown.

Miss Theresa Twenter and Miss Ann Twenter, sisters of the bride, and Miss Deborah Buckallew, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids in gowns styled identical to the maid of honor but in shades of blue, mint green and yellow, respectively. Each carried a carnation bouquet the color of her gown.

Gene Buckallew, brother of the groom, was best man and groomsmen were Mike Twenter, brother of the bride, Greg Buckallew, brother of the groom, and David Herzberg.

Performing ushering duties were John Butler, cousin of the bride, and Mark Parson.

James and Stephen Twenter, brothers of the bride, were acolytes for the ceremony.

A reception followed the wedding at the Farm Bureau Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds. The bride's table was covered with her great-grandmother's lace tablecloth and was topped with a four tiered wedding cake.

Mrs. William Huhman, Mrs. Leonard Butler, Miss Jackie Butler and Miss Arnitha Butler served as the bride's table.

Mrs. Michael Swords was in charge of the guest book and presiding at the gift table were Mrs. Robert Rouchka and Mrs. Nick Patterson.

A wedding dance followed that evening at the Farm Bureau.

Following an extended trip to Estes Park and Yellowstone Park the couple will reside at Whiteman AFB where the groom is stationed with the U.S. Air Force.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the groom the evening before the ceremony at the Old Missouri Homestead.

Quigley-Aker

WINDSOR — An early afternoon wedding ceremony May 26 at Green Ridge Presbyterian Church united Miss Pamela M. Quigley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Quigley, Windsor, and Steven A. Aker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calude W. Aker, Green Ridge.

The Rev. James Williams officiated before an altar decorated with a pair of candelabra and baskets of yellow gladioli, lavender mums and ribbon trimmed pompon mums. Large foliage plants accented each side of the altar. Mrs. Wesley Brockman was vocalist and was accompanied by Mrs. Mac Harding at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white, floor length gown of taffeta with chantilly lace enhancing the bodice, wide cuffs of the long sheer sleeves and the high neckline. The empire waistline was delicately gathered forming an A-line skirt and a Juliet cap held a chapel length veil of bridal illusion edged with matching chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, lavender pompon mums and baby's breath accented with yellow and lavender ribbons.

Miss April Lindsey was the maid of honor. Wearing a floor length, empire waisted gown of yellow and white dotted Swiss, she carried a nosegay of lavender pompon mums and yellow stephanotis trimmed with lavender streamers.

Bridesmaids Miss Patty Barton, cousin of the groom, and Miss Barbara Quigley, cousin of the bride, wore dresses identical to the maid of honor in lavender and white dotted Swiss and they carried lavender and daisy pompon mums with yellow streamers. Miss Ramona West, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl dressed identically to the bridesmaids and carrying a basket of lavender and yellow petals.

Lawrence Vollmer was best man and groomsmen were Dale Harms and Rueben Blankenship III. Walter Aker, cousin of the groom, John Miller Jr. and Clifford Binder were ushers. Andy Harding was the ringbearer.

Miss Teresa Quigley, sister of the bride, and Randy Aker, brother of the groom, were the candlelighters.

At the church reception a three tiered cake centered the lace covered bride's table. White candles and yellow and lavender pompon mums and daisies completed the decorations.

Servers at the table were Mrs. Bob Roberts, Mrs. George Barton, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Charles Sadler, aunt of the bride. Miss Connie Ray presided at the guestbook and Mrs. Jack Stevens, Miss Dixie Lindsey and Miss Debbie Barton, cousin of the groom, were in charge of the gifts.

The bride wore a blue street length dress with a corsage of yellow roses and lavender ribbons lifted out of the bridal bouquet for her going-away costume.

After a honeymoon at the Bagnell Dam area, the couple will reside in the Windsor area where the groom is engaged in farming.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the groom the evening before the wedding at Flat Creek Inn.

Plan Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Franke, 1817 South Stewart, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house reception from 2 to 5 p.m. June 10. The event is being hosted by children of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Franke, Gladstone; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Morris, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Doty Jr., 2401 West Main; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Franke, Ogden, Kan.; and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Franke, Lenexa, Kan. The couple has lived in Sedalia all their married life. They have 20 grandchildren.

Vows Are Spoken By Area Couples

Smith-Stratton

KANSAS CITY — In a double ring ceremony May 20 Miss Martha Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith, Kansas City, and Ronald L. Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Stratton, 603 South New York, Sedalia, were married.

The ceremony, officiated by Pastor Howard Barth, was performed at Calvary Lutheran Church here.

Wedding vows were spoken in front of an altar decorated with silver candelabra and sprays of white carnations and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father and carrying a cascade of white crystal pompon mums and yellow roses, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza, fashioned with peau d'ange lace appliques on the stand up collar, around the sheer circular yoke, cuffs and bishop sleeves, on the empire bodice and throughout the A-line skirt and attached chapel train. A veil of light illusion completed the bridal ensemble.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Susan Montgomery while other attendants were Miss Nanci Burdick, Miss Marcia Nygard, cousin of the bride, and Miss Kay Barber. All wore floor length gowns of antique green and gold floral sheer organdy over yellow taffeta and accented with yellow woven picture hats. Each carried a single yellow rose.

Donald Stratton, brother of the groom, was best man while groomsmen were Dale Pollard, Lee Pittman and Lee Dunsworth.

Performing ushering duties were Craig Pittman and Phil Pittman.

Miss Kristen Pollard was flower girl, sprinkling petals of yellow roses.

Mrs. Ruth Smith provided organ music for the event and she accompanied her husband Phillip Smith who was vocalist.

A reception at the Plaza Inn followed the wedding where the bride's table was decorated with a white lace tablecloth centered with a four tiered cake. On each side was a silver candelabrum holding white tapers and decorated with white crystal pompon mums and yellow roses. Drinks were served from a bubbling champagne fountain.

The couple will reside in Concordia where the groom is employed as a guidance counselor at the public high school. The bride will teach special education at Alma.

Stuart-Byassee

East Sedalia Baptist Church formed the setting Saturday evening for the double ring wedding ceremony of Miss Shirley Ann Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Stuart, 814 East Ninth, and Gerald Alvin Byassee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Byassee, LaMonte.

The Rev. Milton Elmore officiated at the event before an altar decorated with two candelabra entwined with greenery and a large arrangement of white carnations. Mrs. Clyde Waters was organist and she accompanied Victor Stuart, cousin of the bride, who played the trumpet. Vocalist was Miss June Dewitt.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white over ivory gown of imported organza and peau d'ange lace. The bodice was accented with a high neckline and softly flaring elbow length lace sleeves. The circular skirt was appliqued with peau d'ange lace and her cathedral length mantilla was highlighted with lace motifs. The bride carried a starburst bouquet of white roses, peach geranium blossoms and baby's breath. Her only jewelry was a cameo pin, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Dennis Murphy, sister of the bride, was matron of honor in an empire styled gown of mint green rayon chantung and a headpiece of matching green ribbon and baby's breath. She carried a cluster of multi-fleur spring flowers.

Mrs. Carl Reque, Mrs. Pat Wood and Miss Debbie Hurst, cousin of the bride, wore gowns identical to the matron of honor with headpieces of matching green ribbon, white daisies and bachelor's buttons. They also carried clusters of multi-fleur spring flowers.

Best man was Dave Byassee, brother of the groom, and groomsmen were Paul Stuart, brother of the bride, Ted Koester and Johnny Morris. Performing ushering duties were Mike Killion, cousin of the bride, and Bob Kreger.

Miss Kim Murphy, niece of the bride, was the flower girl in a floor length peach colored gown with white highlights. Her headpiece was a peach ribbon with baby's breath.

A church reception followed the wedding where the bridal table was covered with green draped net of over white and centered with crystal candelabra.

Mrs. Paul Stuart, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Phil Makings, sister of the groom; and Mrs. Connie Reed acted as servers at the bride's table.

For traveling on a honeymoon to southern Missouri the bride wore a light orange and yellow plaid seersucker suit with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The couple will reside at 807 East Ninth. The bride is a student at Central Missouri State University and the groom, also a student at CMSU, is employed at Permaneer.

Bronson-Sinn

Broadway Presbyterian Church formed the setting of the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ann Bronson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bronson, Route 4, and Larry Frederick Sinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Sinn, Fenton, before an altar accented by candelabra, palms and bouquets of carnations and daisies.

The Rev. Roger E. Williams officiated at the ceremony with vocalist, Mrs. Richard Ratty, sister of the bride, being accompanied by Mrs. Louis J. Tempel Jr. at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white, floor-length gown with a high neckline and a fitted waist. Gathered lace tiers in the skirt extended into a chapel length train and the bride carried a cascade of white carnations.

Miss Deborah K. Mills, maid of honor, wore a blue and white floor length gown and carried a multi-colored bouquet. Miss Colleen Walz and Miss Karen Sinn, sister of the groom, were the bridesmaids. They wore blue gowns and carried identical multi-colored bouquets. The flower girl was Miss Rebecca Ratty, niece of the bride.

Best man was Darrell Elven and Mike Sinn and Pat Sinn, brothers of the groom, served as groomsmen and ushers. Kurt Sinn, brother of the groom was the ringbearer.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall where flowers and candles decorated the blue and white bride's table.

Servers at the bride's table were Miss Lois Monsees and Miss Linda Porter while Mrs. Larry Jacobi, sister-in-law of the bride, presided over the guestbook. Miss Nancy DeWitt was in charge of the gifts.

In the fall the couple plan to reside in Rolla where they both will continue their education at the University of Missouri.

Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Chesser, 606 South Osage, noted their 60th wedding anniversary Tuesday. They were married in Sedalia and have lived here for the past 45 years. Mr. Chesser is retired from Adco where he worked for 38 years. The couple has three children, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Is Announced May Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Knaus, Route 5, announce the May 27 marriage of their daughter, Susan Ann, to Andrew Graham Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Alexander, 637 East 18th.

The bride is a graduate of Columbia College and the groom holds a masters degree from the University of Missouri.

The couple will make their home in Columbia where the groom is employed at the Daniel Boone Regional Library and the bride is a student at the University of Missouri.

Dirty Kurt Leads Royals Once Again

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kurt Bevacqua tripled home two runs in the second inning and scored on Steve Hovley's double to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday night.

Paul Splittorff and rookie Doug Bird combined to check Cleveland on 10 hits. Splittorff, 8-3, left after the fifth inning because of a stiff shoulder.

The Royals jumped on Milt Wilcox, 3-2, in the second when Paul Schaal walked, Gail Hopkins singled, Bevacqua tripled and Hovley doubled.

Cleveland got its run in the fifth on singles by Walter Williams, Buddy Bell and Tom Ragland but the Royals scored twice in the eighth, again following a walk to Schaal and a single by Hopkins.

Oakland 3, Boston 1

BOSTON (AP) — Bert Campaneris scored the tie-breaking run on a passed ball in the sixth inning and Gene Tenace homered in the seventh while Catfish Hunter pitched the Oakland A's to a three-hit 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday night.

Campaneris opened the sixth with an infield hit off loser Bill Lee, 5-2, was sacrificed to second and took third on Sal Bando's long fly ball. He then raced home when a pitch eluded catcher Carlton Fisk.

Tenace drilled his 10th home run of the season into the left field screen to provide Hunter with an insurance run an inning later.

Hunter, 6-3, was touched for a second-inning run on John Kennedy's bases-loaded sacrifice fly following singles by Orlando Cepeda and Danny Cater and a walk to Tommy Harper.

Hunter allowed the Red Sox only one baserunner after that—Rick Miller, who singled with two out in the fifth.

The A's tied the score in the third on Angel Mangual's triple and a single by Dick Green.

Boston's Mario Guerrero tied a major league record shared by many shortstops of participating in five double plays in a nine-inning game.

Twins 3, Tigers 2

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Joe Lis ripped a homer in the bottom of the 10th inning Saturday, lifting the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Lis connected with one out in the 10th, tagging a 371-foot homer against loser Woody Fryman. Reliever Ken Sanders got the victory.

Blyleven had his scoreless string cut at 23 innings when Detroit scored two runs in the fifth for a 2-2 tie on three singles, two of them infield scratchers, and shortstop Jerry Terrell's throwing error.

Gates Brown and Willie Horton delivered run-scoring infield singles after Terrell, with one out, overthrew second trying for a forceout on Mickey Stanley's grounder.

The Twins had picked up two runs in the fourth, one of them also unearned, when Aurelio Rodriquez threw Terrell's bases-loaded bunt single past catcher Duke Sims, allowing the second run to score.

Yankees 2, Angels 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Fritz Peterson continued his mastery over California Saturday, limiting the Angels to two hits in seven innings and pitching the New York Yankees to a 2-0 victory in a nationally televised game with relief help from Sparky Lyle.

Peterson, 5-6, outdueled fireballing Nolan Ryan and beat the Angels for the 15th time in 19 lifetime decisions. It was the third defeat in a row for Ryan, 6-6.

They made it 2-0 an inning later when Thurman Munson drew a one-out walk, went to third on Gene Michael's hit-and-run single and scored on Horace Clarke's sacrifice fly.

The only hits off Peterson were singles by Rudy Meoli in the third inning and Bob Oliver in the eighth.

Brewers 3, Chicago 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ellie Rodriguez' 13th inning single delivered the deciding run to give Milwaukee a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox 3-2 Saturday.

George Scott opened the 13th with a walk and Johnny Briggs sacrificed him to second. Then Ollie Brown singled but Scott was cut down trying to score on Pat Kelly's throw to catcher Ed Herrmann.

Brown took second on the play and Bobby Heise went in to run for him. Moments later, Rodriguez greeted reliever Cy Acosta with the winning hit.

Jim Slaton had checked Chicago on four hits until pinch hitter Jorge Orta singled leading off the eighth. Two outs later, Dick Allen tied the score at 2-2 when he lined his 12th homer.

Steve Stone held the Brewers to one hit until Dave May walked and George Scott singled with one out in the sixth.

Terry Forster replaced Stone and fanned John Briggs, but pinch hitter Ollie Brown walked to fill the bases and Rodriguez slapped a two-run single.

Recreation Program To Open on June 11

Sedalia School district 200 will open a number of its facilities to the public for its summer recreation program.

Beginning June 11, Jennie Jaynes Stadium will be open for those persons interested in track and field, weight lifting, field games and physical conditioning. The facility will be open from 5:30-8:30 p.m. daily for eight weeks.

Three programs are scheduled in the Smith-Cotton Fine Arts and Physical Education Building. June 11, indoor activities including basketball, table tennis, volleyball, conditioning, badminton and tumbling will be held. This program will last for four weeks, from 9 a.m.- noon daily.

A two-week afternoon program at the gymnasium will begin on July 16. The facility will be open from 2:30-5:30 p.m.

The S-C basketball coaching staff of Jim Dinsdale and David Porter will supervise a two-a-day basketball game, beginning July 23. Sessions are scheduled to be held from 2-5 p.m. and again in the evening from 6-9 p.m.

The junior high school swimming pool will be open for an eight-week period, beginning June 11. Red Cross swimming lessons will be held in the mornings. During that time the pool will not be open to the public, however, in the afternoons, the facility will be available to the public for approximately three hours.

When the Red Cross classes are concluded, the pool will also be available for morning swimming.

The pool is being made available to the public through the combined efforts of the school district and the Sedalia Park Board.

Hargis Vies in Sectional

Lew Hargis, the lone Sedalian to qualify for the United States Open sectional by carding 145 two weeks ago at Indian Hills Country Club in Kansas City, Kan., seeks a berth in the Open itself on the same course Monday.

Hargis, club professional at Sedalia Country Club, will be making his fourth trip to the sectional, however, he has never made it to the Open itself.

Hargis' 36-hole total of 145 in the qualifying round was only four shots off the medalist score of Sandy Scharlau, Kansas City Meadowbrook Country Club.

Fast Mile Is Noted At Wichita

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Rick Wohlhuter of the Chicago Track Club failed to break Jim Ryun's world record in the mile Saturday but flashed to victory in the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships with an eye-catching time of three minutes, 58 seconds.

Wohlhuter trailed at the one-quarter mark, being timed in 60.5, at the half with 2:03.7 and after three-quarters with 3:04.4. Most of that time Bruce Fisher of Syracuse set the pace.

Only recently Wohlhuter shattered Ryun's 1:44.9 world record in the 880 with 1:44.6. He said Friday he was passing up an invitation to compete in a special 880-yard run against Dave Wottle to shoot for quality in the mile.

Larry Rose of the Pacific Coast Track Club finished second behind Wohlhuter in 4:02.2 and Fisher was third in 4:03.1.

Hard, gusty winds ripped over the Wichita State University track, bothering some of the athletes in this 11th running of the USTFF carnival.

Wottle, of Bowling Green, coming from far back on the outside with an awesome burst of speed, overhauled Skip Kent of Wisconsin with 30 yards to go and won the special 880 in 1:47.5.

Kent was second to the Olympic gold medalist in 1:49.7.

S-M Monopolizes Softball Twinbill

S-M Sporting Goods won a men's Tri-County Softball League doubleheader from Budweiser Beer Friday in Hubbard Park. S-M claimed the opener, 10-4, as Gerald Abney went the distance and notched the victory. Mel Garrett smacked a bases-empty homer in the seventh; Jim Cramer homered for the losers in the third.

S-M won the nightcap, 6-2; Jim Steele was the winning pitcher.

Both losses were chalked against Carroll Deale.

S-M will take on Permaneer in another league twinbill tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Hubbard Park.

Citizens Are Seeking To Purchase Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A citizen's group wants to buy the San Diego Padres and keep them in San Diego but club president Buzzie Bavasi said Saturday he "has to assume we're going to Washington, D.C." next season.

The 5-year-old National League baseball franchise has entered into a letter of intent for the $12-million sale to a group of businessmen in the nation's capital.

"It's nice to see support," Bavasi said of the citizen's group founded by Ted Cashuk, an accountant. "But it's a bunch of citizens who would put in $10 or $15 each, and you'd have to have a million of them."

Cashuk said his group has six members and he has an appointment Monday morning with Bavasi to see if they have time in which to buy the Padres. He hopes to have a public offering to raise money to buy the club.

The group includes, according to Cashuk, Jim Bates, city councilman; Malin Burnham, a banker-insuranceman; Peter Lund, a radio station manager, and George Spraza, president of Air Service.

Bavasi said "no one is as sorry as we are" at the prospect of leaving San Diego, despite the poor attendance that prompted the move.

Bavasi would not say whether the letter of intent is legally binding, adding, "I haven't seen it." But he said the Washington group "has worked hard and deserves the franchise."

The sale requires approval by the National League. Also there is the matter of the team's lease of San Diego Stadium, which has 15 more years to run.

"We haven't even talked to the city about it," said Bavasi, who added that charges against owner C. Arnholt Smith of misusing assets of Westgate-California Corp. and U.S. National Bank have kept Smith occupied.

Bavasi said the lease calls for payment to the city of 8 per cent of gate receipts a year. He said he has heard of no figure the city might demand.

Record Holders Win

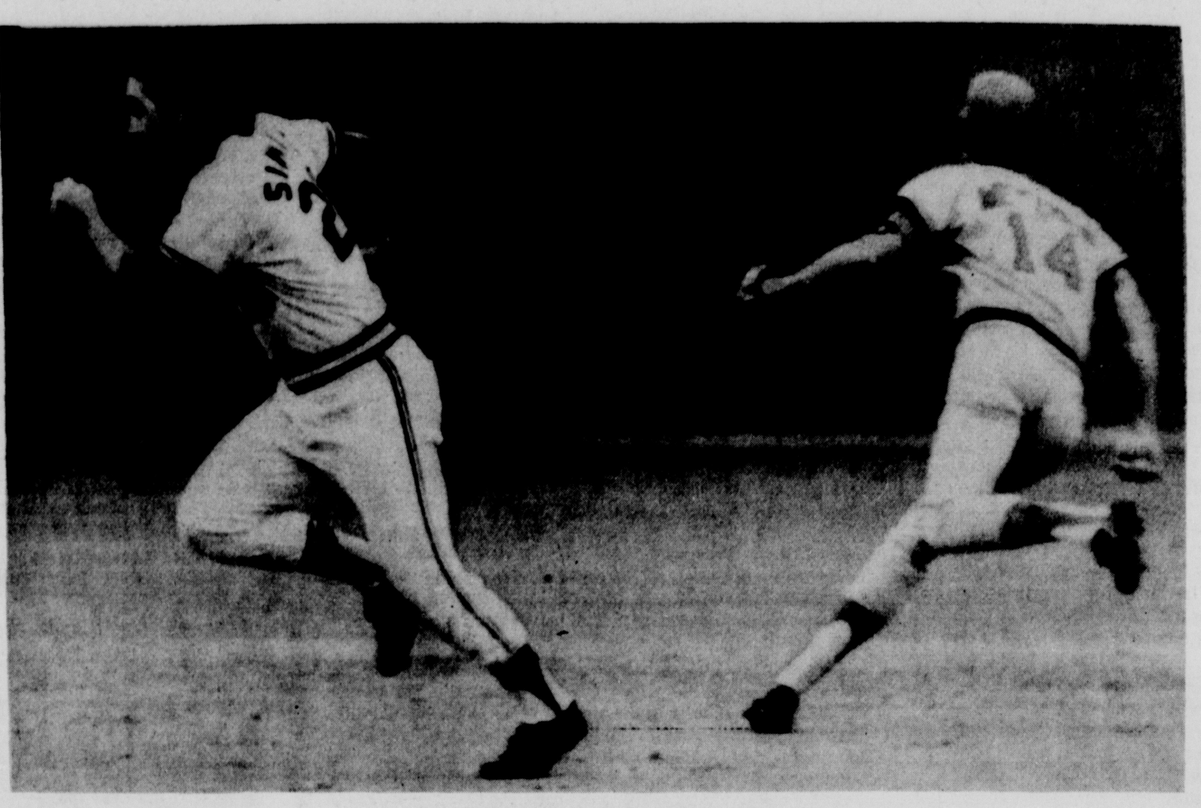
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — World record holders Al Feuerbach and Rod Milburn worked the Kennedy Games into their busy travel schedules Saturday and recorded impressive victories in the track and field meet.

The 245-pound Feuerbach won the shot put with a toss of 71 feet, 1½ inches, the fourth best effort in history. It ranks behind only his world mark of 71-7 set a month ago in nearby San Jose and two throws by Randy Metson.

Olympic gold medalist Milburn of Southern University held off the challenge of Tommie Lee White and captured the 120-yard high hurdles in 13.4 seconds. White was second at 13.5.

Milburn set a meet record of 13.4 Friday and won the hurdles event at the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division meet at Crawfordsville, Ind.

Feuerbach won the shot put Friday in the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships at Wichita, Kan., before returning to the West Coast to score his Kennedy Games triumph. He leaves here Sunday to compete in a meet in Russia.



Runnin' Redbird

Ted Simmons, Cardinals' catcher, heads for third base after Houston Astros' right fielder Jesus Alou made a poor throw to second baseman Roger Metzger. Metzger was unable to come up with the ball and Simmons reached third. (UPI)

Cardinals Continue Winning Ways

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tim McCarver hit Houston relief pitcher Fred Gladding's first pitch for a grand slam home run Saturday night, capping a five-run eighth-inning rally that lifted the streaking St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Astros.

Ted Sizemore ignited the uprising by drawing a one-out walk from reliever Jim York and Ted Simmons' two-out double scored pinch runner Dwain Anderson with the tying run.

After an intentional walk and an infield hit filled the bases, McCarver batted for Ken Reitz and Gladding replaced York.

McCarver slammed the first offering into the right field seats.

The Astros had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the eighth against Rick Wise, 7-2, on Jimmy Stewart's pinch single, a sacrifice, a balk and Jesus Alou's single.

Houston scored in the first on a single, error and a double play grounder. Larry Dierker, making his first appearance of the season after hand and shoulder problems, yielded a run in the second on Simmons' double, an error and an infield out.

Pirates 4, Cincinnati 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dock Ellis survived a shaky seventh inning and pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati Saturday.

It was the sixth straight victory for the streaking Pirates.

The Reds nicked Ellis for an unearned run in the first but Pittsburgh bounced back with three in their half of the inning on consecutive singles by Dave Cash and Manny Sanguillen, a double by Richie Hebner, a walk to Willie Stargell and an infield out.

The out was a line drive off Billingham's leg by Bob Robertson, which forced the pitcher to leave the game.

Pittsburgh added another run in the fourth on Milt May's RBI single.

Cubs 4, Atlanta 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal drove in the tying run on an infield out and then scored the winner on a wild pitch, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

The Cubs were trailing 3-2 when Glenn Beckert opened the sixth inning with a single. Billy Williams singled him to third and he scored as Cardenal forced Williams.

Then Ron Santo singled Cardenal to third and the Cub outfielder scored the deciding run on a wild pitch by reliever Ron Schueler.

Giants 11, Phillies 7

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tito Fuentes and Bobby Bonds ripped three hits apiece Saturday, leading the San Francisco Giants to an 11-7 comeback victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Fuentes singled home two runs in the sixth inning to give the Giants the lead for good. San Francisco added three wrapup runs in the eighth, one coming on Bonds' 12th homer of the season.

The Giants collected 16 hits off five Philadelphia pitchers with the loss going to Jim Lonborg.

Advances to Finals

Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., scored a semi-final victory over Francoise Durr of France in the $135,000 French Open Tennis Championships. Miss Evert's victory moves her into the championship to face Australian Margaret Court. (UPI)

Chris Evert, Mrs. Court Heading For Final Match

PARIS (AP) — The matchup that had been anticipated for the women's singles final of the rain-plagued French Open Tennis Championships became reality Saturday when Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Australian Margaret Court scored semifinal victories in the $135,000 tournament.

Meanwhile, Tom Gorman of Seattle became the first man to advance to semifinal play, where he was joined later by second-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, whom he will meet.

The 18-year-old Miss Evert needed only 37 minutes to dispatch Francoise Durr of France 6-1, 6-0 as she kept intact her record of not having lost a set in the tournament. Mrs. Court downed Evonne Goolagong 6-3, 7-6 in an all-Australian semifinal.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Court and Miss Evert had been seeded 1-2 in the women's division, which meant they would not meet one another until the final. The championship match—Chris' first major tournament final—was to be staged Sunday.

Gorman defeated Czech Jan Kodes, who won the men's title in 1970 and 1971, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1. Kodes, a clay-court specialist, fought back well in the middle of the quarter-final match but faded badly in the fourth set.

The flamboyant Nastase, a strong favorite to win the men's first prize of $15,500, joined Gorman in the semis by beating Roger Taylor of Britain 6-0, 6-2, 7-6.

Two Americans—Paul Gerken and Frank Froehling—lost fourth-round matches Saturday. Gerken, of East Norwalk, Conn., was stopped by Taylor 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-7, 6-4 in a match spread over three days, played on two courts and interrupted four times by rain. Froehling, a resident of Miami, lost to Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Pilic was to go against Paulo Bertolucci of Italy in quarter-final play. And Italian Adriano Panatta, a 7-6, 2-6, 7-5, 7-6 fourth-round victor over 16-year-old Swedish sensation Bjorn Borg, was pitted against Tom Okker of The Netherlands, who vanquished top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadenia, Calif., Friday.

Shooting For Record

Aaron Is Tiring of White World's Honors

CHICAGO AP — They honored Hank Aaron again Friday night-they called him great, greater than - and finally, the greatest. And though he smiled through it all, a tiredness crept into his face from time to time.

That's because Hank Aaron, a black man, is looking to break the home-run record of Babe Ruth, a white man, and there are some hateful men - and women and children - who can't see that.

"God only knows what kind of hell I've been going through," he said to the crowd at the headquarters of Operation (PUSH) People United to Save Humanity.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of PUSH, had asked him to speak, but Aaron said he preferred to hit home runs. He said he was tired of the talk of hate mail. He also said he was tired of talking about the record held by the immortal Babe.

"As long as I can keep my mind clear and play the type of baseball I know how to play, I'll hit more than 714 home runs." Aaron said.

The crowd cheered.

"I'm going to let the umpires call the balls and I'll handle the strikes," he added in a soft reasonant voice.

Although he received most of the attention, Aaron was there to help one of his colleagues, Chicago Cubs pitcher Ferguson Jenkins. Jenkins was promoting a book he has written, but said little about his book, preferring to talk about Aaron.

"There's only one Hank Aaron, and he's one hell of an individual," Jenkins said. "He's a better man now because of the abuse he's taken. When they start talking about home runs, they'll talk about a black man, and it will be Hank Aaron."

Asked if any of Aaron's 686 homers were hit off him, Jenkins smiled and said, "Only one, in 1968. I've been pretty lucky."

Billy Williams, the Cubs left fielder, was there too, and he called Aaron "magnificent, amazing, and I'm glad we're from the same home town."

Aaron and Williams are from Mobile, Ala.

Chet Walker of the Chicago Bulls spoke of Aaron's assault on Ruth's record as "the greatest motivating factor to blacks in the history of sports. What he's after means more to the little black youngster now going into sports than at any other time in history."

Aaron, dressed in a gray suit, moved through the crowd with the same easy motion he displays on a baseball field-confident and smooth. He spent most of the evening posing for photographs with the youngsters who came out to see their heroes.

And when one of his admirers would approach him with yet another question about his home run record or his recent problem with hate mail, he would smile and answer that the mail incident is behind him now and the record will be broken in due time, and with a little patience and some luck he would do it.

Then he would walk away and answer the same questions all over again.

Weiskopf Riding String of Birds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Streaking Tom Weiskopf rode a string of three birdies to a third-round 68 and a two-stroke lead Saturday in the $200,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf had a 54-hole total of 203, 13 under par on the hot and muggy, 7,219-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course.

Veteran Ken Still and the youthful Lanny Wadkins matched one-under-par 71s and were tied for second at 205 going into Sunday's final round in the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Four players, including second-round leader Leonard Thompson, were one more stroke back at 206.

Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer each had a 71 and remained well back in the pack, Trevino at 210 and Palmer nine strokes off the lead at 212.

Weiskopf ran together three birdies beginning on the 14th hole.

He wedged to 15 feet there and sank the putt. Another 15-footer on the next hole also went in for a birdie. He followed that with a punched wedge only two feet from the hole.

It appeared as if he might take a three-stroke lead but made his only bogey of the day on the 18th when he hit a flyer out of the rough, missed the green, and failed on a five-foot putt.

His first two birdies came on par fives. He reached the fifth with a wood second shot and hit a wedge to within two feet on the 10th.

Monzon Retains Title In Fight With Griffith

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Carlos Monzon of Argentina, taking advantage of his reach, outpointed a lunging Emile Griffith over 15-rounds Saturday and retained the world middleweight boxing championship.

Monzon, apparently drained by efforts to make the weight — he scaled 159, a pound under the class limit — still had enough left to edge Griffith, a 35-year-old five-time world champion who was fighting in his 21st title bout 15 years from the day he made his pro debut.

The unanimous decision might have signalled the end to Griffith's carrer as a championship class fighter.

Monzon, almost six-feet tall, won the fight by scoring well with left jabs, mixed with an occasional solid right. The 31-year-old Argentine landed the best punch of the fight in the 14th round, a right to the head that hurt Griffith with 30 seconds left in the round.

It was the only time either fighter appeared hurt. Neither ever was in danger of being knocked down. The only cut was on above the right eye of Griffith in the final two rounds, which did not bother him.

The New York veteran, who weighed 157 pounds, appeared strong during the middle rounds. In the ninth he landed a solid right to Monzon's head along the ropes and as Monzon spun off the ropes Griffith shot another good right to the head.

But Griffith never was able to put any damaging combinations together and Monzon, who seemed content to stab with his left and look for an opening for his right, was able to close strongly enough to gain the decision.

Referee Piero Brambilla of Italy gave Monzon a two-point margin while judges Raymond Baleyroux of France and Karl Bertheet of West Germany each had the champion ahead by three points.

Announcement of the decision at the Louis II Soccer Stadium of Monaco was held up for almost 10 minutes because fans had rushed the ring to be near their favorites.

The victory before a crowd of 10,000, including Prince Ranier of Monaco, was the 81st of Monzon's career against three losses, nine draws and one no decision.

Monzon won the title Nov. 7, 1970, by knocking Nino Benvenuti of Italy in 12 rounds in Rome. He has defended the crown six times.

Griffith, three-time welterweight champion and twice middleweight king, now has a 76-14-1 record, with one no contest.

Sedalia Ban Johnson Club Opens at Home

A full slate of games is scheduled today in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson Baseball League.

Among those five contests will be the season's home opener at Liberty Park Stadium between Sedalia and Tipton at 2 p.m. The locals were rained out of their home opener a week ago with California.

The Merchants are 1-1, with a victory over Huntsville and a loss Thursday night to Boonville, and currently in a three-way, second-place tie with Boonville and Tipton in the western division of the league.

Marshall, which has a home doubleheader scheduled today with California, is in first place in the west, winning both of their previous outings. On the other hand, California is in the western division cellar at 0-2.

In the east, the Columbia Angels and Jefferson City are deadlocked in first at 1-0 each.

Terry Hudson, one of the top pitchers in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association with Central Missouri State University this past season, is scheduled to get the starting call.

Ban Johnson officials announced Saturday that the individual sponsors would be honored in a brief ceremony prior to the game.

Rain Washes Out Series For NCAA

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The second-round games of the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division World Series were washed out by rain Saturday and the games were rescheduled for Sunday.

The six teams playing in the 6th annual tournament are California-Irvine, Missouri-St. Louis, Eastern Illinois, Ithaca, N.Y., College, Jacksonville, Ala., State, and defending champion Florida Southern.

Iowan Wins Twice In Prep Festival

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Leo Mead of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, became a double winner in the high school division of the U.S. Track and Field Federation championship Saturday when he took the 880-yard run in one minute, 56.2 seconds.

Mead won the mile run Friday in 4:19.9.

Mark Denning of Bonner Springs, Kan., was second in the 880 with 1:57.1 and Larry Brandt of Mason City, Iowa, third, in 1:57.6.

Ervin Garnes of Wichita took the 100-yard dash, running in winds gusting to 32 miles per hour, in 9.8 and was followed by Dave Morris, unattached, 9.9, and Henry Figures of Wichiga, 10.2.

The two-mile high school run went to Alton Davis of Hazelwood, Mo., who toured the Wichita State University track in 9:25.9. Trailing him were Jeff Marman of Madison, S.D., in 9:26.9, and Warren Wisner of Raytown, Mo., in 9:29.9.

Dennis Brack of Hoisington, Kan., took first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a 14.2 clocking. Wichita's Willie Green finished second in 14.4 and Craig Rogers of Kansas City Washington, third in 14.5.

Green came back to win the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 40.4. Brack wound up second with 40.4 and Mike Winter of Hazelwood was right behind in 40.5.

Dale Connolly of West Mesa, Ariz., grabbed the 440-yard dash title, posting 48.3.

Postpone USAC Race

KNOXVILLE, Iowa — The United States Auto Club National Championship Sprint car race scheduled to be run here last night, was postponed due to bad weather and was rescheduled for 2 p.m. today.

At Agriculture Building

Basketball Clinic Opens Monday

The coaching staff for the third-annual State Fair Community College Basketball Clinic has been selected, according to SFCC coach Bill Barton.

The clinics, which will be held in the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds, will have two other junior college coaches in addition to Barton. Gary Garner, head coach at Trenton, Mo. Junior College, will assist Barton during the first week, which opens tomorrow.

Assisting Garner and Barton in the first week will be Dale Kimberling, coach of the Skyline (Urbana, Mo.) Tigers.

Garner molded Trenton into one of the best teams in Region XVI (state) last season, while Kimberling's high school squads have been high in the state Class S rankings the past three seasons. Kimberling's high school record since taking over the helm vacated by Barton three seasons ago is 80-12.

The second week of the clinic, which opens June 11, will find Charles Spoonhour assisting Barton and Kimberling. Spoonhour, who has coached only one year in the JuCo ranks, guided his Moberly Area Junior College Greyhounds to the regional (state) finals. Moberly won the western division crown of Region XVI in 1972-73 and finished the season with a 27-9 log.

Barton also announced that Willie Jenkins, a Smith-Cotton High School assistant, will also be on hand during both one-week sessions.

The age group for the clinic is 11-16. Boys between the ages of 11-13 will attend the morning sessions, which will run from 9:30 a.m. until noon. The fourteen, fifteen and sixteen-year-olds will be assigned to the afternoon sessions, which will run from 1-3:30 p.m.

Persons interested in attending either or both of the camp sessions are asked to be at the Agriculture Building at 9 a.m. tomorrow or June 11.

The cost for the school is $20 for one week or $35 for both weeks.

SCUBA Checkout

Dana Jenkins, 2300 West First, accomplishes one of the final pool checkouts on SCUBA gear before going to open water in the Sedalia Divers club instruction course. Jenkins had to jump off a diving board with SCUBA gear under his arm, and put all the gear on before surgacing.

Local Club Offers Diving Instruction

The rapidly growing sport of scuba diving is experiencing growing pains but the Sedalia Divers Inc., are striving to promote safety and provide qualified instruction to beginners.

Sedalia Divers was established in 1962 and has a membership of 20 and four instructors who teach one-month courses in SCUBA diving.

Donnie Kabler, president of the club, has been diving since 1958 and estimated that he has instructed some 350 beginners in safe diving methods.

Kabler traced much of the problems in diving today to the easy availability of diving gear to the inexperienced. "Mail order diving equipment is a real hazard," Kabler said. "It's just too easy for a totally inexperienced person to pick up some diving gear, go out and kill himself," according to Kabler.

Sedalia Divers have set up instruction classes that will be open to experienced swimmers who wish to learn the skills of diving. Each class lasts one month and meets two nights a week, Kabler explained. "We meet every Tuesday and Thursday for two-hour lecture at State Fair Community College and then go to Liberty Park for a two-hour pool session."

The fee for the course is $40 which includes all equipment and texts, Kabler said.

Kabler emphasized that a Cetified SCUBA Diver card is necessary to purchase equipment and air from any dive shop and said it is important that anyone associated with the sport become familiar with the equipment through formalized instruction.

The course teaches basic diving skills but can eventually lead to more advanced skills such as those used in Civil Defense rescue. The club also makes ecology dives once each year.

Sedalia Divers also participate in the annual Midwest Diving Council Contest featuring team competition, spear fishing, and compass courses.

Jaycees, Wives Select Officers for Next Year

Keith Rowland

Mrs. Linda Reed

Jaycee International Senator David Curry installed Keith Rowland as president for the 1973-74 year; Steve Overman, internal vice-president; Kim McAuliffe, external vice-president; Daryl Swain, secretary; and Fred Kingsolver, treasurer. Members of the board of directors are Tom Burdett, Tim Fischer, Gary Fleming, Tony Monsees, Jim Reed, Mike Smethers, Don Sublett and Mike Swain.

In the Wives club, Mrs. Linda Reed was installed as president. Other officers are Mrs. Mary Fischer, first vice-president; Mrs. Pat Overman, second vice-president; Mrs. Judy Gardner, secretary; Mrs. Linda Swain, treasurer; and Mrs. Connie Evert, parliamentarian. Board members are Mrs. Vicki Bock, Mrs. Joyce Clark and Mrs. Marsha McAuliffe.

Preceding the installation of officers Bob Burke was extended the honor of becoming a lifetime member of the Jaycee International organization, an award given to only four other Sedalia Jaycees. Burke, who has been in the Sedalia club for more than eight years, is a past-president and has served in most other offices and committees.

In other awards John Gruenloh was presented the President's Award by Gary Evert and Jim Reed was noted the outstanding director. A combined award for outstanding member who has been in the organization more than one year was presented to Robert M. Liston and Dave Wiedeman. Steve Overman was noted as the outstanding new member.

In the Wives Club Mrs. Evert presented the following awards: outstanding board member, Mrs. Nancy Monsees; outstanding new member, Mrs. Linda Swain; outstanding first year member, Mrs. Nancy Gruenloh; outstanding member who has been in the club more than one year, Mrs. Chelsea Kehde; and outstanding Jaycee wife, Mrs. Linda Reed. Mrs. Lana Liston received the community service award.

DON'T READ THIS AD

Unless you mean business. We are now considering qualified applicants in your area to become a working part of our National "Hot Food" Distributor System. You are not applying for a job! You are applying for a very high profit business of your own. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY — NO SELLING INVOLVED. This business can be started part time — no need to quit your job. Can be expanded full time with company financing. We need people we can depend on. Our products are nationally famous "Hot Food" items made by Heinz. We have over 36 varieties of Hot Soups and Hot Entrees, such as Beef Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili & Beans, and on and on. We have all of America's favorites. All these delicious products are sold from the latest in automatic vending equipment. Your route will be established and installed by us. Your age is not a factor, if you qualify. Perfect for a nice couple to operate as a family business.

LULA IRENE WHEELER

Jim Ripley—Auctioneer Lunch Served by Ladies of Blackwater Chapel Toots Files—Clerk

It's what we do here

that makes it worth more here.

If you saw the way we put a Volkswagen together, you might think we were building a time capsule instead of a car.

In a way we are.

That's why we give it a sealed steel bottom to protect it from rust, corrosion and time.

Then we apply 13 pounds of paint. Inside and out.

After we inspect the parts that go into a VW, we inspect the whole VW. Then we test it. And retest it.

Maybe that's why a Volkswagen that survives the factory holds up so well when you go to sell it.

In fact, based on what's happened over the last 3 or 4 years, no other economy car brings you a bigger return on your investment than a Volkswagen Beetle.†

You see, it's easy to build a car that looks nice in a showroom.

The trick is to build one that still looks worthwhile on a used car lot.

The blindfold test.

Some people seem to think this is the way to judge a luxury car. Cadillac doesn't think so.

You know and we know that the only way to judge a luxury car is with your eyes wide open.

Look at Cadillac styling. Look at all the conveniences that are standard on a Cadillac. Look into Cadillac comfort for yourself.

Try the magnificent Cadillac ride...at the wheel and as a passenger. But, before you decide, look very carefully at the facts of luxury car ownership.

Cadillac resale value is traditionally the highest of all American made automobiles.

Cadillac owners still are the most loyal automobile owners in America. Year after year they choose Cadillac with all the facts in view.

Isn't that the sensible way to decide?

Charges of New Mob Infiltration Are Centering on Teamsters Union

By LESLIE WALLER

NEW YORK — Recent reports that the FBI has established links between organized crime and a trade union through a court wire-tapping order again raise one of the more troubling ghosts haunting the nation's labor movement.

Most unions are honest ones, law enforcement officers agree, but for some years now they have suspected a deeply buried connection between the mob and some labor leaders.

Special attention has been paid to unions in such industries as construction, dock work, warehousing and trucking. The current publicity is focused on leaders of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The two million-member Teamster Union has had problems with its leadership for some time now. Over the past decades two national leaders, Dave Beck and James Hoffa, have gone to jail on various charges including fraud and jury-tampering.

In addition, a behind-the-scenes power struggle at the highest levels of the Teamsters is reportedly in progress, applying internal pressure to the situation, as Hoffa, paroled by President Nixon with two-thirds of his sentence still unserved, is supposed to be seeking his old post as president, now held by Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

For observers of organized crime, the rise to power of the Teamsters has been studded with unusual opportunities to glimpse some inner workings of the mob. These include:

— The discovery that an official of the Chicago union (Local 777) had a lucrative racket to siphon off dues paid by cab drivers and kick them back to the cab companies;

— The report that a New Orleans mafiosi had offered a $1 million bribe to the witness who helped send Hoffa to jail if the testimony were recanted;

— The indictment on 18 counts of embezzlement of a Newark leader (Local 863) who had been a long-time associate of a leading Syndicate mobster;

— The report by a New Hampshire newspaper that the Teamsters pension and welfare funds had contributed secretly to help finance the Watergate burglaries and espionage;

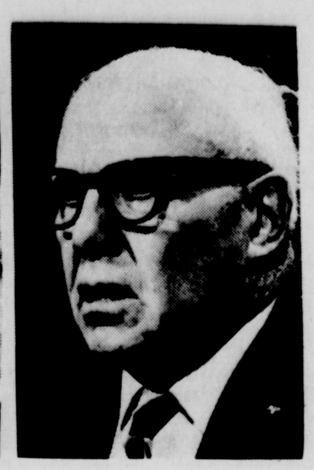
— The conviction of four top officers of the St. Louis union (Local 600) on 13 counts of embezzlement;

— The charge by George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, that the Teamsters had been hired to break up Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers, a move Meany called "vicious" and "disgraceful;"

— The regular lending of millions of dollars from the Teamsters funds to members of organized crime involved in such ventures as Las Vegas casinos and airport motels;

— The charge by a former Justice Department investigator that Murray M. Chotiner, known attorney for Syndicate figures and former Nixon confidant, had helped secure Hoffa's early release from prison;

Jimmy Hoffa



George Meany

The latest chapter in the story of mob-dominated unions involves an alleged plan by members of the Los Angeles and Chicago families of organized crime to tap Teamsters funds through a medical scheme.

Newspapers report the Federal District Court in Los Angeles authorized an FBI telephone tap in January of a local consulting firm that channels Teamster money into the underworld. The order was renewed in February.

In March, newspapers say, a report of this went from FBI Acting Director L. Patrick Gray to Attorney General Richard Kleindienst and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen.

At about the same time, the FBI requested an O.K. to place additional telephone taps because its investigation to date had indicated "a pattern of racketeering activities (with) ... officers and agents of the employee welfare benefit plan."

The request was denied and the surveillance was squashed, although Kleindienst later stated he knew nothing of this and would not have halted the inquiry if he had been informed. Shortly after the investigation was stopped, Special Counsel to the President Charles W. Colson left the White House to join a law firm to which the Teamsters' legal business was transferred.

Among the facts the FBI reports learning through its tap was the use of the luxurious La Costa resort and health spa near San Diego, Calif., as a secure place for mobsters to confer with Teamster leaders, including Fitzsimmons.

Reports overlooked the fact that La Costa, noted for a golf course that features a par-5 537-yard 17th hole, was originally built with loans from the Teamsters.

Lawmen have spent a lot of time watching the action at La Costa, most of which takes place off the links. A report of one conference, held while Hoffa was in prison, noted such participants as a long-time Cleveland mobster with Las Vegas connections, a Chicago attorney for organized crime, a former Bahamas gambling associate of Meyer Lansky and Mrs. James Hoffa.

Authorities are quick to point out, however, that the Teamsters are not unique in having apparently close ties with the mob. In construction, for example, police indicate that union members are involved in the theft of equipment and material from building sites around the country.

Since in the construction industry organized crime plays a commanding role in both unions and the businesses that employ workers, it comes as no surprise to learn that police have found contractors' trucks used on company time to transport stolen equipment. Apparently there is more profit in stealing one's own $27,000 bulldozer, for example, and collecting from the undercover buyer as well as the insurance company, than using it to help construct buildings.

The controversial International Longshoremen's Association, long a haven for mobster leaders of "pistol" locals, recently made headlines when one of its vice-presidents, William Murphy, was rubbed out gangland style in New Jersey, with $5,000 in cash in his pockets, untouched by the killers.

On the other side, authorities who believe mob control of unions to be the exception, not the rule, point out that organized crime operates a number of profitable strike-breaking concerns.

Such being the current state of affairs between organized labor and organized crime, police found nothing unusual recently when it became known that the Secretary of Labor, Peter J. Brennan, himself a product of the super-tough construction trades, not only totes a gun but has hired armed guards for his Washington office.

Q — Wednesday night I saw a Pettis County fire truck at the scene of an accident at Seventh and Limit in which a vehicle caught on fire. Are county firemen permitted to respond to calls in the city? — W. S.

A — Ronnie Ollison, Pettis County assistant fire chief, said county firemen responded to the call because the county fire station was closer to the accident site than any of the three fire stations in the city. "Whenever we're in a position to save something, we'll respond," he said. The county court has not voiced opposition to the action.

Ollison added that whenever the county fire department makes such a fire run in the city, the city fire department is notified along with the county sheriff's office.

He said his department was notified of the auto blaze by a person who came to the station. Ollison added that county firemen returned to the station shortly after a city fire truck arrived at the scene.

Q — In regard to the Hot Line question in Wednesday's paper, I would like to know how the police officer was able to determine the extent of injuries to the man hurt in an accident. — W. S.

A — The police officer who investigated the accident told Hot Line that the victim was walking about following the accident and was apparently all right with the exception of an obvious injury to his nose. He based this conclusions, he said, on the fact that the man was not apparently suffering from any other injury.

Police Chief William Miller explained that such a decision is usually made by the officer at the scene. If there is any question at all in the investigating officer's mind about the condition of an accident victim, Miller said, the first ambulance to arrive at the scene is used. In this particular case, because the injuries were not judged to be that serious, the "ambulance of the month" was authorized even though it arrived on the scene shortly after a competing firm's ambulance.

Q — If we, as taxpayers, are paying the assessor to do his job, then why should the taxpayers of Pettis County finance county reassessment? It seems if the records were maintained through the years, such a reassessment would not be necessary. — L. O.

A — The Pettis County Court judges, who favor reassessment of the county, said there are short-comings in the present system and a revaluation of county property is needed.

In a joint statement, the court said, "As long as the assessor is elected, he is going to have favorites and there is not going to be an equal assessment."

Eastern District Judge E. L. Birdsong, citing another reason for reassessment, said inflation through the years has provided inaccurate assessments of some properties. It was also pointed out the reassessment cost would be met through revenue sharing funds.

Young Girl Dies From Her Injuries

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A 2-year-old East St. Louis girl has died of injuries received when she was struck by a car last Saturday in front of her home.

Rachel Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Watson, died Friday at a St. Louis hospital.

Say Black Teachers Lose Jobs

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — School desegregation in 17 states have cost 31,500 black teachers to lose jobs at a cost to the black community of $240 million, it was asserted during a seminar in Atlanta.

Representatives of four organizations — the Southern regional office of the National Urban League, the Southern Regional Council, the National Education Association and the Southern Center for Studies in Public Policy — wrapped up a two-day conference Friday.

In a prepared statement, they said that since the 1954 Supreme Court school desegregation decision, Southern school systems "have dismissed, demoted, displaced and discriminated against untold numbers of black teachers."

They based the 31,500 figure on statistics showing that in 1970, the 17 states had 118,835 black teachers.

Based on the states' overall pupil-teacher ratios and the numbers of black pupils, there should have been 150,419 black teachers, they said.

Clarence D. Coleman, regional director for the National Urban League, said the figures did not include the black teachers and administrators "who still have jobs but have been in a sense demoted" by school consolidations.

He cited the case of a principal who became an assistant principal when schools were consolidated.

"We are sure, unless we can change the trend, that if a black school is merged with a white school, black teachers and administrators are going to suffer," Coleman said.

The 17 states involved in the study were Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Ann Landers

Woman Concerned About Personality

Dear Ann Landers: The column about "house devils and street angels" hit me where I live. Everyone who knows me socially considers me very easy-going. They all say I have a beautiful disposition, unflappable — but it's only my "street angel" facade. At home I'm a different person and I hate myself for it.

I am married to a wonderful man. He is kind and generous. I couldn't be luckier. We have an attractive, well-furnished home and two great sons. I should be thanking God every day for my blessings. But I find myself yelling at the eight-year-old for no good reason and I've been petty and mean to my husband more times than I care to think about. I wake up in the morning and tell myself, "Today will be different." But it isn't.

This is a genuine plea for help, Ann. I wasn't always this way. What is the reason for my lack of control and this depressed state? I eat constantly and am overweight. I've tried talking to my doctor about it but he tells me how lucky I am and that 95 per cent of his patients would give anything to change places with me.

I'd give anything to be happy and laugh like I used to. Can you please help me? — House Devil

Dear H.D.: The fact that you recognize the problem and want to do something about it bodes well. Go back to that doctor who told you how lucky you are and tell him you know you are lucky but you want to do something about your uncontrollable temper and periodic depressions before your luck runs out. Ask him where you can get a mental-health evaluation. It may be that an initial exploration and a few ventilation sessions will set you straight. Obviously something is bothering you. (It might be menopausal or neurological.) When you find out what it is you can then go to work on how to deal with it.

Dear Ann Landers: May I speak in behalf of "Victim in Detroit" who wrote in support of adults who would prefer NOT to associate with their parents?

You implied that compassion is a working substitute for communication and mutual respect. I refuse to accept that concept. For example: my mother-in-law is a chronic complainer. Nothing is ever right. She is the world's worst pessimist. My own parents are even more difficult to be around. Our political views are miles apart. Our religious beliefs are different from theirs. They cannot tolerate our children because they are "noisy, inquisitive and disrespectful."

We don't try to change our parents' minds about anything, yet they are constantly trying to change ours.

So what's to talk about? The weather is the only safe subject, but it soon wears out. We live several hundred miles apart. After every periodic "duty call" we return home to bind our wounds. No matter how hard we try to keep the relationship pleasant, we always part on a sour note. So, please don't knock us, Ann. We are — Heartsick Enough

Dear Friends: I'm not knocking you and I can't see that we are in disagreement. The people I have trouble with are children who want absolutely nothing to do with their parents and have written them off completely. I submit, there may well be justification for limited contact, and sometimes it is the only answer, but to shut out parents totally and forever is cruel and inhuman.

Confidential to A Nutty Scairdy Cat: You aren't a nut. You are frightened because you are unfamiliar with the facts. Every surgical procedure has inherent risks, but the operation you need is not "dangerous." Your physician can give you the reassurance you need. Talk to him.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze And You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper with your request.

Garrulous Gus looked at dummy and promptly said, "Maybe we didn't bid enough."

Pessimistic Pete, sitting North, winced. He had listened to Gus before.

East took the ace of hearts and returned the suit. Gus ruffed his king in dummy so as to be able to take a trump finesse. It lost to the singleton king and the jack of clubs was led. Gus lost that finesse also and eventually lost the diamond finesse and his contract.

If Gus had followed our precept of keeping the mouth shut and the mind open he would have made his contract.

All he had to do was to note that as long as trumps broke 2-1 that the play of the ace of trumps could not hurt him. This time it would have picked up the singleton king. But just suppose East had started with king and one trump.

After winning that first trump trick, Gus would cash his last high heart. Then he would throw East in with the king of trumps and East would be caught in an early end-play and forced to lead away from one of his kings.

Suppose West held the guarded king of trumps. In that case South was doomed to defeat from the start.

A—Bid six clubs. Your partner has shown real signs of life after your club jump and at worst the slam should depend on a finesse.

TODAY'S QUESTION

More Nations Extend Sea Territories

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — To British fishermen, Iceland's 50-mile limit is outrageous.

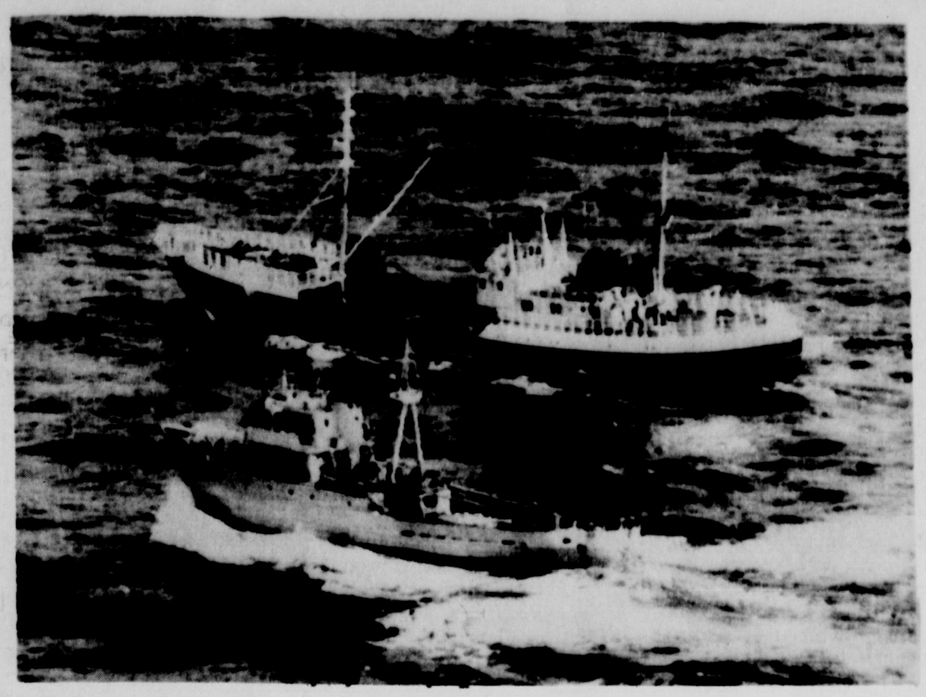
But it may be a taste of things to come as one coastal country after another stakes claims to what were once regarded as the high seas.

At least six Latin American countries, including Brazil and Argentina, have proclaimed 200-mile territorial waters. Guinea, on the west coast of Africa, claims a 130-mile wide coastal strip, Gabon 100 miles.

Many other countries have posted exclusive fishing or economic zones far offshore. They include Chile, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Peru, with 200 miles; India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka with 112 miles; Ghana, 100 miles, and Morocco, 70 miles.

Canadian Environment Minister Jack Davis said last weekend his country plans to claim exclusive fishing rights over its entire continental shelf, in some places wider than 200 miles. This would take in the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, traditional fishing grounds for the United States and many other countries.

Three miles, the traditional territorial limit, is recognized today by a dwindling number of countries, including the United States. Iceland and many others maintain that there is nothing in international law to stop a country from claiming more.



Cod War Heats Up

Icelandic vessel Arvakur, bottom of photo, moves close to the British trawler Gremsby Gavina in waters off the cost of Iceland. A British tugboat rammed by the Arvakur off the southeast coast limit, was the first in the cod war since May 19, when another Icelandic gunboat opened fire on a British trawler. (UPI)

Iceland refuses to accept jurisdiction of the World Court in its fishing dispute with Britain. It says the court has no law under which to rule.

This may change as a result of world conferences on the law of the sea planned for Geneva in July, New York in November, and Santiago, Chile, next April.

Some 90 participating nations hope to write new maritime conventions reconciling the interests of major powers, coastal nations, the affluent, the needy and the landlocked.

Preparatory meetings in early spring at U.N. headquarters indicated that general agreement may be reached on a new 12-mile maximum territorial limit — providing there is enough flexibility to grant exclusive fishing and mining preserves much farther offshore to countries demanding them.

The territorial issue would be resolved by creating a "patrimonial sea" between a country's territorial waters and international waters. In its patrimonial sea, a coastal country would have exclusive economic rights but perhaps share legal jurisdiction with other countries and with international agencies regulating such matters as seabed mining.

Width of the patrimonial sea would depend on factors such as water depth, geography, interests of nearby countries and the coastal country's technical development and needs.

The United States has announced support of the future 12-mile maximum territorial limit, provided absolute freedom of navigation is guaranteed through straits now in international waters.

On the fishing issue, it has voiced cautious approval for preferential rights to coastal countries, provided the interests of faraway fishermen are protected.

Kelley Says His Name Is Considered

KANSAS CITY (AP) — C. M. Kelley, Kansas City's police chief, says he understands he is among those being considered for the post of director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The report came Saturday morning from the Kansas City Star.

Kelley, a former FBI agent, has spent his lifetime in law enforcement.

He said Friday night he learned two weeks ago he might be chosen to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover, who died May 2, 1972.

"Yes, I was aware I was among those being considered and of course I'm pleased," Kelley said. He said he has gone to Washington twice in the last two weeks to discuss the job.

Asked if he would accept the appointment, Kelley said, "Oh yes, I'm very much open to accepting it if that possibility developed. Needless to say, I'm proud to have been considered."

Religious Movement Gains

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Under the elm trees and in campus dormitories, a vast gathering of Roman Catholics has been caught up in what they consider a rolling tide of the spirit.

"Jesus is with us," they called out. "Thank you, Lord."

It was an annual conference on charismatic renewal of the church and more than 20,000 persons showed up for its opening Friday night in the University of Notre Dame Stadium, twice the number of 1972.

"God is moving by his spirit," they chanted, eyes closed, holding their hands heavenward. "Move, oh Lord, in me."

Gold-streaked clouds of sunset overhead faded into dark and their pentecostal-type songs and melodious praying filled the air like surging currents into the morning hours.

The huge crowd came from throughout the nation and abroad, old couples, youngsters packing bedrolls and guitars, nuns, priests, some bishops and numerous Protestants. Between brief scripture readings and messages, a hush would descend over the assembly followed by soft, murmurous praying like a massive hum, gradually rising into a great outpouring of song-like prayers that somehow blended harmoniously.

This was the sound of the "praying in unknown tongues," a phenomenon characteristic of the movement, and it flowed together like synchronized improvisations of some inspired jazz band.

"It's a very exciting time to see the fire of the holy spirit sweeping across the earth," said the Rev. George W. Kosicki of the Charismatic Renewal Service Committee here, which helps guide the unofficial movement.

It started among Roman Catholic college students in 1966 after emerging earlier in many major Protestant denominations.

"What's happening here leaves me with a real sense of awe," said Bishop Joseph McKinney of Grand Rapids, Mich. "In the whole history of the church, I believe this will be America's greatest, most powerful contribution to the life of the church universal."

At one point in the massive prayer service, the voice of a lone man rang out loudly, predicting the end of the world, but he was drowned out as the crowd broke into song to the music of flutes, guitars and tambourines.

"Lord, oh Lord, we lift up our hearts to you," they sang, clapping to the rhythm.

Most of the participants here were said to have come from newly started prayer cells and prayer communes.

College Riots Left 'No Benefits'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — With the official retirement next month of Samuel Ichiye Hayakawa, Ph. D., D. Litt., LL.D., a phase of American education passes.

Not even five years ago, S. I. Hayakawa was deep in the bowers of academe, a renowned semanticist of limited fame. Then, with a plaid tam o' shanter on his round head, he mounted a sound truck which symbolized the core of student rebellion at San Francisco State University and stridently ripped out the wires.

He himself became the symbol of backlash to the disruption of the academic system by student and faculty dissenters, and eventually the restoration of authority.

It wasn't easy.

Twice the police of Mill Valley, the sylvan community where he lives, rousted him out of his home because of personal threats. Doc Hayakawa had to pay the motel bills himself for those nights.

The California Highway Patrol and the San Francisco Police Department escorted him to the campus on the southwest edge of the city, within view of the ocean, where he was elevated to the post of university president in November, 1968.

But Hayakawa's firmness — some said repressiveness — prevailed. The student-faculty strike which rent the campus in the winter of 1967-68, when many of America's colleges were enflamed, sputtered to oblivion.

So now, fewer than five years later, he sits in his office from which he controls 22,000 students, backdropped by a wall which reflects his passionate interest in Oriental and African art.

He is a small, kinetic man who can't sit still for long, but he takes time for unabashed reflection.

"The student uproar here," he reviews, "was extremely racist and extremely arrogant. Black students would protest the teaching of a course in African history by a white professor who was the only one competent to do so here. If white students had tried to prevent a black professor teaching an English course because he couldn't understand the sound of a beautiful white poet like Caucer, we'd have thrown them out for racism right away. But because they're black we condone it.

"So I say the whole thing was racist. Also elitist and arrogant because they knew what was right and wrong."

Why did it occur specifically at that time?

"It was a product of affluence, a generation brought up to believe supremely in its own opinions. They were led by people without serious career or vocational commitments. They didn't come out of business administration or engineering. They came out of liberal arts and social science.

"It was true at Harvard, Berkeley and Columbia. And here. Many of them, I think, were simply draft evaders."

Was his firmness responsible for quelling the unrest?"

"I think so. I saw no other solution. College teachers and professors, me included, are all pretty nice guys. We try to understand our students. Even if they display irrationality, we try to reason with them.

"I think an administrator's task is different. He has to maintain conditions under which education can be continued. I had to suspend my ordinary teacherly functions of trying to understand unreasonable howling mobs.

"I just had to call in the cops to restore the kind of order under which the majority of students could go back to class."

Some bitterness still lingers among faculty and students who have branded him a stooge of Gov. Ronald Reagan (who applauded Hayakawa). They deplore his authoritarianism.

"So much of my fan mail," retorts Hayakawa, "came from people who had never been to college themselves, sometimes badly misspelled, ungrammatical, letters saying, 'I never got past fifth grade and can't understand kids trying to tear up the place.' "

Were there any benefits to the educational process from the student commotions?

"No. No benefits whatsoever. There was disruption of peoples' education, destruction of academic standards, the introduction of a lot of contentless courses, so-called 'relevant.' For a couple of years, black students, for example, were simply staging grounds for revolutionary propaganda."

During the five years since he became president of the university has he been able to pursue his own scholarly interests?

"Nothing. Of course, I reflected on these events. So many faculty, particularly in the Ivy League colleges, have this liberal sympathy for the underdog. No one surveyed the Negro masses to find out if the Black Panthers really represented what they wanted. They just took the Panthers' or the Black Students Union's word for it and white liberals supported them, like Kingman Brewster of Yale.

S.I. Hayakawa

"I myself know something about Negro masses, having worked for a Negro newspaper (the Chicago Defender) and having spent much of my adult life within the Negro community. I knew the Black Panthers didn't stand for any large constituency and therefore I could take a stand against them. I was called every kind of damn racist, of course."

Did he come out of this whole experience with a good feeling?

"It's been good for me. Lot of self-insight, lot of confirmation of basic beliefs. I was 62 years old when I got into this. I wasn't a kid. I knew what the hell I wanted to do, what my values were. I am a teacher of semantics. I am a licensed psychologist in the state of California. I believe in therapeutic communication and still do. I also understand there are limits. In the heat of battle, if someone is coming at you with a bayonet charge, you don't commit psychotherapy on the guy. You defend yourself.

"The error of most people in administration was trying to achieve therapeutic communication where it was totally inappropriate. The history of the triumph of Nazism in Europe is a perfect example of what happens and this was in the back of my mind. Especially when I watched Berkeley go to hell in 1964."

Hayakawa's work in semantics, manifested publicly with his best-selling book, "Language in Action" in 1941, stemmed from a study of the word tactics of Naziism. Now he has been asked to write a book on his adventures as a university president and intends to do so in retirement.

Will he miss the excitement?

"There hasn't been any for a few years," he says, and shrugs.

FOR ROGER MOORE, the new James Bond

As the third actor to play James Bond in movies, will it be hard to follow in Sean Connery's footsteps as agent 007? Will this be the last episode? —D.O.R., Hayward, Calif.

● Actually, I would have been the first to play James Bond in "Dr. No" if I hadn't been involved with "The Saint." Producer Harry Saltzman offered me the film, but I had to turn it down and he gave it to Sean Connery. Five Bond films later, he asked me to do "The Man With the Golden Gun," and I signed for it. The filming was to be done in Cambodia, but when hostilities erupted there, the project was scrapped. We finally got together on "Live and Let Die." I've signed for two others. Ian Fleming had some unpublished manuscripts that will form the basis of other James Bond films. As for Sean, he and I are good friends. We're two different actors, so I intend to play Bond my way and not follow his interpretation of the role.

FOR HOWARD COSELL, sportscaster

Do you believe big-time sports belong on college campuses? —R. F. Kane, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I'm dead set against a big-time college sports program because I think it defies and thwarts the purposes of a large university. The premium must be placed on academics. The moral breakdown of an athlete begins when he's recruited for college.

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON

Whatever happened to Mr. Nixon's dog Checkers, associated with one of his speeches years ago?—David W. Gray, Mansfield, Ohio

● Checkers died in 1964 and was buried at Bide-A-Wee Associates Pet Cemetery in Wantagh, Long Island.

FOR SUSAN SAINT JAMES, star of "McMillan and Wife"

I've heard that you're a vegetarian. Is this true? If so, why? —Donna Powers, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● That's true, I am a vegetarian. I simply can't bear the thought of killing animals for food.

FOR GARY GRIMES,

I hear an actor can't make much money from his first movie. Does that mean that you could still be poor despite "Summer of '42"?—R. L., Maywood, Calif.

● I had to sign a contract before I did the screen test, otherwise I wasn't going to have the opportunity to act in the first place. So I signed and was therefore restricted from making any strong financial gains. Although the film made about $20 million, I'm not as well off as I could be. But at least Warner Bros. gave me the opportunity.

FOR GENE RODDENBERRY producer of "Star Trek"

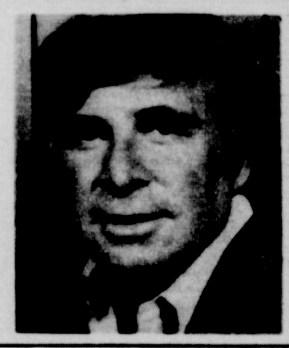
Any chance that you'll make a new "Star Trek" series for TV? It was such a good show.—R. Waller, Sarasota, Fla.



● "Star Trek" is coming back this fall as an animated series. It will be shown on NBC-TV late Saturday mornings—but it it won't be a "kiddy show." Many previous "Star Trek" writers will be with us. William Shatner has signed on to do the voice of Capt. James Kirk, and we're sure many others of the original cast will recreate their characters as well.

FOR BOB GIBSON, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher

I understand you were with the Harlem Globetrotters. Why did you quit?—Dan McAuliffe, Council Bluffs, Iowa

● I was with the Harlem Globetrotters for one season and I quit because Bing Devine [general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals] asked me to. He suggested it would be better for my baseball career if I didn't play basketball in the off-season.

FOR JULIA CHILD, "The French Chef"

Can you tell if a strange restaurant is good or bad without testing the food?—Ann E. Regan, Brighton, Mass.

● Yes. I can tell a good restaurant a short time after entering it by its smells. The good one smells good.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

In a recent Family Weekly article on the "Secret Sexist Test," you equated Frank Sinatra with tenderness. How do you explain this in view of his recent display of bad manners in public?—Mrs. Aaron May, Wilmington, N. C.

● All I meant was that many of Sinatra's most popular songs deal with love and romance, and could appeal to a man who has a tender spot in his emotional makeup. My comment was not a reading of Mr. Sinatra's character.

This Is How It Is Today in Palm Beach, The Land of the Super-Rich

Since her marriage to Stephen "Laddie" Sanford in the mid-thirties, Mary Duncan Sanford has ruled Palm Beach society along with Marjorie Merriweather Post.

Gregg Dodge Moran and Mary Sanford are rarely seen this close together. Their years-old feud keeps them at least a room apart.

FAMILY WEEKLY

By Sheilah Graham

Author and columnist Sheilah Graham is known for her long-time incisive reporting of the Hollywood scene. Born in a London slum, she has become an impressive figure in the world of the wealthy and well-known.

Celia (Mrs. Victor) Farris is the leading Palm Beach hostess after her friend Mary Sanford. Who would have thought that so much could be achieved with milk cartons?

John MacArthur would be welcome at any soiree, but he doesn't attend many. He prefers the simple home-cooking prepared by his wife, despite his untold millions.

Fifty years ago, back in the 1920's, Palm Beach, Fla., society was like this: You had to produce five generations of pure Aryan blood to be a member of the Everglades and Jockey clubs; The Breakers and all the top hotels were "restricted"; and plebeian Sir Harry Oakes would not allow Joseph Kennedy in his house. But there was a chink in the armor, for even then talent could jump the barriers of exclusivity.

Today, almost anyone with a thousand dollars to donate to charity can enter the doors of the most aristocratic families – those that are left. There is no such thing as a restricted hotel or club—you can sue, as a Jewish family did a couple of years ago, to smash The Breakers taboo, so that it is now 80 percent Jewish, and much more lively than in the stodgy past.

Today you can see Old Guard Charlie Munn dancing cheek to cheek with ex-chorus girl Gregg Dodge Moran, the wife of an ex-vice cop from the Bronx. And 80-plus-year-old Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, now an aristocrat in her own right, may be doing a sprightly turn with Greg Juarez, who used to be a bit player turned press agent in Hollywood. Now Greg is a millionaire with an exquisite art gallery on Worth Avenue, the Fifth Avenue of Palm Beach.

Today, a former minor newspaperwoman, Betty Betz McMahon, can bring the top drawer to her beautiful home by the ocean for pre-Easter lunch cocktails and supper dances for charity. Betty's Canadian husband is among the three richest men in the world.

Some of the Old Guard members are still around – like the Phippses, the Shevlins, the Munns, the Loel Guinnesses, the Bakers, the Biddles, the Drexels, Stanton Griffis. Marjorie Merriweather Post, who once gave three square dances a week in the huge playhouse, now limits herself to one. She holds only intimate dinner parties inside the house. When the 86-year-old grande dame flits to her heavenly abode, her magnificent house will be used by visiting kings, presidents, and domestic and foreign dignitaries. The Post Toasties heiress, several times wed, is determined that her beloved Mar-a-Lago will not be torn down to become a housing development for middle-income retirees, as happened with Mrs. Stotesbury's El Mirasol.

There are still six servants in Mar-a-Lago's kitchen, six butlers, two chauffeurs, a half-dozen maids and six gardeners. But at one time there were 60 servants, plus a crew of 72 for "The Hussar," the world's largest sailing yacht.

The No. 1 hostess in Palm Beach today is Mary Duncan Sanford. She has ruled with

"MacArthur... is so wealthy he should send CARE packages to Howard Hughes."

Mrs. Post since her marriage to Laddie Sanford in the mid-thirties. Mary was never a big star, but she made a hit on Broadway in the late twenties in "The Shanghai Gesture." She played an inmate of a brothel, which was very shocking in the twenties. After a brief fling in Hollywood, she married multimillionaire Stephen "Laddie" Sanford. He was a famous polo player then, but he is now a cripple and is fed with a spoon by his charming wife.

You won't find the current richest man in Palm Beach, John MacArthur, at any gathering, social or charitable. MacArthur, brother of the late playwright Charlie MacArthur, who married Helen Hayes, is so wealthy he should send CARE packages to Howard Hughes. But—he dresses atrociously and lives in a small apartment in West Palm Beach, on the wrong side of Lake Worth. His wife still cooks for this man who owns the Palm Beach Spa, big hunks of Florida and sizable

How It Is In Palm Beach

The Zauderers are relative newcomers to the Palm Beach scene, but they are as exclusive as the Old Guard. Guess who their son-in-law is?

Greg Juarez, former Hollywood bit player and press agent, is now a millionaire art gallery owner who does ballroom turns with Rose Kennedy.

Wide World

Marjorie Merriweather Post remains the grande dame of Palm Beach. She may not be able to take her wealth with her, but she is going to safeguard what she has to leave behind.

Pictorial Parade

In her early days in Palm Beach, Rose Kennedy was on the outside looking in. Times have changed. She is now one of the most invited and indefatigable of partygoers.

including, of course, organizers Mary Sanford and Mrs. Jock "Brownie" McClean, daughter-in-law of the famed Hope diamond, by way of a chorus line and a marriage to Schrafft candy. There was a fund-raising gala recently at The Breakers to honor talkative Martha Mitchell, because when they run out of charity balls there are cocktail parties or supper dances for a visiting celebrity. Parties, parties, for every reason, some admirable, some because what else is there to do when you are rich and socially ambitious? The sole problem — not enough men to go around.

Mary Sanford's door is closed to some of the new society. Especially to Gregg Moran. Their feud has lasted several years. Gregg was angry when Mary did not invite her to a party when some of Gregg's pals had received the precious white card. She complained loudly and bitterly, and blew any chance she subsequently might have had. The acrimony between the two party givers has reached the point where if you go to a Moran affair you are taboo at the Sanfords. I have heard several younger socialites in this party-mad village whisper apprehensively, "I hope Mary doesn't find out I've been to Gregg's."

In a bygone decade, Old Guard Charlie Munn dictumed, "A gentleman is a man who pronounces to-may-to as to-mah-to." In Palm Beach's upper echelons today, that is still true, especially among the children of the newly rich.

Palm Beach, odd as it may seem, was discovered and founded by people whose parents had come steerage to make their fortunes in the hospitable United States. In 1893, Henry Morrison Flagler founded the famed resort, 70 miles north of Miami. He was determined to make it the world's most splendid playground. The son of a poor Presbyterian minister, he married his late wife's nurse, and then went to Florida and started building hotels. Between buying and building, he described West Palm Beach as "the city I am building for my help."

In 1894, his company constructed the Royal Poinciana Hotel, six stories high and the tallest wooden structure up to that time. The hotel, with its 32 acres, included tennis courts, golf, nightclubs and a dining room to seat 2,000 people. Ring Lardner, the famed wit of the '20's and '30's said, "To phone from one end to the other would be a toll call."

"Parties, parties, for every reason, some admirable, some because what else is there to do when you are rich and socially ambitious? The sole problem—not enough men to go around."

In the old days, the season was over after Washington's Birthday. Now it lingers until the end of April, with more and more residents making their beautiful mansions into year-round homes. Florida, which has no state income tax, is a haven of a sort for the rich, and many are choosing to live there, especially in Palm Beach, even though its prices, as everywhere else, are again on the rise.

Perhaps the biggest change of all in Palm Beach is the emergence of the Jewish multimillionaires, who are sometimes as exclusive as the great hostesses of yesterday. The Zauderers (their son-in-law, Peter Duchin, was brought up by the W. Averell Harrimans) are as exclusive as the Doc Holdens, the Whitneys or the Huttons.

Cosmetician Estee Lauder has two homes in Palm Beach. She spends the winter in one and rents the other. She gives many parties, and the Munns—do they ever stay at home? — attend, as do the Charles Wrightsmans and the indefatigable Rose Kennedy. The Charles (Paint and Powder) Revsons give and attend most of the charity parties. But blacks are still excluded. When David Frost and his then financée, Diahann Carroll, appeared in Palm Beach last winter, they did not receive the invitations that would have been showered on Mr. Frost alone.

Many Palm Beachers who feel that the paradise has become tawdry are moving away to Hobe Sound, thirty miles to the north. Of those who remain and who are not too old to be called The Younger Set, I predict that blonde, attractive Celia (Mrs. Victor) Farris will soon be rated among the top hostesses of the new, uninhibited, less artificial, less snobbish Palm Beach. Mrs. Farris was well known in the London theater as Celia Lipton, before she married philanthropist Victor, who has more than 200 inventions to his credit, including the milk carton (20 million of them are used each day). They have a beautiful oceanside home, Casa del Mar, with a swimming pool practically in the ocean and an 85-foot yacht.

Celia's best friend in Palm Beach is Mary Sanford, who is still the Queen, and who, I believe, will pass the crown to Celia when she abdicates the throne.

property all over the U.S. (He recently added the huge Gulf and Western Building in New York to his holdings.) Mr. MacArthur would, of course, be welcome at any soiree or charity event. But that is one reason he avoids them, since he would be asked to dig into his capacious pockets.

Oh, the balls for charity! The Heart Ball on Valentine's Day. The Good Samaritan Hospital Benefit. The Red Cross Ball. The tea party for the St. Edwards Guild. The Christmas Capers. The St. Mary's Hospital Auction dinner dance. The April in Paris Ball, with half of Palm Beach at the Waldorf's Grand Ballroom in New York,

SO YOU WANT TO MOVE TO PALM BEACH...

Is it possible, in these inflationary times, that there can still be paradises for the rich? What is life like today in Palm Beach, the grande dame of all such resorts? Some interesting data:

- Condominium apartments. You can pick up one for $30,000-$75,000. In prewar days, visitors spent this much on a private railroad car just to get there!
- Private homes. These may cost you a bit more. One was recently built at a reported cost of $3 million.
- Transportation. Palm Beach has a population of 50 Rolls-Royces year-round, 300 in season.
- Children. Not an ideal spot for small fry. (The median age in Palm Beach is 58.) The best schools are two private schools — $1,900 tuition.
- Median income. $40,000-$50,000 a year.
- Real estate prices. $2,000 a foot for waterfront property. Somewhat less inland.
- Miscellaneous. Hanging out clothes is prohibited. So is selling food or drink in the open. No drive-ins allowed, except banks. No neon signs allowed. No undecorated store windows allowed. Men must wear shirts at all times.

The Rich Men of American Sports

"When I came up to the majors, the guys sat around reading 'The Sporting News.' Now they read 'The Wall Street Journal.' "
—Whitey Ford, ex-Yankee

In today's sports-mad world, the heroes of our playing fields and arenas have become spectacular money-makers, breaking banks all over the map as they cash in on adulation. FAMILY WEEKLY has talked with a number of leading experts on the financial lives of the really wealthy sports figures to determine which athletes derive the largest annual incomes and which sports offer the biggest rewards for excellence. The result is this "Who's Who of the Sports Dollar," from Arnold Palmer to A. J. Foyt. The actual dollar amounts mentioned here are in most cases the educated guesses of the experts we consulted. "It would take a team of accountants most of a day to figure out exactly what these men are worth," says one of these spokesmen on sports money matters.

Arnold Palmer: His company grossed $55 million last year.

ARNOLD PALMER, Golf
(Estimated Net Worth: $20 million)

Arnold Palmer was golf's first millionaire and evidently is the richest active athlete. The 43-year-old native of Latrobe, Pa., is kingpin of the largest business conglomerate ever operated by an athlete. It is said that

Nicklaus: An Income Estimated at $1 Million

Wide World

Jack Nicklaus' conglomerate embraces some 30 ventures.

Willie Shoemaker: Texas oilman and Arizona rancher.

JACK NICKLAUS, Golf

(Estimated Net Worth: $15 million)

Since Jack Nicklaus lost that surplus weight in the past couple of years, all he seems to gain is income. In 1971 and 1972, in addition to earning record totals of prize money on the PGA tour, Nicklaus has considerably expanded his business ventures, with the assistance of Mark McCormack.

It is believed that Jack draws an annual income from all sources of close to $1 million. The diversity of profitable payoffs available to successful athletes is well illustrated by the empire already under Nicklaus' control. Jack's Golden Bear Enterprises is a conglomerate of some 30 ventures Nicklaus operates with his partner, Putnam Pierman. Through this network, the big golfer, a graduate of Ohio State, designs and endorses clothes (shoes, hats, shirts) that bear his name on the label; promotes a power lawn mower, fishing gear and airline tours; serves as goodwill ambassador for a major car manufacturer; appears on TV commercials; and seeks customers for a printing business.

Of course, Nicklaus also derives vast amounts from golf-related business. He designs golf courses, clubs and bags, and writes instructional films on the sport.

In 1971, the 33-year-old pro became the first golfer to accumulate more than $200,000 in prize money in one year, when he totaled $244,490. Last year he won seven tournaments and broke through the $300,000 barrier with $320,542.

WILLIE SHOEMAKER, Thoroughbred Racing

(Estimated Net Worth: $10 million)

Willie Shoemaker is probably the littlest millionaire in sports—he stands 4 feet, 11 inches and weighs 100 pounds. But he has developed one of the largest fortunes of any athlete because of his prowess in piloting thoroughbreds across the finish lines of tracks from coast to coast. Now in his 25th year as a jockey, "The Shoe" entered 1973 with 6,439 winning rides, more than any other rider in history. Willie's mounts have earned the astonishing total of nearly $50 million for their owners. Based on the standard ten percent fee that usually goes to the winning jockey in a race, this means that Willie has taken in about $5 million just from the track.

Despite some injuries in the late sixties, the 42-year-old Texan has seen no reason to retire. He has come back strongly from his layoffs, piloting his mounts to purses of well over $2 million in each of the past three years, including more

In a Title Bout, $55,555 a Minute!

Wide World

Muhammad Ali: His title fight with Joe Frazier was an all-time money earner.

MUHAMMAD ALI, Boxing
(Estimated Net Worth: $8 million)

One of the most controversial figures in all of sports history, Muhammad Ali ascended to the world heavyweight boxing championship as Cassius Clay back in 1964, when he stopped Sonny Liston in the seventh round of their bout in Miami Beach. The heavyweight title is one of the most valuable prizes in sports, because of the potential income from championship matches to come. For example, Ali's share of the purse when he fought Liston in Miami Beach, including percentages of the box office, closed-circuit TV, radio, etc., was $360,000. When, as defending champion, Ali defeated Liston for the second time in 1965, his share was $480,657.

The title fight between Ali and Joe Frazier in New York on March 8, 1971, was the most lucrative sports event of all time for the participants. Each fighter was guaranteed $2.5 million. The bout, which Frazier won, lasted all 15 rounds. At three minutes a round, this came out to $55,555.56 a minute for each fighter.

Ali has earned considerable outside money for commercials and personal appearances. He and his family make their home in a lavish mansion-type setting in the Cherry Hill section of New Jersey, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Who's Worth More—an Athlete or a President?

In 1930, the New York Yankees created a worldwide sensation when they paid the great Babe Ruth a salary of $80,000. With the country plunged in deep economic depression, it seemed unconscionable to many people that a baseball player could earn such a wage.

"Do you realize that's more than President Hoover is making?" somebody asked the Babe one day. Ruth shrugged his shoulders and replied, "Yeah, well, I had a better year than he did."

KAREEM ABDUL-JABBAR, Basketball
(Biggest Rookie's Contract: $1.4 million)

Formerly known as Lew Alcindor, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is the towering center of the Milwaukee Bucks. When he graduated from UCLA in 1969, after leading the Bruins to three consecutive national college championships, he was the object of the most concentrated efforts ever made to sign a new professional player. The New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, representing his hometown, reportedly offered Kareem a contract worth $1 million. Milwaukee signed him for $1.4 million.

In two of his first three seasons in the NBA, Abdul-Jabbar, whose Islamic name means "generous and powerful servant of Allah," was named the Most Valuable Player in the league. He led Milwaukee to the NBA championship in 1971. After his third season, he signed a new contract for three years, reportedly worth more than $1.5 million. Kareem owns homes in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., in addition to one in a Milwaukee suburb, where he and his wife and daughter live during the basketball season.

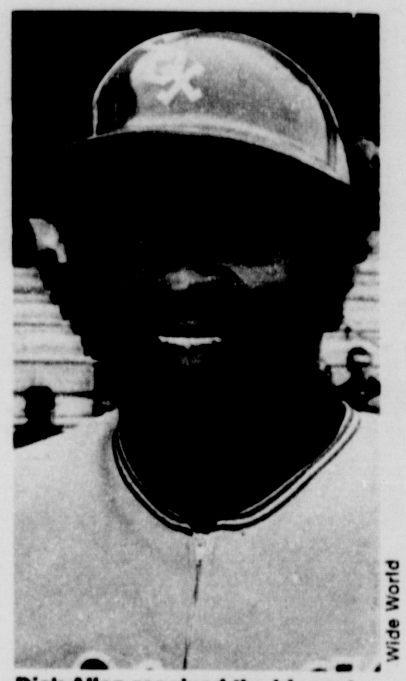
DICK ALLEN, Baseball
(Fattest Baseball Contract: $675,000)

After playing for four different major-league teams in as many seasons, slugger Dick Allen has found a home at first base for the Chicago White Sox. Last year, Allen nearly took a White Sox team, one that had been called an also-ran before the season, to the American League's Western Division championship. The team was in first place as late as August 28. He ended his first American League season by leading the league in home runs with 37, in RBI's with 113; and he finished third in the batting race at .308.



Wide World

Dick Allen received the biggest contract that was ever awarded a baseball player.

For this brilliant performance, which also included 28 doubles, 19 stolen bases and a league-leading fielding average among first basemen, Dick was not only named the Most Valuable Player in the American League, he also was given the biggest contract ever awarded a baseball player. Allen is receiving approximately $675,000 for three seasons, including this one, or about $225,000 per year. Other high salaries in Which Sports Yield The Biggest Cash?

Put a golf club in your boy's hands! Or, if he insists on being part of a team, see that he takes up basketball.

These are the conclusions to be drawn from conversations with Boston attorney Robert G. Woolf and investment expert Richard Alford of the giant International Management Group in Cleveland. They specialize in athletes' business interests.

"Because of the competition between the NBA and ABA," says Woolf, "pro basketball players are earning an average of $72,000 a year. In the pros this past season, there were 54 players with salaries of at least $100,000, and by next season there might well be about 65 in that class."

But in the potential for riches, team sports take a back seat to individual sports such as golf and automobile racing. For one thing, athletes in individual sports seem to have a greater capacity for generating outside sources of income. "Team athletes are more restricted by their schedules than individual athletes," explains one business manager. "They are not as free to make appearances around the country. Also, an individual athlete is more easily identifiable to the public than most athletes in team sports."

Sixteen golfers earned more than $100,000 in tour prizes in 1972, but most supplemented their income tremendously with endorsements of clubs and other products. There were several auto racers in the $500,000 class last year, with stock-car stars Richard Petty and Bobby Allison joining Mark Donohue, Peter Revson, Jackie Stewart and A. J. Foyt.

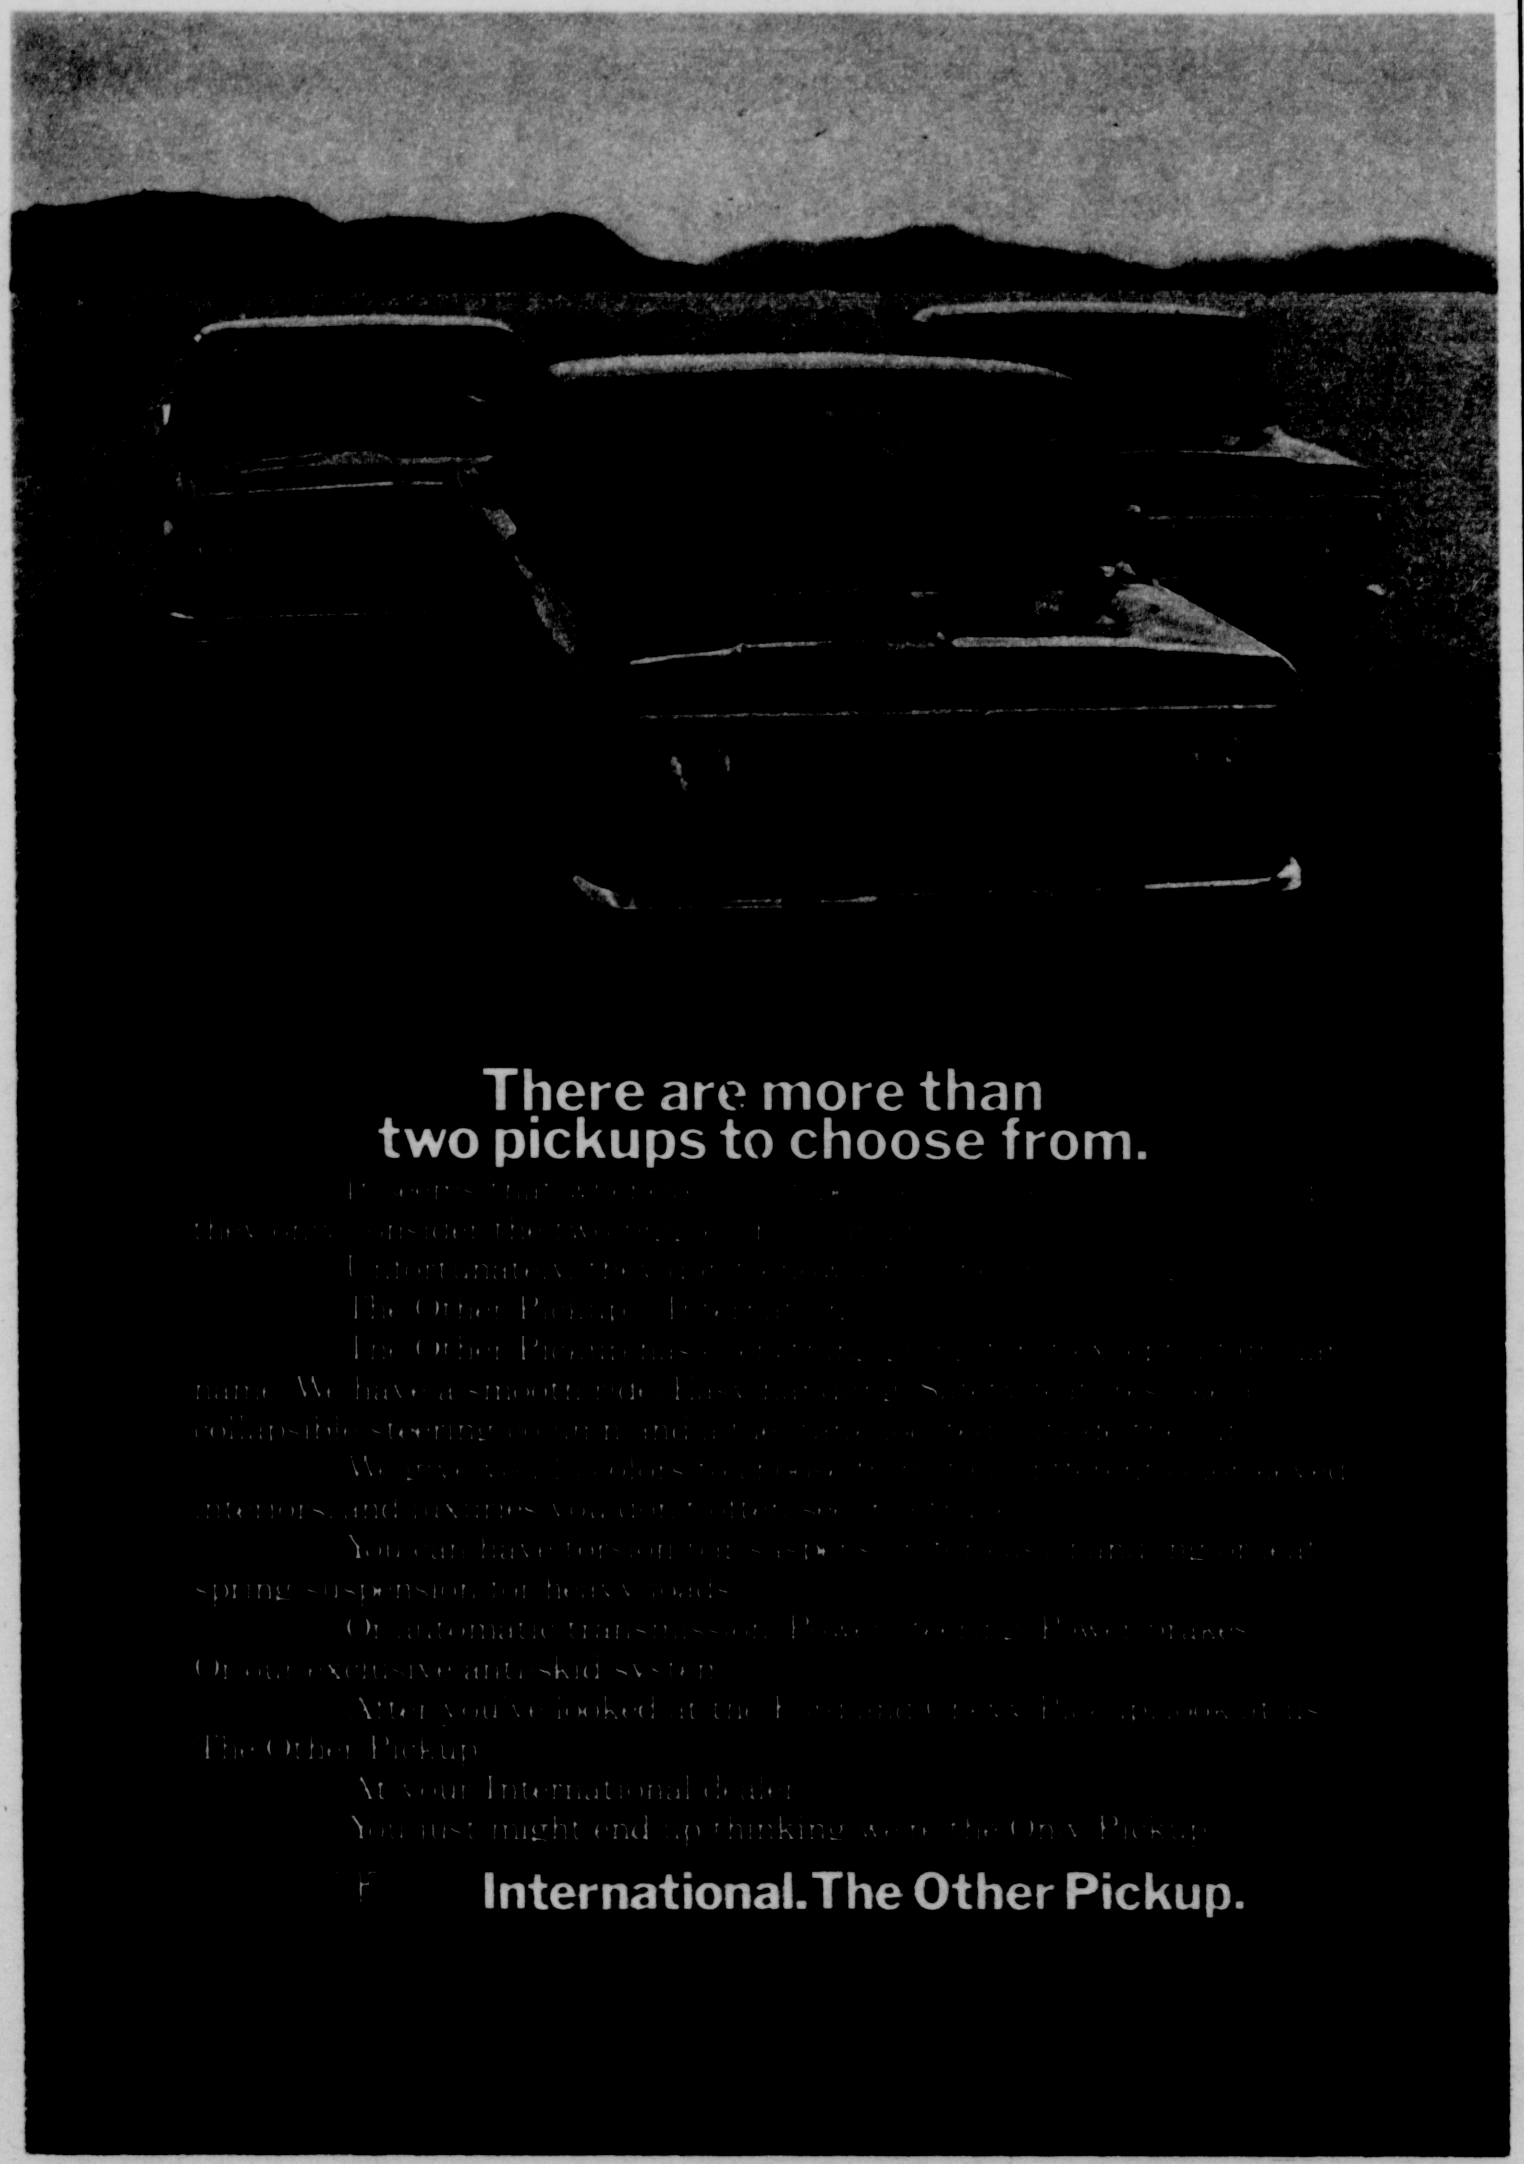
Foyt: The First to Top a Million baseball are being earned by Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox, Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Willie Mays of the New York Mets, Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals. Aaron supposedly is the only player besides Allen in the $200,000-salary class.

When he was with the Phillies, Allen had a clause in his contract that placed his mother on the team's payroll. Apparently, he doesn't need clauses like that any more.



A. J. FOYT, Auto Racing
(Estimated Net Worth: $7 million)

A. J. Foyt, the only active driver who has won the Indianapolis 500 three times (1961, 1964 and 1967), was the first American racer to earn more than $1 million in prize money. Five times national champion of the U.S. Auto Club, Foyt now has exceeded the million-dollar mark in USAC purses alone, driving in every type of competition possible—championship cars, stock cars, midgets and sprints. Foyt also has won more than $275,000 on the NASCAR Grand National circuit. His 43 championship car victories for USAC through 1972 represent history's biggest total by a single driver.

Foyt became a major attraction in racing in 1961, the year he won the Indy 500 for the first time, and he has been reaping the harvest ever since. He has commanded more money in endorsements, guarantees, promotions and tie-ins with parts manufacturers than any other driver. His annual income from outside sources is said to exceed $250,000, and may be much higher. He has a car agency in his hometown of Houston. He designs and builds his own cars, and maintains lucrative ties with a major tire company and a long list of sponsors.

Though he is one of the wealthiest men in sports, A. J. is so devoted to racing that he has been known to pass up a $1,500 speaking engagement to run a race whose top prize was $600.

Wide World

Wilt Chamberlain's super-mansion cost a cool $1.5 million.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN, Basketball

(Estimated Net Worth: $3 million)

For the past 14 years, basketball great Wilt Chamberlain has commanded one of the largest salaries in sports. But his earning power has been magnified considerably since he joined the Los Angeles Lakers in 1968. His yearly salary for playing basketball has been well in excess of $250,000 since that time, and has been reported as high as $400,000.

Chamberlain, a 7-1 center who has scored more points and taken down more rebounds than any other pro basketball player, is a bachelor who occupies what must be the most opulent pad in the country. Nestled in the hills outside Los Angeles, it is a five-story residence that is entered through a 14-foot-high front door. The bedroom, with a bed that measures 72 square feet, takes up the entire second floor of the house. The house cost Wilt a reported $1.5 million.

Wilt adds to his basketball income by doing commercials for cars, castor oil and clothes. He also invests in office buildings.

Bobby Hull's off-ice speciality is breeding and raising polled Herefords.

BOBBY HULL, Hockey

(Largest Sports Contract in History: $3.5 million)

Never was the signing of a single player so crucial to the establishment of a new professional sports league than when the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association enlisted the services of Bobby Hull as player-coach last summer. Hull had been a superstar for the Chicago Black Hawks of the long-established National Hockey League, scoring 604 goals in 15 seasons. But the owners of the 11 other WHA teams joined with Ben Hatskin, owner of the Winnipeg club, in awarding Hull a $3.5 million contract, starting off with a bonus of $1 million.

Until hockey salaries started escalating rapidly in recent sea-

Namath: A Great Help to Advertisers

JOE NAMATH, Football
(Estimated Yearly Income: Over $500,000)

The 1965 signing of Joe Namath by the New York Jets for a reported $427,000, including a bonus of $200,000 in deferred payments, touched off negotiations that led to the eventual merger of the National and American Football leagues five years later. Namath has been setting off sparks ever since. Despite the fact he missed most of the 1970 and 1971 seasons because of injuries, he was the center of controversy when he held out for a $500,000 contract covering the 1972 and 1973 campaigns.

Wide World

Joe Namath: His TV commercials get top viewer response.

Joe's income from sources outside football has catapulted him into the company of the wealthiest sports stars. Three of the products he endorses on television—a chocolate drink, a shaving cream and a line of men's footwear—rank among the top 100 commercials in terms of viewer responses. Namath also appears in ads for a typewriter, for a line of menswear and for a popcorn-making machine.

Few athletes have enjoyed the kind of all-round achievement Namath has. He has had three starring roles in films, has conducted a syndicated television talk show, is a frequent guest on other TV programs, runs an instructional football camp for boys in the summer and owns three restaurants—in Boston, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Tuscaloosa, Ala. Joe, still a bachelor at 30, divides his time between a luxurious apartment on the East Side of New York and a residence in Miami.

sons, Hull was a rarity in the sport—a $100,000-a-year performer. He signed a four-year contract for $400,000 with Chicago in 1968, then balked at playing when tax benefits that had been promised him were not forthcoming. His differences with the Black Hawks were quickly resolved.

The Blond Bomber of hockey has used a lot of the money from his new contract to enlarge his ranch and land holdings in and near his hometown of Point Anne, Ontario. During his years as a star with the Black Hawks, Bobby built up a cattle enterprise of four ranches. He is one of Canada's major cattle owners, specializing in polled Herefords, and is a heavy land investor. Hull also makes money on hockey equipment and personal appearances.

ROD LAVER, Tennis
(Estimated Net Worth: $1 million)

As his nickname, "Rocket" implies, Rod Laver was the first tennis player to rocket into the million-dollar athlete class. The Australian redhead has been a professional since 1963, and in his first ten years as a pro, he earned purses approaching $1.5 million.

Wide World

Rod Laver is the first million-dollar tennis player.

Laver is fortunate to be competing in an era when open play—competition between pros and amateurs—is dominant, and when pro tennis stars have the capacity to earn as much as pros in other sports. Open tennis became a reality in 1968. The next year Laver captured the Grand Slam, winning the Wimbledon, the French, the Australian and the U.S. championships—"amateur" tournaments for which he previously had been ineligible.

In 1970 and 1971 southpaw Rod established prize-money records for tennis, winning $210,453 and $292,717 respectively. Add to that endorsements for tennis racquets and other products arranged for him by Mark McCormack, and you can figure that Laver earned well in excess of $300,000 in each year.

(He "got" dad the $99.95* McCulloch Mini Mac 1).

Actually, mom was the one who bought it. But the whole thing was his idea.

What a chain saw! The Mini Mac 1 has a featherweight power unit (only 6.9 pounds) so that dad can really fly—through cutting firewood, limbing, pruning and building that patio furniture. Its 10-inch bar cuts a 6-inch log in just five seconds...and even zips through 20-inch logs.

And that price put a big smile on mom's face. She said: "When you can get a McCulloch for $99.95, why pay more?"

P.S. Your dad might prefer the indoor-outdoor Mini Mac Electric, also $99.95.

SAVES UP TO 2 GALLONS OF GAS EVERY HOUR!

And Gives You Up To 25% More Horsepower Doing It!

How? By eliminating "Fuel-Pump Slop-Over"! And thus feeding your car up to 25% LESS gas (as much as two gallons an hour in heavy stop-and-go driving) . . . at the same exact time that it gives you up to 25% MORE Horsepower doing it! Like this . . .

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO YOU? Just this—

- Up to 8 miles MORE per gallon—INSTANTLY!
- Jackrabbit starts—INSTANTLY!
- Skyrocket passing power—INSTANTLY!
- Up to 10 miles more per hour top speed—INSTANTLY!
- And up to $100 a year savings on your repair bills alone—INSTANTLY . . . and for as long as you drive that car!

What does it cost you? Less than a new set of spark plugs! Less than five cents for every dollar you can save on gas bills THIS YEAR ALONE!

And how does it work? As simple as this—

Stops Your Fuel-Pump From Over-Feeding Your Engine One Minute . . . And Starving It The Next!

Your car, like every other car, stores its gasoline in a gas tank . . . and then draws that gas out of that tank and feeds it to your engine with a fuel pump. This fuel pump was invented over fifty years ago! It is a mechanical idiot! It has no brain—just a pump! And therefore, it always feeds your engine THE SAME EXACT AMOUNT OF GASOLINE, whether you're stopped dead in traffic . . . or spurting past another car at eighty mile an hour!

Think about it for a moment! The way gas is fed into your engine today, when you're pulled up for a light your engine is being flooded with gas that it can't possibly burn! (That's why stop-and-go driving is so incredibly expensive—because most of your gas goes right out the tailpipe.) Then when you pick up speed again to turn onto a highway, your engine is still wasting a little less gas at 20 miles an hour . . . wasting a little less gas at 30 miles an hour . . . and finally getting just the right amount of gas for top performance at about 40 or 50 miles an hour!

And then, if you go over 50 miles an hour . . . if you really want to zoom away at 60, 70 or 80 . . . or if you need "instant-muscle" to flash away from another car on a curve . . . then your "idiot fuel pump" STILL gives you the same exact amount of gas it fed you when you were going 40 miles an hour LESS—and leaves you puffing and puffing with your neck stuck out, as though that car was 20 years old and carrying a ton of cement!

IT COULD COST YOU YOUR LIFE ON A BAD CURVE! IT DOES COST YOU UP TO $100 A YEAR ON WASTED GAS ALONE! AND IT CAN ALL BE CORRECTED— IN JUST FIVE MINUTES WITH A SCREWDRIVER—LIKE THIS . . .

Now, just picture the startling difference with this ED ALMQUIST MINI-INJECTOR on your engine—

As you can see by the photo above, the MINI-INJECTOR is small enough to hold in your hand. It slips right on to your engine, between the fuel pump and the carburetor. A 12-year-old boy can put it on perfectly, using nothing more than a screwdriver, even if he never opened the hood before. But once he's done . . . and once you switch on that engine again . . . you're going to HEAR the difference—and FEEL the difference—from the very first second that engine ROARS to life again.

Yes! ROARS to life again! Because this is a NEW TYPE OF ENGINE you're driving with from now on! An engine that operates at absolute top gas-power every single driving second! THAT DOESN'T GET ONE DROP OF GAS IT DOESN'T NEED . . . AND DOESN'T WASTE ONE OUNCE OF POWER THAT IT CAN DELIVER TO YOUR WHEELS!

And this fact shows up for you the instant you start your car! Because—even on freezing mornings—your key is hardly in the switch before that engine is purring with power! Why? Because now there's no gas-flood at all. The walls of that cold engine aren't being choked up with raw gas that keeps the spark from catching fire . . . and that then drains out into your tailpipe, exactly as though you poured it right on the ground!

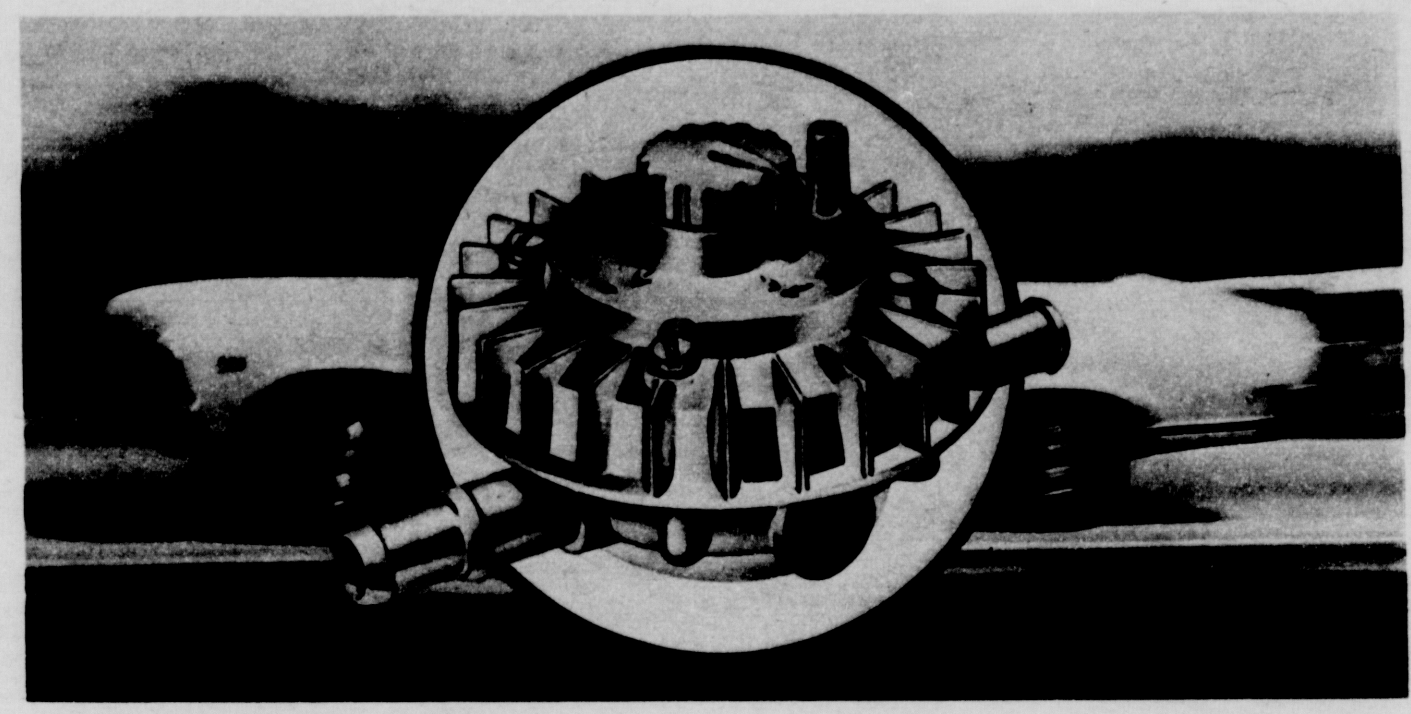
Now at this time—YOUR ENGINE ITSELF SIGNALS TO THE MINI-INJECTOR EXACTLY HOW MUCH GAS IT NEEDS TO START! And the MINI-INJECTOR tells the fuel pump to deliver JUST THAT AMOUNT OF GAS, AND NOT ONE DROP MORE!

You're off in less time than it takes a second passenger to close the door! And you're about to take the most thrilling ride of your entire driving life!

You Would Never Have Believed That Your Engine Could Deliver Power Like This! AND ALL AT A SAVING OF ONE GALLON OUT OF EVERY FIVE!

Now pull into the street and start cruising up to the first traffic light. You'll notice instantly that your foot sits lighter on the pedal . . . that your engine sounds silken-smooth . . . that it's practically floating up to that light, even though it was stone-cold only a few short seconds ago.

There's no coughing, or stalling or bucking—even in those first few cold minutes. And when you pull up to the light, and put your foot on the brake, your engine will tone right down to a contented purr. It will be quieter than you've ever heard it before, without the slightest shiver in the rest of the car itself. Because now that engine is NOT trying to spit out excess gas! Not trying to jerk away from your brake! NOT letting you know every waiting second that you're pouring money out of its tailpipe!



Now the light changes to green. Wait a second, and then carefully place your foot back on the gas pedal. Make sure to give it LESS pressure—THIS TIME—than you ever did before! BECAUSE THAT FOOT IS GOING TO GIVE YOU MORE BLAST-OFF POWER FROM THAT CAR THAN YOU'VE EVER KNOWN BEFORE! AND YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE TO SPEND A DAY OR TWO GETTING USED TO IT!

Prove It At The Lights! Prove It On The Hills! PROVE IT ON THE HIGHWAY— BY FLOATING RIGHT PAST OTHER CARS WHEN YOU WANT TO!

From that moment on, driving becomes a totally new experience for you! Because your car suddenly acts like an athlete—instead of a fat overfed fool!

Now you're not fouling that car with too much gas 80 per cent of the time! Now you're not splashing your plugs . . . eating away your valves . . . corroding your cylinders . . . or draining power out of your engine for every mile you drive!

Now, instead, for perhaps the first time in your life, you are sitting behind the kind of lean, tough, instant-response engine that only sports-car drivers knew before! An engine that flattens hills right down at the merest touch of your foot! That takes off screaming at the lights whenever you want to . . . leaves other cars sitting behind you, choking in your dust!

An engine that simply glides past other cars at 70 . . . 80 . . . 90 miles an hour—whenever you want to walk away from them! And that has so much reserve power left that you KNOW that there's no jam you can get into on the highway that it can't zoom you right out of at the lightest touch of your foot!

And—most important of all—STILL USING EVERY THRILL-PACKED SECOND ONLY THE EXACT AMOUNT OF GAS THAT IT NEEDS AT THAT INSTANT—AND NOT ONE SINGLE DROP MORE! So that the gas savings pile up—day after day . . . week after week . . . month after month! Till you've put a $20 bill back in your pocket . . . a $50 bill back in your pocket . . . a $100 bill back in your pocket—all from a simple little "engine-brain" that costs you originally less than a single set of spark plugs!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS!

Here's how it saves you up to one gallon out of every five—at the same time that it gives you the most power-packed ride of your life!

Think of this MINI-INJECTOR as having two main parts. The first is a "Miniature brain." And the second is an extra fuel pump connected right on to the brain.

Now, what happens when you put this MINI-INJECTOR onto your car is this: The miniature brain automatically senses the exact amount of gas your engine needs at every driving second (it does this by measuring the vacuum pressure within that engine from second to second).

Your fuel pump, on the other hand, has no such measuring device. So it never knows how much gas your engine really needs. So it simply delivers the same amount of gas to that engine, no matter how hard, or how easy that engine is working!

But now MINI-INJECTOR Takes over! And if your fuel pump is delivering TOO MUCH gas to that engine, MINI-INJECTOR blocks that extra gas with its own fuel pump—sends it back and holds it under compression until your carburetor calls for more gas!

Or, when your fuel pump is delivering TOO LITTLE gas to your engine (for example, when it's a life-or-death case of passing another car on a curve), MINI-INJECTOR skyrockets its own fuel pump into action, and shoots in that extra gas your engine needs, THE VERY SECOND IT NEEDS IT!

So you save the money you want—and you get the power you need—EVERY MINUTE YOU DRIVE!

Prove Every Word Of It At Our Risk! Far More Power On Far Less Gas From The Very First Second—Or We Send Every Cent Of Your Money Back!

And what's the cost for all this performance and all these savings? Only $11.98 complete—less than this MINI-INJECTOR can save you in your very first month!

And you try it entirely at our risk! Just slip it on, and measure the results! Either you're thrilled from the very first take-off—or every cent of your money back!

No ifs, ands or buts! It works for YOU, or it costs you nothing! Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . today!

How About A Lively Game of "TEGWAR"?

(The New Mod Card Game for People Who Don't Believe in Rules)

HUMOR

By Phil Foster
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

I bet you 50 cents that your first card game was Old Maid or Fish. From there you moved to bigger and better things, even a little penny blackjack, right? Now of course you've hit the big time, poker (where I come from, "bridge" is how you get to Brooklyn). But if you find yourself losing too much money or you're just bored with poker, try "TEGWAR," an original and challenging game created by author Mark Harris in his novel "Bang the Drum Slowly," which has now been made into a movie.

Now that you know where TEGWAR came from, I will secretly pass on to you the what of TEGWAR. Greater minds than ours will soon discover the why.

TEGWAR is a different game. The letters T-E-G-W-A-R stand for The Exciting Game Without Any Rules, and that is what it's all about. I am betraying a trust in explaining the game, and I'm certain that from now on I will become a marked man. But anyway, here goes . . .

First, to understand TEGWAR we must know the rules. Of course you have just read where there are no rules, so that is the first rule. Therefore:

Rule #1—There are no rules. This rule must be obeyed if there is to be a game.

Rule #2—Only four persons can play this game, unless there are two of you or three, or five, or six or whatever. One of these persons, who is known as "The Fish" but never called that, knows all the rules of card playing and must have confidence in himself as a man and TEGWAR player, even if he's never played before. The Fish begins by putting money on the table, keeping this up while other players or player or combination of the same add to, subtract from or equal the money The Fish keeps putting on the table while the same is done or abstained from by the players or person or people across the room. Any variance of this rule can cause a misdeal, except in the third match of the evening —which nullifies itself any hour before the 6 p.m. news, unless it's 10:45, in which case this rule still applies.

Rule #3—In the game itself, 12 cards are dealt out, two to each player except the player on the right who plays the discards. If in the dealing out of the two cards, a player can end the game in the following fashion by calling out "Fit 'n Fine" or "Red Rooster" (the highest count and perfect natural), both cards adding up to 15 is a perfect match or natural and this ends the game. Now the winner stays out while the other players play for the second best which can and usually does eliminate the original winner because he had no right to be there in the first place.

Rule #4—If a player has been losing all night long, the biggest winner is penalized and must give half of his winnings back to the loser, and in a head-to-head TEGWAR showdown the hands are dealt in rapid fashion and the black jack is the joker unless dealt in the previous round whereupon the

"He's a very nice man," said a tourist after an audience with Pope Paul, "but he's no more mistake-proof than I am." To a point, we would agree. It's funny, really, how many people, despite all our disclaimers, still think we believe the Pope can make no mistakes.

This isn't true. Infallibility doesn't mean the Pope can't be wrong about the date or the weather or the rate of exchange of the lira. Of course, he can. Who would ever dream of bringing the special protection of the Holy Spirit to bear on these judgments? And even in more serious religious matters, the Pope's decisions are not always infallible. In fact, very specific conditions must exist for any papal infallible decision.

You may have heard differently. Well, sometimes in the heat of debate, irresponsible things are said. Will you do us the courtesy of listening to the real story, without debate, and without heat? We would like to tell you why we consider the papacy, not an evil, scheming institution, but an expression of God's love. Write today for our free pamphlet: "The Papacy, Expression of God's Love." "TEGWAR," Anybody?

Change of Seats Play comes into effect and the player without any is the first to sit, winning or losing, if the pot is full.

Rule #5—I would think so, but see section below to make sure.

Rule #6—At this time of the night all previous commentary is to be played out, dealers dealing from the bottom of the unused deck, face up and counterclockwise.

Rule #7—If a player is taller than the minimum, then a cover charge is to be added to the 7½ percent.

Rule #8—A change of partners can only occur when the rule applies to the situation calling for a change.

Rule #9—The first team or individual scoring 300 points or more has the first "beckett" or "knowlton" — 3 "knowltons" equal 1 (one) "beckett," which doesn't count in the final tally.

Rule #10 — Anyone caught cheating is to be penalized three "trydons," which can be deadly — especially if you're playing for money.

These are the basic rules in TEGWAR (advanced players will probably want to make up more), but you don't have to follow any of the rules because there are no rules in TEGWAR except the naturals and true love. Everybody should play TEGWAR, especially families who don't talk to one another. This will solidify the break. If there are any questions — that's good. It shows you have interest and a lively mind. Please make 15 copies of these rules and send them to friends. The first one who breaks the chain will hear from the others.

People and You

Happy News—Good Samaritans Are Still Around!

If you suddenly became ill while out shopping or needed help of some other kind from a stranger, what do you think your chances might be? While it is popular nowadays to say that people are becoming cold and distant, this idea may be greatly exaggerated. In recent experiments where people appeared to collapse on a subway, other travelers offered aid 95 percent of the time. Even simple problems like a torn grocery bag produced help from strangers. In one remarkable experiment where someone appeared to be having an epileptic seizure, he always received attention. You as a fellow human being in trouble are much more likely to create a sympathetic reaction than does an impersonal group. For example, a stranger noticing someone stealing from your pocket is very likely to notify you. But if he notices someone shoplifting, he may or may not report the theft. One very interesting discovery: Big city people's reputation for minding their own business comes not from hard hearts but from their belief that the big city has a trained specialist on call—an ambulance, a policeman, etc.—to care for the matter.

Men—Do You Have Ailurophobia?

Ailurophobia is a big word that simply means "morbid fear of cats." It is not to be confused with allergy to cats. The abnormal fear of anything feline—even as small an edition as a fuzzy kitten—is not as uncommon as one might think. It is reputed to be fifth among the common illogical fears for which psychotherapy is recommended. Oddly, men seem to be much more prone to ailurophobia than women. Alexander the Great, King Louis XIV and Napoleon were all ailurophobes. The exact cause is often mysterious; it may be one of several. Whatever the cause, desensitization takes patience but is not impossible. A simple expedient is for a person to hold a cat across the room from the patient. As soon as anxiety symptoms become unpleasant, the cat should be removed. Gradually the length of exposure is increased, and the distance between cat and patient decreased. Soon the patient is able to stand next to the cat, and finally to touch it. When he can hold the cat without anxiety, he is usually cured.—By Felicia Ames

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a rich Strawberry Cheesecake. Marilyn says: "June is Dairy Month — but it is also the season for strawberries. So I've paired them in this creamy cheesecake. Now some might say this is sort of expensive for just a dessert. And it is. But it is so irresistible, you owe it to yourself to try it. This recipe serves 12."

Smooth and Creamy Strawberry Cheesecake

STRAWBERRY CHEESECAKE

- 1 cup graham-cracker crumbs
- ¼ cup firmly packed light-brown sugar
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 5 pkgs. (8-oz. size) cream cheese, room temperature, softened
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
- ¼ cup milk
- 6 eggs, room temperature
- 2 pints fresh strawberries, washed and hulled
- ⅔ cup strawberry or red-currant jelly, melted
- 1 tablespoon kirsch or rum

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. In medium bowl, toss graham-cracker crumbs, brown sugar, butter and nutmeg together. Press mixture onto bottom of 9-inch spring-form pan. Bake for 10 minutes. Cool in pan on rack.

2. Make filling: Preheat oven to 500°F. In large bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat together cream cheese and sugar until light and fluffy.

3. Blend in flour, vanilla, orange rind and milk until mixture is smooth. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Pour mixture over baked crumb crust in pan. Bake in preheated oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 250°F. Bake 1 hour longer.

5. Leave cake in oven, with heat turned off and door shut, about 20 minutes. Remove from oven.

6. Cool on rack until room temperature, then refrigerate cake 3 hours or longer.

7. Prepare strawberry topping: Slice enough dry strawberries to garnish. Arrange sliced and whole strawberries on top of cake.

8. To glaze: Combine melted strawberry jelly and kirsch, cool slightly. Brush strawberries with glaze. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Makes 12 servings

A dessert to "give in" to: Strawberry Cheesecake is an elegant way to top off a lawn party or dinner buffet.

BAKED FLOUNDER WITH CAPERS

- 2-2½ lbs. fresh or frozen thawed flounder fillets
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 can (4 ozs.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 3 tablespoons lime or lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons capers in vinegar, drained
- Parsley sprigs and tomato wedges, optional

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. Lightly grease a shallow baking pan or ovenproof serving dish.

2. Sprinkle fish fillets with salt and pepper. Place skin-side down in baking dish.

3. Combine mushrooms, butter and lime juice; pour over flounder. Bake for about 30 minutes, until fish flakes easily.

4. Just before serving sprinkle with capers. Garnish with parsley sprigs and tomato wedges if desired.

Makes 5-6 servings

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

This Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due to Infection.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting, named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Just see if doctor tested Preparation H doesn't help you. There's no other formula like it. Ointment or suppositories.

A Chiropractor's Treasury of HEALTH SECRETS

Yes, Dear Friend:

How would you like to sit down with licensed Chiropractor, Dr. Samuel Homola, and ask him such vital questions about your health as:

"Can I erase the wrinkles on my face?"
"Can I get a thicker and healthier head of hair?"
"Can I strengthen my eyesight and vision?"
"Can I rejuvenate my glands and organs?"

. . . and have him give you full, honest, detailed answers to everything you want to know? Now, admittedly these things are contrary to commonly accepted medical thinking. And yet Dr. Samuel Homola says they are within the realm of possibility for the average man or woman. And he reports on all these things—and more—in "A Chiropractor's Treasury of Health Secrets".

In These Pages, Dr. Homola Says—

- "You don't have to suffer from constipation . . ."
- "You can reduce your blood pressure . . ."
- "You can get rid of that nagging backache . . ."
- You can try a secret that "will give you a 'new' pair of feet"
- "You should literally erase the wrinkles on your face . . ." with one of these secrets
- You may use this same secret "for a thicker and healthier head of hair . . ."
- You can "cope with arthritis effectively and painlessly. . . . New facts suggest new treatments for quick relief of symptoms...soothing relief for sore and swollen arthritic joints."

"Immediately following one of these methods," says Dr. Homola, "it's not at all uncommon for a patient to say that he can 'see better'."

And all these "Health Secrets" are yours for the reading. Simply fill out and mail the No-Risk Coupon—and you will receive Dr. Homola's book to read from cover to cover, without your risking a single cent!

But first I'd like to tell you more about this book, for that is the only way you will be able to judge its usefulness to you. In reporting its Contents, we make no claims—but rather invite the readers—FREE OF RISK—to examine it and discuss any or all of it with their own doctors.

In these pages, you'll discover . . .

"How To Improve Your Health And Relieve Your Aches And Pains"

Here, in Chapter 1, Dr. Homola states: "All of the home-treatments in this book can be carried out without expensive equipment or medication . . ."

"All of the various methods described in this book have been found to be safe and effective," says Dr. Homola. "Anyone can use them without fear of pain or injury."

"Every chapter outlines a complete self-help technique for a specific ailment," he promises. "If you are stricken with acute pain or illness, you should, of course, see your doctor," he says, to make sure self-help measures would help you. "In the care of certain ailments, they may be more effective than medication, in providing relief from symptoms."

In these pages, Dr. Homola reports on—

SPECIAL CARE FOR VARICOSE VEINS—The drugless treatment that Dr. Homola reports on "may be done easily and conveniently," he says, and is "an effective way to reduce swelling."

HOW TO CARE FOR HEMORRHOIDS—"Since rectal hemorrhoids or 'piles' are also really varicose veins," says Dr. Homola, this same technique "will help drain the accumulated blood" to help relieve discomfort.

A SKIN IMPROVEMENT SECRET—Dr. Homola reports on a common food substance that may prevent dry skin and brittle hair and nails. He also reports on a health secret he says "will improve skin tone". One lady who used it following her regular bath reported that her skin took on the "loving glow" of a baby.

AN APHRODISIAC—Dr. Homola reports on a certain tea that he says, "contains hormone-like (testosterone) substances that stimulate the male sex glands" and is available from health food stores . . . and also a common candy which he says is "believed to have a stimulating effect on female estrogenic hormones."

ARM & SHOULDER PAIN RELIEF—"Pain in some portion of your shoulder, arm, or hand . . . can very often be relieved" with a simple method requiring little more than some ordinary string and sand.

RELIEVING HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE—"You can . . . reduce your blood pressure and slow your heart rate," reports Dr. Homola. And he reports on a number of methods said to do this; one, for example, a common seasoning that he says "tends to lower blood pressure as well as prevent hardening of the arteries."

Elsewhere in this book, Dr. Homola reports on "How to Banish Recurring Headache," "Relieving Cramps and Gas Pains," "How to Strengthen Your Heart for Longer Life and Better Health," "How to Strike Out the Common Cold," "How to Use Home Treatment to Cure Your Backache," "How to Improve Your Health with Leg and Foot Care," "How to Stop Needless Suffering from Hernia," as well as methods said to relieve ulcers, gall bladder trouble, insomnia, anemia, and poor circulation.

There is even a method with which Dr. Homola says "you can take in a proportionately greater number of calories without gaining weight."

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dr. Samuel Homola is an outstanding authority on the treatment of common and uncommon ailments through drugless healing. A graduate of the Lincoln Chiropractic College, he is the author of four books, including Backache: Home Treatment and Prevention, Muscle Training for Athletes, and Bonesetting, Chiropractic and Cultism, as well as over 200 articles on backache, physical fitness, and related subjects for professional and health magazines.

In addition to maintaining a full-time practice in Panama City, Florida, Dr. Homola is a staff writer for Strength & Health and Muscular Development and contributes articles regularly to such magazines as Scholastic Coach.

Dr. Homola is a well-known authority on the training of athletes, and has developed many new and original techniques for building better health.

Here's What A Medical Doctor Says About These HEALTH SECRETS

Paul-Emile Chevrefils, M.D. says in the Foreword to this book: "As a practicing physician, I recommend A Chiropractor's Treasury of Health Secrets to anyone who wants to add years to his life. Every page is based on scientific principles."

75 Photos And Drawings Illustrate Self-Help Methods Anyone Can Use!

Here Are Some Of The Many Case Histories Reported In Dr. Homola's Book:

STOMACH CRAMPS RELIEVED—"A traveling salesman who suffered from stomach cramps whenever he had a bad day could relieve his discomfort" by using a method described on p. 28, says Dr. Homola.

COLITIS & HEADACHE RELIEVED—"In another case a school teacher who suffered from colitis and headaches could relieve her symptoms" by following this same method, writes Dr. Homola.

RIDS SELF OF CONSTIPATION—Malcolm E. took laxatives regularly. He was addicted to them and felt he could not do without them. He was sleepy, tired and "bloated" all the time, and appeared to be getting worse. "I took this patient off laxatives," reports Dr. Homola, "and suggested he follow the recommendations in this chapter . . . After several weeks he was normal once again."

RELIEVES HEART PAIN—"Bill C., an attorney, was only 45, but he had already suffered a slight heart attack. His doctor actually recommended many of the measures outlined in Chapter 6 . . . and after faithful adherence to this program . . . his blood cholesterol was back to normal and he no longer had chest pains when he exerted himself."

RELIEVES LEG PAIN—Mrs. M. S., a 43-year-old supermarket cashier complained of leg pain. Yet after using a simple method Dr. Homola tells you about in Chapter 10, "all of her aches and pains were relieved with a single treatment."

RELIEVES ARTHRITIC SYMPTOMS—"A 68-year-old retired railroad man complained that he was so stiff when he got out of bed in the morning he could hardly move. And the more he rested, the stiffer he became. He relieved his stiffness, however, with a method described in Chapter 7. 'I feel much better now," he remarks, and he is able to take walks and go swimming."

STIFF FINGERS RELIEVED—"A 52-year-old cosmetics sales lady who tried this technique said that it relieved the soreness and stiffness in her fingers when nothing else seemed to help," reports Dr. Homola.

SHOULDER & SPINE PAIN RELIEVED—"A postal clerk, 38 years of age, who had to stand long hours sorting mail, complained of 'pain and pressure' in the portion of his spine between his shoulder blades. After using this method, he reported complete relief from pain," says Dr. Homola.

RELIEVES BACKACHE—When all else had failed, a 68-year-old retired business executive who had suffered a compression fracture in his spine many months earlier "was able to relieve his backache as well as his leg pain," with a method revealed in Chapter 9.

"Simple self-help mesaures," says Dr. Homola, "can save you time and money as well as relieve pain and disability. . . . Every chapter is filled with effective self-help methods."

As More Examples, Dr. Homola Reports On . . .

"HOW TO RELIEVE PAIN OF MIGRAINE"—Do you suffer from recurring headaches of unknown cause—accompanied by nausea, weakness, restlessness or irritability? Do you see a kind of hazy aura or "spots" before your eyes—just before a bad headache? When it begins, it is usually on one side of the head, with a swollen, painful artery sometimes visible on that side? If so, you may be suffering from migraine, Dr. Homola says. In these pages, he reveals simple methods migraine sufferers have used for relief of symptoms.

"A CASE HISTORY OF LEG PAIN"—"A 68-year-old judge complained of pain in his calves when he walked more than a few yards. 'I can walk about a block,' he said, 'and then my legs start aching. After I sit down for a while, I can walk another block before they start aching again.' X-ray examination of his legs revealed that the arteries traveling down the back of his knees and calves were so hard and calcified that they could be clearly seen . . . his calf muscles simply ached from poor circulation and lack of oxygen," reports Dr. Homola. By following a method reported by Dr. Homola, he relieved this condition and increased the endurance of his legs so that he could walk several blocks without trouble.

"HOW A MOTHER RELIEVES HER 'FEMALE TROUBLES'"—A 31 year old mother, complaining of pelvic trouble and painful menstruation, according to Dr. Homola, "was able to relieve her symptoms" by using a simple device that can be made easily or purchased at a store inexpensively—which "restored circulation by removing pressure" from her abdominal organs.

"HOW TO STOP NEEDLESS SUFFERING FROM HERNIA"—Charlie B. suffered from a hernia, as did Bonnie J. Mr. B., a salesman, began to experience a little soreness and swelling in his right groin, for no apparent reason. The doctor told him, "If that bulge gets any bigger, it may have to be repaired surgically." Mr. B. was flabbergasted. "How could I have a hernia?" he asked. "I haven't done anything to strain myself." Bonnie J., a housewife, also developed a hernia in the groin. "I thought only men had hernias in that part of the body," she said. "Luckily," writes Dr. Homola, "both were able to 'cure' their hernias using the simple secrets described in this chapter."

What in the World!

MARVIN AS MOVIE HOBO
Like the good old days?

In a new movie, "Emperor of the North Pole," Lee Marvin plays a hobo whose nemesis is a mean railroad man (Ernest Borgnine). Is this still the hobo's chief fear? "Naw, not anymore," says a real-life hobo named Boots, who was recently interviewed while trudging down a track. "I can remember when a brakeman wouldn't think nothin' of bashin' in your brains with one of those clubs they all carried. Nowadays, if you stay out of the yards, hardly nobody bothers you." And are there still cozy little hobo camps where men sit around eating beans from cans? "There used to be a 'jungle' at every junction. Now, there's hardly a one. You used to find ten or 15 guys, all of them glad to see you. Now you find one or two, and they're as friendly as rattlers. That's why most of us nowadays stay in missions."

CORALEE "NIBSIE" TOWNE
Ballet exercises for a swimmer?

What? Ballet exercises to keep a swimmer in shape? It works for Coralee "Nibsie" Towne, who isn't just any swimmer, and not just a champion at the sport, but a full-fledged mermaid! A competitive swimmer since she was 12, and Virginia's Amateur Athlete of the Year in 1965, Nibsie is part of a team of two dozen "mermaids" in the underwater show "Spring of Live Mermaids" at Weeki Wachee, Fla. She continually practices ballet routines on land so that she can perform her dramatic underwater roles.

QUOTE: Sen. Marlow Cook (R-Ky.), speaking of the Government's plan for passive restraint systems in automobiles manufactured after the summer of 1975: "Few people realize that the proposal to require installation of passive restraints also will completely remove the requirement for installation of seat belts in automobiles. We already know that seat belts are effective and we should keep them until it can be proved, beyond a doubt, that there is a device 100 percent as effective as seat belts. Seat belts impose no additional financial burden on motorists, whereas at the present time, the White House Office of Science and Technology reports passive restraints would add $370 to the price of a car." UNQUOTE.

DATES: The NCAA Outdoor Track Championships begin Thursday in Kansas City, Mo. The Belmont Stakes take place in New York and the Le Mans auto race takes place in France Saturday.

ANNIVERSARIES: Robert Kennedy was shot 5 years ago Tuesday in Los Angeles. The Allied forces invaded Normandy on D-Day 29 years ago Wednesday.

NAILING IT DOWN

I've often seen a "thumbnail sketch"
That ever onward seemed to stretch.
A thumbnail sketch I've sometimes known
That to a thousand words has grown
And ere it reached its final stage
But what a thumbnail!
What a thumb!

The trouble with Indian uprisings today is that it's so hard for us to form our cars into a circle on the freeway.

A rather prudish woman was strolling along the beach one day when she chanced to spot a young girl clad in a scanty bikini. She was appalled and said to the girl in horrified tones, "Really, young lady, you should be ashamed of yourself. What would your mother say if she saw you in that suit?" "She'd be plenty mad," the girl admitted. "It's her suit."

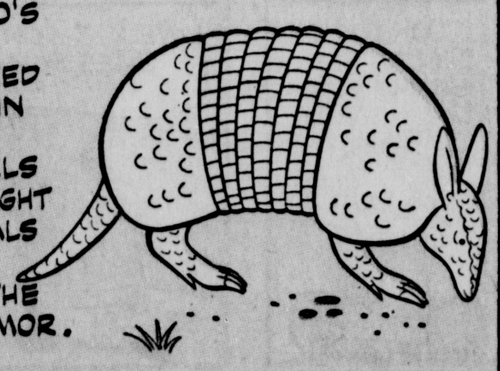
NATURE COLORS

COLOR THE ARMADILLO GRAY WITH A PENCIL.

ARMADILLOS...

THE ARMADILLO'S NAME MEANS "LITTLE ARMORED THING." WHEN IN DANGER, THE ARMADILLO CURLS ITSELF INTO A TIGHT BALL. FEW ANIMALS ARE ABLE TO BITE THROUGH THE TOUGH, BONY ARMOR.



THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

YES. IN FACT, THE MOCKINGBIRD OWES ITS NAME TO ITS GREAT TALENT FOR IMITATING THE SONGS OF OTHER BIRDS. SOME MOCKINGBIRDS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO MIMIC, OR MOCK, THE SONGS OF 30 DIFFERENT BIRDS. SOMETIMES THE MOCKINGBIRD WILL EVEN TRY TO MOCK OTHER SOUNDS - SUCH AS THE BARKING OF A DOG, THE CACKLING OF A HEN, OR EVEN THE POSTMAN'S WHISTLE. THE MOCKINGBIRD'S OWN SONG IS A VERY DELIGHTFUL WRENLIKE SONG.

Polly's

DEAR POLLY—When the neck or arms on my little sister's paper dolls start to bend, she cries. When this happens I put toothpicks on the back of the bent parts, tape them in place and she is happy again.—CAROL

DEAR POLLY—Often we receive static electricity shocks when removing clothes from the dryer. Try holding a metal clothes hanger in your hand while removing the clothes, and be "grounded" to avoid this discomforting feeling.—MARY A.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—While waiting for the tap water to run cold, fill your water bottle with the not-so-cold water as it comes from the tap. Put jar in the ice box to use when needed for drinking. Always refill this refrigerator bottle by the same method. No precious water will be wasted.—ABAGAIL

DEAR POLLY—When one tints her hair at home the "setting in" process usually takes about 45 minutes. During that time the phone is sure to ring. Before starting such a coloring job I cover the receiver on the phone with a plastic bread wrapper and then replace it on the hook so that worry of messing up the phone is eliminated. The bread wrapper is removed and discarded when the job is done.—BRENDA

DEAR POLLY—When my phonograph records get dusty or have fingerprints on them I moisten a piece of velvet and use it to clean them just as I have seen men who supply records for juke boxes do. Do handle by only the edges of the record.—D. K. B.

DEAR POLLY—A small lazy Susan is great to use for holding pins, rubber bands, etc., when you are doing macrame.—SUE

DEAR POLLY—When making a cake, measure the milk in a round measuring cup, pour into another container and then measure the shortening in the same cup so it will slip out more easily when it is to be added.—FAY

DEAR POLLY—My wrist watch has a very tiny stem. As my fingers became stiffer with arthritis it was impossible for me to wind it. Trying to find a way I could do this, I noticed my typewriter eraser, so placed the edge of the eraser on the edge of the stem and turned. It worked wonderfully. I do hope this will help others who have stiff fingers.—ANONA

DEAR POLLY—I learned from bitter experience that if shirts or other starched clothes are to be stored, any starch should be washed out first as it may attract silverfish.—JOAN
